1967 Council Gave Grave Reclamation Go-Ahead

Smith Calls Auditor's Report On Cemetery 'Gratifying'

The fast-spreading aura of alleged irregularities surrounding Mt. Wollaston Cemetery slowed down perceptibly this past week.

The State Auditor's report, released Monday by Mayor Walter Hannon, showed all cemetery accounts for the last three years in balance — except for $1,265 owed the city by former Cemetery Superintendent Anthony M. Famigletti.

City Auditor Alexander Smith called the report "gratifying".

The City Council Monday night learned that a preceding council had nearly seven years ago not only approved but encouraged the Cemetery Department to reclaim grave lots that had been vacant for 50 years.

The May, 15, 1967 resolution was presented by Councillor John J. Quinn, who introduced it back in 1967. It was passed unanimously by a Council which included only Quinn and Clifford H. Marshall Jr. of the present Council.

The Council also refused to back Mayor Hannon's proposed legislation that would give title to cemetery lots that had been reclaimed or resold before Dec. 1, 1973 to the owner on that date.

The feeling of the Council was that the legislation would have the effect of legalizing an illegal act.

Auditor Smith, who had been the target of some criticism during the cemetery probe, issued the following statement after release of the State Auditor's report:

"It was indeed gratifying to receive the report of the State Auditor as forwarded to me by the director of the Division of Accounts that the City Auditor's records were in accord and did balance with the records of the Cemetery Department in view of the fact that for the past several weeks the local daily press has made accusations that the Auditor's report did not agree with the Cemetery Reports and that his records did not balance with Cemetery records in specific accounts in the amount of $400 and $4,000 respectively.

"Now the citizens are getting the true facts."

Smith said the shortage of $1,265, owed to the city by Famigletti for the burial of his father and daughter-in-law, was "known to the Mayor, the Police and the Auditor last November and proper steps for reimbursement will be taken at the proper time."

The 1967 resolution did nothing to change the current situation but it did indicate that the city was officially aware of the problem of reclaiming vacant cemetery lots long before the current uproar.

The resolution said: "Whereas a preliminary audit has revealed that there are numerous grave lots in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery which for more than 50 years have been vacant without interment.

"And whereas these sites from all evidence will never be used by their purchasers.

"And whereas said lots when legally reclaimed by the city would offer a choice of location for citizens of Quincy and additional hundreds of thousands of dollars for the city.

"Therefore be it resolved that the Cemetery Board of Managers ascertain and take whatever legal steps are necessary to reclaim these sites."

The Council's refusal to support the Mayor's proposed legislation came against the advice of City Solicitor Richard McCormick, who predicted chaos would result if such a bill were not passed.

bride's crowning glory starts with basic grooming

Many of today's young brides follow at least one age-old tradition by wearing their hair long and natural-looking. Fresh, shiny tresses make the perfect beginning for that very special march down the aisle.

Since hair falling below the shoulders shouldn't just "hang in there," a basic grooming routine of shampooing/conditioning assures the bride her hair will look its radiant best.

To show off her crowning glory, Helene Curtis suggests a style, popular with today's brides-to-be. The hair is center-parted and falls gently forward from the shoulders into a soft, lustrous cluster of curls.

Complementing this style, the modern bride may take a cue from her Roman counterpart who carried bunches of herbs under her veil. She updates this ancient custom by intertwining fresh baby's breath through her hair, or tucks a good luck mint under her lace headpiece.

BRIDE'S NEW NAME PUTS HERS FIRST

Mary Jo Stewart and Peter B. Brown got married and now they're Mr. and Mrs. Stewart-Brown.

"I couldn't feel I was myself by dropping my name and taking someone else's," Mrs. Stewart-Brown said.

Mary Jo and Peter were married last September and have been using the joint name since the ceremony. A judge has ruled it legal in the Eastern state where the ceremony was performed.

"For Mary Jo to take my name wouldn't be in keeping with the marital relationship we wanted to establish," Peter, 23, said.

He said they made the double name legal because they wanted to use it on all documents including birth certificates of any children they may have.

Mrs. Stewart-Brown, 22, said the couple decided to use her maiden name first only because it seemed to sound better.

SYMBOLS OF A HAPPY LIFE TOGETHER

MARRY IN STYLE ANY STYLE

Think in terms of total environment when planning a 1974 wedding. Pick a theme. Plan your gown and the church decor around that theme. Then carry it through to the rehearsal dinner and reception too. Make it a wedding party the guests will never forget.

As one example, take an Old West theme. Your bridal gown should have a tightly fitted bodice and leg o'mutton sleeves. Choose a non-shiny fabric — perhaps a matelasse cotton, or leno stripe embroidered white-on-white. Taffeta petticoats would be appropriate for all the bridesmaids, and would make a lovely rustle as you all walk down the aisle.

The groom and ushers could go very formal or rustic. For a formal ceremony, they'll wear morning coats, striped trousers, top hats and watch fobs gleaming across their vests. If a more informal style is preferred, outfit the gents in suede suits, with full pleated sleeves on their white dress shirts and boots for everyone.

Decorate the church with bunches of wildflowers, or even small bouquets of tiny strawflowers.

Bridesmaids can wear gowns of calico in pastels or bright colors, trimmed with matching eyelet. To create the total effect you want, throw a bridal party at which the girls themselves do the sewing. It's lots of fun. And if each girl personally sews part of the bridal gown — or puts her own monogrammed patch on the taffeta petticoat — that garment will have a sentimental value forever.

Of course, all the girls will want to look wasp-waisted at the wedding (even without corseting!); so do help them keep the calories down. Serve light refreshments such as Slen-der diet food from Carnation. One glass made with 6 oz. nonfat milk has a delicious, party-rich flavor with just 164 calories.

At the reception, serve barbecued beef and biscuits. If your wedding is planned for late Spring or Summer, why not serve your guests from a chuck wagon set up outdoors? If there isn't room to roast a steer, how about a lamb or pig?

For a Hawaiian style wedding, order leis of fresh flowers for every member of the wedding party. These may be worn during the ceremony itself, or you may wish to save them for the reception — at which time, have everyone change into something comfortable:

slacks and Hawaiian shirts for all the men, from the father-of-the-bride to the pre-teen ring-bearer; and long, flowing muu-muus for all the women. Live musicians will play island music while the guests serve their plates from a buffet that looks like a traditional Hawaiian feast with plenty of fish and fruit. (For mainland palates — serve more sweet-and-sour and less poi.)

wedding gifts beautiful enough for that first home

Wedding gifts are meant to literally fill that first home, which is noticeably in need of everything. That's why practicality and service are high on the list of priorities for any potential wedding gifter. But to that starry-eyed couple who will have to incorporate your gift into their dream nest, beauty and their kind of lifestyle are equally important considerations. So here's an important tip from the Jewelry Industry Council: everybody stays blissfully happy with a gift from the jewelry store.

Silver has a newness that appeals to young couples just discovering its authentic, lasting precious beauty. And today's bride has imaginative, untraditional ways that make the most of your silver gift. Check her jeweler's bridal registry for a dependable guide to the bride's pattern and item preferences in silver flatware and holloware. Place settings, individual place pieces, serving pieces, casserole, ice bucket, compote suggest a few shining gift-ables.

The sharing that characterizes today's couples is especially evident in the kitchen. The bride and the groom will be doing the cooking, and the cleaning up after. Yet elegance is a keynote to their entertaining. Today's kind of elegance: freer, less tradition-bound, emphasizing comfort and enjoyment. Pick a china or crystal gift sparkling with color for this kind of home entertainment.

Again, the bridal registry is the source for the bride's essential china and crystal needs. She may have chosen the ready-made table-top coordination available from silver, china and crystal patterns grouped together and suggested for their harmony.

And think of the practicality in ovenware that goes from the table into the dishwasher. Buffet servers, gourmet ware, anything that adds to the romance of wine drinking are wedding wonderfuls, too.

Or give a quiet moment of beauty and reflection that will be enjoyed throughout the married years ahead: porcelain sculptures of Nature for the ecology conscious; nostalgic pewter sculptures; historical reproductions for all those young Americana lovers; gold plated and enameled fruit or flower arrangements.

Wish your favorite couple a happy life together with all the prestige of a limited edition gift or with the sure practicality of a clock. At the jewelry store are all the gifts beautiful enough for their first home.

Party Hints for New Homemakers

Anyone can give a party. But the secret of a party where the host and hostess have as much fun as everyone else is - preparation and organization. Even a party put together on the spot will benefit from prior just-in-case arrangements and having everything needed right at hand.

If you haven't a bar or a bar-cart in your living room, set aside one cabinet and a nearby drawer in the kitchen. The cabinet is for storing a selection of liquor and mixers so that you're ready for any chance visit.

Stock some Scotch, vodka, a blended whiskey and a status - symbol 101 - proof Kentucky bourbon for the on-the-rocks sippers you know. A fine brandy-liqueur like Metaxa takes care of before and after-dinner brandy lovers very neatly. Keep a fruit liqueur to be either siped plain, poured on desserts or cooked with.

Don't forget an aperitif for guests who are convivial but don't drink hard liquor.

In the drawer you can store cocktail napkins, coasters, swizzle sticks, olive picks and a small paring knife for peel. You'll also find a cocktail strainer, long updated beauty tips for mother of the Bride

ENJOY IT ALL . . . FROM THE WORD 'GO'

After spending months carefully planning your daughter's wedding, finally enjoying every wonderful moment of it can be one of the most exciting experiences of your life. With some advance planning and a little effort, it can be one of your prettiest as well.

Take some time from your busy schedule of doing things for others to spend some time on yourself. Map out a whole new beauty strategy. Consider these points: What's the condition of your hair? How's the color? What about the length? Could it use a good cutting? Take a good look at your makeup. Does it need some updating?

About a month before the wedding, have a conference with your hairstylist. Come prepared with a few ideas of your own and perhaps a picture or two clipped from a current magazine. Your hairdresser knows your hair, its texture and condition. He can help you decide on a style that will be good for you. Choose one that will look smashing on your daughter's wedding day but one that's adaptable to your everyday schedule.

Hair coloring, too, should be the kind that looks terrific but doesn't require hours of work every time your hair grows the tiniest amount. Some of the semi-permanent shampoo-in hair colors fit this description. So do rinses. Unless you want a steady date with your hair colorist, don't go for a drastic change in your color. Try something more subtle and natural-looking like streaking or hair painting.

Probably the single most important thing about your hair is the cut.

Once you have a good haircut, effective setting is the next step. Many stylists rely on gentle "Scotch" Hair Set Tape to give their clients smooth, crinkle-free sets. And it's a method that's easily done at home. Pin curls, waves, bangs and nape hair all benefit from setting with gentle pinked hair set tape.

After the new hairstyle with a bit of color, you'll need to revamp your makeup. Try dropping into a nearby department store when there is a visiting makeup consultant scheduled. Most of the large cosmetic companies send train-

There's no need for a bride to panic about something going wrong at her wedding. The clergyman will explain what everyone must do during the ceremony at the wedding rehearsal which should be held before rather than after the traditional dinner.

Flowers, creatively arranged, add beauty to wedding day

Can anyone imagine a wedding without flowers? The bride's bouquet, the bridesmaids' flowers, the floral decorations are all an integral part of the traditional wedding. A creative florist can help make each wedding unique, but a word of caution is in order for the bride who is thinking in terms of exotic flowers. Unless money is no object, the intelligent girl will think in terms of more or less local, seasonal flowers. Their abundance and availability makes them less expensive. When placed on an altar and buffet or dining tables at the reception, they will look equally beautiful.

In order to achieve a truly impressive effect, the bride would be wise to work closely with her florist almost from the beginning of her planning.

more brides hope to have sterling

Can a bride find happiness in marriage without sterling? Yes — but think how much more fun it will be with it! Sterling's just made for special occasions — like moving day after the honeymoon, and eating that first dinner-for-two sitting on the floor in front of the cocktail table. Even with cold cuts on the table and packing boxes in the background, sterling helps make the occasion memorable.

And later, when there are friends to entertain, new neighbors to meet, and in-laws coming to town for the big holiday weekend, sterling's elegance and company manners are there to depend on. Its authority is so unchallenged, in fact, that a girl can get along with even quite ordinary china and glass on her table. Solid silver carries the day!

It's why more brides than ever before are picking out their sterling pattern long in advance of the wedding day, and registering it. They recognize a good thing when they see it — and they know there's no better way to create a "special-occasion" atmosphere for those important meals they'll be planning in their new life.

Happily, sterling rates high with the very gift-givers who'll be responsible for providing the bride with her set. And their choice is a good one, for there's hardly any other thing they could choose that combines beauty and practicality in such a felicitous manner. What other possession can a woman own in her lifetime, for instance, that has high value (which continues to grow), great durability, and whose looks improve with age and use?

EVEN ON MOVING DAY, when the bride and her new husband are dining on cheese and cold cuts, sterling silver helps make the occasion memorable. It's a time worth celebrating — and is just the first of many special occasions when the bride will be glad she owns sterling.

Glass

No table is complete without the finishing touches of fine glassware. Place settings are best purchased in sets of eight and should include tumblers, water goblets, fruit juice glasses, sherbets and cocktail glasses. Important extras include old-fashioned, wine, liqueur and champagne glasses.

China

China should also be bought in place settings. Again, eight each of dinner plates, bread and butter plates, cups and saucers, and soup bowls are recommended. Extras include soup plates, salad plates, dessert plates, one meat platter, three vegetable dishes and one cream and sugar set.

Silver holloware is the beautifully natural companion.

Check the linen closet, too. Your new home will be a popular one for the first few months or more. Make sure there is an ample supply of entertainment accessories and linen for overnight guests.

COMING DOWN TO EARTH PAINLESSLY

STORING A GOWN?

Grandma had the right idea on the way to store her wedding gown — in darkness and in a dry place.

Drycleaning experts say the traditional method was sensible, measured by today's scientific standards.

Many an heirloom has been carefully wrapped in tissue paper, often blue, and stored in a trunk in the attic. Modern storage experts recommend the tissue paper, but there is no scientific reason for its being blue.

The tissue should be laid between the folds of the garment, thus protecting each layer from the weight of the layer above. Thus the folds are rounded rather than creased. Creasing over a prolonged period causes damage to the fabric.

According to experts, probably the biggest enemy of an heirloom gown is moisture. That's why grandmother headed for the dry attic, rather than the damp basement. Dampness causes mildew, a fungus that thrives on cotton, linen and rayon.

Perspiration, spilled champagne or even greasy stains from the wedding cake may cause hard-to-eradicate stained areas. It is recommended that a gown be sent to the drycleaner as soon after the wedding as possible to prevent ruining a possible heirloom gown.

Bridal Nightwear A Colorful Attraction

According to lingerie makers, young brides have gone from white tulle-trousers in search of more colorful, versatile nighttime wardrobes. "The whole idea of the trousseau is over. Today's bride buys something that is more practical — an assortment of merchandise, rather than a load of white nightgowns," said the sleepwear buyer for a better department store here. "She's not buying less, mind you," the buyer continued, "She just wants different kinds of merchandise. The traditional bridal category is a misnomer today; the bride wants a variety of silhouettes in many colors." The merchandise manager for a large department store operation said sales of bridal peignoirs are down from last year and attributed the decline to "changing life styles. Peignoirs are viewed as old-fashioned by today's bride," he said. The lingerie buyer for a better specialty store commented, "Most of our bridal customers buy a sexy nightgown rather than a frou-frou white ensemble. They prefer a slinky, close-to-the-body look in place of the traditional flouncy bridal set."

food warmer dinnertime 'maid'

As most new homemakers discover, preparing and serving a deliciously hot meal is not that easy. Especially when the roast takes more time than expected or the guests arrive late.

Then a dinner can turn into a disaster of dried out vegetables, lumpy potatoes and hard, cold rolls. How to keep food from drying out under those circumstances?

Many new smart brides and more experienced cooks, too, will use a food warmer to keep each dish at serving temperature, without overcooking, until she's ready to serve the entire meal... no matter what the delay is.

Even when there are no delays, the temperature controlled food warmer helps make mealtimes run more smoothly. For there's no need to worry if one dish is ready before the rest of the meal, or if everyone is ready when the food is. Freedom from that kind of worry makes the bride more relaxed and happy. So she can spend more time with her husband instead of dashing back and forth from range to table.

The new bride will soon discover that the most popular food warmer is the Salton Hotray, the greatest gift to good cooking. And for entertaining it's indispensable. No more running back and forth to the kitchen. The Hotray lets her prepare hot hors d'oeuvres in advance, so she can enjoy her guests when they arrive.

And the new bride doesn't have to break up a lively cocktail conversation by demanding that everyone eat while the food is hot.

NOTHING BORROWED, NEVER BLUE

Lucky the man who marries a bride who is beautiful, bright and budget-wise. Already she knows that love has no bounds, but income is a different story.

One of the greatest services a wife can perform for her husband over the years is watching the budget. She can help ease the financial pressures on them both by keeping them out of debt.

Obviously there are emergency situations that can't be foreseen. The kind of debt referred to here is the everyday variety — the habit of living beyond one's income. How many people do you know whose entire paycheck goes into installment payments? Don't let it happen to you!

First, determine the actual disposable income. After paying taxes, mortgage, insurance, or rent, and (hopefully) investing in some savings program, the actual cash left for running the household is referred to optimistically as disposable income. Usually it's not enough for comfort. Practice making ends meet, from the very first day of married life.

How to save money in the food budget? Discover what meatless casseroles your husband will eat. What are his tastes in soups and stews? Learn how to prepare economical meals based on his preferences, using cheeses, eggs, and protein rich "vegetables" such as dried beans and peas. If it's possible for him to take his lunch, so much the better for your budget. You can fix him a high-protein sandwich a lot cheaper than he can buy it. As for breakfast, the most important thing is that nobody skips it. If time or budget makes it hard to sit down to a full, traditional breakfast, that's no excuse. Serve an Instant Breakfast mixed with fresh whole milk. (Carnation's is delicious). It's the 20c breakfast in a glass that provides a bacon-and-egg kind of energy.

How to decorate the new home on a tight budget? Rather than ordering a new set of furniture for every room, assemble all the second-hand pieces you can use. Combine old furniture from school days with whatever you can scrounge from relatives' attics and garages. Naturally, nothing will match. You may choose to refinish the different woods for a uniform finish, or to paint everything the same color. Slipcovers will transform the most motley old

Simple Services Here

Billy DeWolfe: 'He Brought So Much Into Lives Of So Many'

By HENRY BOSWORTH

"He was so honest. . . considerate. . . gracious. . . a gentleman. . . his humor was authentic. . . he gave joy and happiness. . . he brought so much into the lives of so many."

Quincy favorite son, Billy DeWolfe, was so eulogized at simple, brief funeral services Monday in Wollaston Baptist Church around the corner from where he grew up as Billy Jones.

The words were those of Rev. Blaine Taylor of Wesley Methodist Church, Worcester, where Billy worshipped when visiting his sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert Jones, wife of his former brother who died eight years ago.

Among the approximate 200 persons attending the less than a half-hour service were Mayor Walter J. Hannon, former mayors Thomas S. Burgin and Amelio Della Chiesa, Norfolk County Sheriff Charles W. Hedges, and his former childhood teacher at the Wollaston School, Miss Bessie Powers.

Rev. Charles McEachern, pastor of Wollaston Baptist Church, officiated at the church service and brief interment service at Mount Wollaston Cemetery. Rev. Taylor noted that Billy "was a modest man and did not want a grandiose service." His wish was kept.

Only a half-dozen floral sprays were along his closed casket. There were 30 cars in the funeral cortege.

"In a way, Billy has come home today," said Rev. Taylor.

"He could be so honest in such a gracious way. He was a remarkable man—a family man who made his friends part of his family. How considerate and how caring he was. He was a gentleman."

"He brought so much into the lives of so many."

"Billy was a busy man. That was his trademark. But he was busy in the ways of friendship, in those personal things that are so simple, Billy left so much."

"His humor was so great because it was so authentic. . . so much a part of him."

"He was a happy man who lived a good life. The memories are good ones. The joys were shared."

"It was a life shared with so many."

Family members attending the services in addition to Mrs. Jones were four cousins, Mrs. Mary Urann of Norwood; Lloyd Evans of Scituate; Mrs. Louise Foley of Braintree and Mrs. Dorothea Willard of Cambridge.

Also attending were two close Quincy friends, Edward

'Complex Problem'

Tobin Proposes Courts Solve Graves Dilemma

By TOM HENSHAW

City Council President Arthur H. Tobin is looking to the city for a way out of Quincy's complex and emotional cemetery dilemma "once and for all."

He has suggested to Mayor Walter J. Hannon Monday that further investigations, resolutions and legislation be put aside until a court can provide a firm legal foundation for such actions.

Mayor Hannon declined to comment on Tobin's suggestion until he consulted with City Solicitor Richard McCormick.

The specific problem is this: A number of graves at Mt. Wollaston Cemetery, some occupied and some not, have been reclaimed and resold by the city, apparently without fulfilling strictly the legal obligations.

Said Tobin in a letter to Hannon:

"Until the Court rules on whose contractual rights are superior in this unique and tangled factual situation, our course of action is unclear, and I believe it would be unwise of us to take any definitive action in this most unfortunate situation until our course is clearly understood.

"Depending on the outcome of this court action, our responsibilities as city officials will then be clear: To compensate the present owners and try to locate the original owners, or to finally give the present owners a clear deed to their rights in the lots."

Tobin suggested to the Mayor that the city bring a legal action that would elicit a declaratory judgement from the court.

"Our actual legal controversy necessary for such an action is clear," he said.

"The contractual rights of the present 'owners' of the lots as good faith purchased from the [Cont'd on Page 2]

Sessions Start Saturday

Quinn Thinks Budget Can Be Cut

"I think I see some areas that can be cut," said City Councillor John J. Quinn as the Council rolled up its sleeves in preparation for a six-week bout with Mayor Walter J. Hannon's proposed $62.5 million budget.

The City Council's Finance Committee, chaired by Quinn and made up of nine members of the Council, will hold its first budget hearing Saturday at 10 a.m. in the Council Chamber at City Hall.

"It's going to be a people's budget again this year," Quinn promised. "The committee hearings are open to all. We want to work closely with the people to establish a budget that is fair to them without curtailing services."

"Anyone who has a question about a budget item should put it in writing and submit it through his or her ward councillor or councillor-at-large. The chair will entertain all such questions and put them to the department heads."

The 359-page budget, which covers the fiscal year July 1, 1974 to June 30, 1975, is calculated to be up 5.4 per cent over that of last year, which totalled $85.4 million for an 18-month period.

"The Mayor has submitted a relatively tight budget," said Quinn. "But I think it can be cut. I don't want to get specific yet. I want the other councillors to have a chance to study it in depth first."

Quinn said he expects the Committee can scrutinize the whole budget in six Saturday sessions since it has to be submitted to the Council before April 19.

"If necessary we'll hold evening sessions," said Quinn, "but I believe Saturday morning is the best time because it gives the largest number of people a chance to attend and speak up."

Quinn said these departments will be taken up at Saturday's session:

Licensing Board, Board of Appeals, Planning Board, Purchasing Department, Law Department, Retirement Board, Civil Service, Workmen's Compensation, Personnel.

Payroll and Budget Department, Central Accounting Department, Treasurer and Collector, Assessors, City Clerk, Vital Statistics and Elections and Registrations Department.

No Effect Yet But - -

Equipment Operators Strike Could Delay Clay St. Project

The strike of some 3,000 heavy equipment operators that hit eastern Massachusetts construction projects Monday had little apparent immediate effect on building sites in Quincy.

But if it's a long one it will shut down everything, including the $4.4 million Clay St. housing complex for senior citizens in Wollaston.

"The immediate effect is on the jobs that involve excavation and the use of cranes," said Carmine D'Olimpio, president of the Building and Construction Trades Council of Quincy.

"If a project is in its early stages, it will be affected; if it is in the finishing stages it will not be affected too much."

"If it goes on long enough, it will even affect the shipyard where they are building a wet slip for the new tankers."

Jack Cattaneo of the Quincy Housing Authority said the Clay St. project is in a pre-excavation carpentry stage.

"We're building forms right now," he said. "We'll be all right for a while. But we'll be in real trouble if the strike goes for two or three weeks."

1,800 Threaten Strike At Shipyard Saturday

Some 1,800 production workers at the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard are talking work stoppage—or call it a strike, if you want to.

Thomas Lang of Local 5, Shipbuilding Workers Union, said a five-year contract expires at midnight Saturday and the membership has voted "no contract, no work."

"The issue is basically money," said Lang, "but there are other things. We are still far apart."

He declined to say how much the union is seeking.

Arthur Batson, president of the local, and Earl Christian, executive secretary, were in negotiations and unavailable for further comment.

Scolamiero of West Quincy, with whom he ushered at the old Quincy Theater where he got his show business start and Miss Mabelle Fullerton of The Patriot Ledger.

Others attending included Barbara DeWolfe, daughter of Quincy Theater manager William DeWolfe from whom Billy took his stage name, John McDonough, manager of the Salisbury Beach Frolics where Billy was emcee on his rise to stardom, Henry Bosworth, publisher of The Quincy Sun, Charles Ross of station WJDA, and Dr. John Vosler of Eaton, Ohio which had become Billy's adopted home in recent years. [See Sunbeams column, Page 5]

Also in attendance were Mrs. Charlotte M. Devaney, 92, of Canton, a friend of DeWolfe's mother; Eileen Ford, his vaudeville partner in the act of DeWolfe, Metcalfe and Ford; and two of his 1926 Quincy High classmates, Everett Lister and Fred Black.

Funeral arrangements were handled by the Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, Adams St., Quincy.

The 67-year-old famed comedian-actor who was Quincy's "ambassador of good will" wherever he traveled, died March 5 at the UCLA Medical Center in Hollywood, Calif. He had been hospitalized a week for the treatment of lung cancer. Death was attributed to a blood clot.

DeWolfe was born William Andrew Jones in Quincy and he entered show business in his home town on the lowest possible rung — as an usher in the old Quincy Theater on Hancock St.

He memorized the acts that were shown at the theater and, when he decided to go on stage himself, he took the name of the manager of the theater as a stage name.

He was a dancer at first, then turned to comedy, creating such memorable characters as "Mrs. Murgatroyd," the eccentric spinster in the flowery hats and pincenez who liked a little nip now and then.

DeWolfe appeared in many moving pictures during the 1940s and 1950s, notably "Blue Skies" and "Dixie" with Bing Crosby, and several of the Doris Day pictures.

He appeared on television, too, featured as an old maidish neighbor on the Doris Day Show and as a too fastidious radio station manager on the show "Good Morning, World."

Six days after his death, he made one of his final appearances (on tape) in Marlo Thomas' "Free to be . . . You and Me," a television special that was shown Monday night in the Boston area.

DeWolfe was signed to appear in the musical "Irene" last year but he had to bow out at the last minute when he came down with the flu.

He also turned down the role of the tycoon (later played by Rudy Vallee) in "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," on grounds the play might be a hit and he would be stuck with the role. It was and he wasn't.

He served in the Navy during World War II — but not to see the world. He had seen most of that during the 1930s as a traveling entertainer who was better known in Europe than in his own country.

He had three Royal Command performances before the British royal family.

Despite his busy and worldly life, he visited Quincy frequently and liked to reminisce on television and radio talk shows about his early years around Boston, including his days as master of ceremonies at the old Salisbury Beach Frolics.

He was in Quincy last year to visit his longtime friend, Eddie Scolamiero, and Miss Bessie Powers, who was his teacher at the Wollaston Grammar School. He also attended Quincy High School.

Billy was interred in the family lot at Mount Wollaston Cemetery where his parents and brother are buried.

A few of the curious gathered there as a cold wind snapped among the gravestones, hoping to catch a glimpse of a possible movie star or TV celebrity. But there were none—just ordinary friends.

In the background, the flag at the Quincy Police Station hung at half-mast in his honor.

The vault cover which was to be placed over the casket when the mourners left, read simply:

Billy DeWolfe
William A. Jones

In a way, despite stardom in the movies, television and nightclubs, and command performances before royalty, he always remained Billy Jones from Quincy.

city, and those who seemed to be acting in good faith in reliance on opinions of its past city solicitors versus the clear contractual rights in the heirs of the original owners of the burial lots, identifiable or not at present."

Mayor Hannon has sought to settle the cemetery dispute through legislation that would vest legal ownership in the person who purchased a reclaimed lot in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery before Dec. 1, 1973.

But the City Council refused to go along with the Mayor's proposal, criticizing it as "skimpy" and questioning its legality.

The Mayor proposed that bodies buried in reclaimed graves that were already occupied be disinterred and reburied in new space created by tearing up roads in the cemetery. Some families have balked at the idea.

City Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia, whose insistence on continuing an investigation of the Cemetery Department brought the Mt. Wollaston irregularities to light, said he doesn't see what a court ruling can do about it.

"The state law seems pretty plain to me," he told The Sun. "It says that a person's right to a cemetery lot is irrevocable and the law was upheld in a 1960 court case.

"I feel any suggestion that would tend to alleviate the problem should be considered on its merits. I'd say Mr. Tobin's idea doesn't add anything new. But I'd like to consult an attorney before making a positive statement.

"We still have a long road to travel to straighten out the legal aspects of this case."

Who's Minding Store?

Powers Wants Both City, MDC Police Protection On QSD

Who's minding the store down on Quincy Shore Drive?

City Councillor Warren A. Powers doesn't think anyone is and he'd like the cooperation of the Metropolitan District Commission in doing something about it.

It started last Friday when MDC Patrolman William Delaney disclosed that "no one is patrolling" Quincy Shore Drive and Furnace Brook Parkway, the two MDC highways in Quincy.

"Quincy thinks we are patrolling and we think they are," Delaney said in testimony before the Urban Affairs Committee on legislation that would allow city police to share jurisdiction over MDC property.

Quincy has such an agreement, entered into a few years ago when there was a drug problem at Wollaston Beach, and, said Delaney, that's the problem. He suggested that the agreement be broken.

Powers thinks not. "I urge you to continue your agreement with the city of Quincy rather than consider breaking it," he said in a letter to MDC Commissioner John W. Sears.

"The shared jurisdiction was arrived at for the increased protection of the lives and safety of the citizens in the city of Quincy along with others who might choose to use the highways and Wollaston Beach.

"Its purpose was not to eliminate the patrols, or for one police department to sit back and wait and see if the areas are patrolled by the other department.

"I suggest that the MDC continue to patrol the MDC highways and Wollaston Beach and look to the Quincy Police for back-up support.

"Eliminating the authority of the Quincy Police Department would substantially diminish the man power available to solve problems that arise on both sides of Quincy Shore Drive.

"During the summer months the Wollaston Beach area becomes extremely crowded, and with the crowds come some unruly persons who disregard the rights of others and show contempt for the enjoyment of others in the recreational facilities at Wollaston Beach.

"The public must be protected from such individuals."

A few years ago, the agreement between the MDC and the city was thought to be necessary when frequenters of Wollaston Beach discovered they could break the law and escape by fleeing into another jurisdiction across the street.

The legislation before the Urban Affairs Committee would extend dual jurisdiction to other cities and towns in the MDC area. Patrolman Delaney was testifying against the bill.

Parts of both Quincy Shore Drive and Furnace Brook Parkway are in Councillor Powers' Ward 5.

MORE THAN 2,500 work seekers showed up Saturday at the Job Fair, sponsored by the South Shore Council for Full Employment in the gym of Quincy Vocational Technical School. The Fair was such a success that Harold Davis, economic development manager of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce said two more may be held this year, one in the summer and one in the fall.

Girl Scouts Cookie Sale

A sure sign of Spring is the announcement of the annual Girl Scout cookie sale in Blue Hill Girl Scout Council.

The sale, coordinated in Quincy by neighborhood Chairmen Mrs. Ruth Johnson and Mrs. Trudy Chludzinski, calls for Junior, Cadette and Senior Scouts to take orders through March 24 with delivery of the cookies in late May.

Although the sale is later than usual this year due to federal economic policies and supply shortages, customers will be getting a better buy. Despite rising costs, the consumer price is still only $1.00 for the large family size box. Varieties include the popular mint, assorted sandwich, butter flavored "shorties", peanut butter sandwich, and chocolate chip 'n nut.

Part of the income from the sale goes into troop treasuries for activities, service projects, trips, camping fees, etc. The remainder of the profits is used by Blue Hill Council for direct benefit to girls through camperships, wider opportunity assistance, camp maintenance, equipment, improvements, etc.

The sale also helps subsidize the council's operating expenses. Although the council is partially supported by the United Way of Mass. Bay and Norwood United Fund, and its own Sustaining Membership Enrollment, these sources are not enough to continue and improve the high quality program that Scouting offers.

Blue Hill Council serves the Dorchester and Neponset Valley districts of Boston and 19 communities to the south and west. It has over 10,000 girls and almost 2,000 adult volunteers.

If you want to buy Girl Scout cookies and no Scouts come to your door, call Mrs. Johnson at 773-0729, Mrs. Chludzinski at 773-5231, or the council office, 472-5960.

Takes Issue With Sun's Editorials On Cemetery

Editor, Quincy Sun:

The Quincy Sun's editorials on the cemetery scandal [2/21 and 2/28/74] show more interest in punishment than solutions, and with personalities rather than issues.

Astute politicians and newspapermen are supposed to keep an ear to the ground to hear the cries of the oppressed. But Quincy's political machine is so powerful that it drowns out the sounds of ordinary citizens.

Councillor LaRaia heard his constituents and aired the stench despite great opposition. Don't blame the bearer of bad news for the problem. He didn't create it. Questioning his motives merely obfuscates the issues.

Disposal of the dead is a vital community function. It demands that public health standards be met, and that the psychological and spiritual needs of the living be dealt with.

What is Quincy to do because of inadequate land for burial? Denuding a forested slope of Blue Hills Reservation Park land is a ghastly error [no matter who made that decision]. It robs all of us of proper drainage patterns and of oxygen, synthesized by trees. It promotes dubious status symbols of filial piety for a few, at the expense of the many.

How can cemetery land be equally redistributed in the future? How can restitution be made to those robbed in the cemetery swindle? Why should the taxpayer be further assessed for such wrong doing?

Special legislation rapidly dispensed by the state is not the answer. It's too easy for our pols to get such help, and it's always paid for by the people. We need democratic slowness so as to properly address the problems.

Meanwhile, where has the Slush Fund money gone? How many were involved in those payoffs? What is the profit of funeral directors from their customers [See FTC study]? Who paid, and how much, and by what means as contributors to the Slush Fund? Who solicited and acted as intermediaries for the "perpetual care fees" that were strangely "not up to date"?

Why should a funeral director not be in conflict on the Oversight Committee? Why should we trust the City Solicitor's opinion when he never came out with the ten objectors to the seating of James Sheets? We would like a little honest candor.

The silence of the clergy is thunderously strange. Why haven't they had eyes to see the patterns of burials when they officiated at Mt. Wollaston? Why haven't they observed the fleecing of individuals within their flocks at the time of death of loved ones? Why is there no open discussion of thanatopsis, cremation, and funeral customs among church memberships?

The ties between certain clergy and city officials, because of elderly housing, are obvious. The tragedy is that age is used for economic advantage to a machine. Older people have gifts to offer and need to be needed, not just entertained and exploited.

Quincy is jeeringly called "The St. Petersburg of the North" by active younger people. The name seems appropriate, for the relatively disproportionate number of federally funded housing projects for the elderly. These "senior citizens" are excessively catered to for their votes. [Look at the way they are bussed and fed at inaugural banquets, for instance, where the food is paid for from school budgeted

Since the aged are actually nearer the grave than youths, they might provide insight for solving the cemetery problem. Most older people have pride and do not wish to be economic burdens for the next generations. Any community must have economic balance and enjoy diversity of all kinds [including ages] to be viable.

If justice is to be promoted, some politicians will have to answer for their misdeeds. Whether the local police or the district attorney are capable of calling local officials to account is another grave question. Hopefully the upper echelons rather than just the "Lt. Calleys" will be indicted.

Somehow, we citizens will muddle through this cemetery crisis. It is our government and we are ultimately responsible for it. So, we'd better clean it up. Eventually, we'll be better off for the ordeal of change.

We are being forced to face issues, to learn what values and truths we are defending, and to make proper use of land. After all, we can't take it with us, nor return from the dead to alter our mistakes. We must leave this world in as good condition as we found it, so that future generations can have a chance to live.

Louise Hatch Meservy
43 Park St., Wollaston

P.S. If Mass. House Bill No. 3103, endorsed by the QCA, could be enacted, neither Arthur Tobin nor Joseph LaRaia would be eligible for the state senate seat. They are both elected municipal office holders. This law might remove personalities from the cemetery scandal.

Billy DeWolfe: Ambassador Of Goodwill

Billy DeWolfe has come home to stay—home to the city he loved and never forgot.

If ever a home town had a roving Ambassador of Good Will, he was it.

Whether he was in Hollywood, on Broadway, in a TV studio or nightclub he was still Billy Jones from Quincy. He was sentimental about his home town and came back frequently.

Wherever his talent took him, he boosted his home town. Some years back, for example, he was starring in John Murray Anderson's revue "Almanac" and the name of an eastern city was needed in the script. He got Quincy inserted three times.

He took great delight in scolding "foreigners" who pronounced it Quin-see instead of Quin-zee. "If they don't pronounce it right, I give them a 20-minute lecture," he once noted.

But he used to laugh when he recalled the time that Don Wilson, Jack Benny's former radio-TV announcer, stopped him cold when they first met.

Wilson asked him where he came from and Billy proudly replied like a one-man Chamber of Commerce: "Quincy, the gateway to Cape Cod."

Wilson looked at him for a moment and said, "A great way to keep what?"

Of course, the fact that Billy was born in Quincy, grew up here and got his show business start here, could make us a bit prejudiced about him.

But even if he had been born in the North Pole and pronounced Quincy Quin-see, you would have had to like and admire him.

By now, everyone knows he started out as an usher at the old Quincy Theater on Hancock St. where Sears Roebuck now stands and just a few feet from The Quincy Sun office.

That was back in the 1920's and the theater in addition to showing silent films also was part of the vaudeville circuit.

It was there that Billy saw his first copy of Variety, the bible of show business, which he used to take to Quincy High School and read it hidden behind a text book during class.

He began imitating and practicing some of the vaudeville acts that played at the Quincy Theater. And he used to cut up so much at school he once recalled he got to know his principal, the late Ernest L. Collins, better than any of the teachers did.

One day, Billy squeezed his belongings into a cardboard suitcase and left his 50-cent-a-show ushering job to try the stage from the footlights side. He borrowed the name DeWolfe from William DeWolfe who was manager of the Quincy Theater.

He started out as a dancer, became a mimic, comic and actor.

His creation, the boozing Mrs. Murgatroyd, soon became a show business classic and we hope that it is preserved somewhere on film for posterity.

We liked and enjoyed him but not because he was a Quincy boy. We liked him because he was a good, clean entertainer. He was never offensive, never insulting, never "sick". He didn't have to be that way because he had real talent. And, he was a gentleman.

Last October, we suggested a "Billy DeWolfe Day" here so that Quincy residents could pay tribute to their Ambassador of Good Will.

It's too late now. We are sorry the idea never materialized. It would have been nice if he could have seen or read the tributes that are being said and written about him this week.

Edward (Red) Lewis

Death has taken another Quincy favorite, Edward T. [Red] Lewis.

He served his native city for 43 years, including the posts of city manager and executive secretary to two mayors. Red knew Quincy like the palm of his hand.

And he loved Quincy. Outside of his family, Quincy truly was his whole life.

He had a setback or two, politically. But two things about him stands out in our mind. In all the time we knew him, we never once saw him really angry. And we never heard him say anything bad about anyone.

He gave a lot to the city in talent. Quincy will miss him. And we will, personally.

Plan Your Garden Now!

The frost will be out of the ground before you know it, says the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture [MDA], and if you're planning a home garden this year you'd best start now to avoid disappointment.

With a predicted shortage of vegetable seeds available to the consumer, the earlier you decide on, and buy your seeds, the surer you'll be of a harvest later on. If you don't have the seed catalogs yet, check with local garden supply or hardware store to see what's available.

Peas are about the earliest vegetable you can plant in these parts, says the MDA, because the plants are quite frost-resistant. You can plant the seeds in early April, because an occasional freeze after that time won't damage them. By the second week in April you can start such commodities as radish, spinach, lettuce, cabbage, cauliflower and kale. Most others, like beans and squash, must wait until all fear of frost is gone — about the middle of May.

The USDA provides a planting calendar for all vegetables, in a handy booklet that's free upon request. "Growing Vegetables in the Home Garden", Home & Garden Bulletin No. 202, may be had with a letter to Information Officer, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

The sap is beginning to run in the sugar maples, as daytime temperatures begin to stay in the 40's, and drop back below freezing at night. A number of maple farms, mostly in central and western Massachusetts, invite visitors to watch the process, and to enjoy "sugar on snow". Car-pool a group on a weekend for an enjoyable time.

For an up-to-date list of maple syrup producers who welcome the public, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to "Maple Farms", c/o Mass. Dept. of Agriculture, 100 Cambridge St., Boston, Ma. 02202.

Southwest Council To Hear Report

The Southwest Community Council will meet Tuesday, March 19, at 7:45 p.m. in the Southwest Community Center, Granite St.

Members will hear reports of recent actions by the Quincy Community Action Organization board of directors and the Quarry St. land issue.

Preparations also will be made for the annual election of officers which will take place in April.

Eaton, Ohio Shares Quincy's Grief In Loss Of Billy DeWolfe

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Eaton, Ohio this week grieves with Quincy over the loss of Billy DeWolfe.

Eaton in recent years became Billy's adopted home town and the folks out there thought as much about him as we here in his native home town.

They got to know each other three years or so ago — over a traffic violation. It was a shaky start but it blossomed into full friendship. Billy was travelling Ohio on I-70 in his white Caddy in 1970 and was stopped for speeding by the Preble County sheriff's office.

"He was pretty ticked off," recalled Dr. John Vosler of Eaton who came on for Billy's funeral Monday.

"They said he was doing 84 miles in a 70-mile zone. It was the first ticket he had ever received and he was pretty upset about it."

Billy shortly afterwards was a guest on the Mike Douglas Show and related the story. He kind of zinged Eaton because that is where the municipal court is located.

The folks out there heard about it. Somebody wrote to Billy about it. And before he knew it, they were inviting him to be their guest at the Preble County Pork Festival. And just to show them he wasn't the type to hold a grudge, he accepted — and showed up.

And, for the past two years the opening day of the festival was named "Billy DeWolfe Day", with a big parade.

"We only have about 5,000 people in Eaton," says Vosler. "But thousands and thousands turned out for the parade to honor Billy."

They made him an honorary citizen, grand marshal of the parade and presented him with a piglet.

"We had one helluva a time," says Vosler. "He was one helluva guy."

Of the half-dozen floral sprays along Billy's casket at the funeral services in Wollaston Baptist Church were ones with cards from: Eaton Retail Merchants Association, City of Eaton, Preble County Sheriff's Office and John and Meri Vosler.

"We loved him," said Vosler.

THE SERVICES were brief both at the church and at Mount Wollaston Cemetery. That was the way Billy wanted it, noted Rev. Charles McEachern, pastor of Wollaston Baptist Church.

Reports from the West Coast indicate that people like Johnny Carson and Doris Day wanted to put on a funeral spectacular out there. But relatives here wanted no part of that.

BING CROSBY telephoned the Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, to inquire about Billy's relatives. He said he "had been up in the mountains" and had only then heard about Billy's death. Crosby, who has been ailing himself, appeared with Billy and Dorothy Lamour in "Dixie" back in the 1940's. Crosby obtained the telephone number of Billy's sister-in-law, Mrs. Barbara Jones of Worcester, and called her to offer his condolences.

ONE OF BILLY'S closest friends here is Eddie Scolamiero, the West Quincy barber, who ushered with him at the old Quincy Theater back in the 1920's.

Whenever Billy came home for a visit which usually was once a year, he always stopped by to see Eddie and chat about the old days.

"I lost a good friend," said Eddie.

He was shocked to hear the news that Billy had died.

"I didn't know he was in the hospital," he said.

Eddie's wife, Ann, had sent Eddie a letter just the week before.

Eddie discloses that Billy was in the hospital just before Christmas. And when he got out, he had two famous nurses looking after him.

One was Doris Day with whom he appeared on TV. The other was — Mae West — who Eddie reports, occupied the apartment above Billy's.

"I'm really going to miss him," says Eddie.

Goodwill Fashion Show At 1000 Southern Artery

Members of the Senior Citizens Center at 1000 Southern Artery, Quincy, will be treated to the popular Morgan Memorial Goodwill Fashion Show Wednesday, March 20 at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Blanche Wellman, program director for the center, said the fashion show to be held in the auditorium, will bring back fond memories of fashions down through the center.

The Southern Artery senior citizens housing complex is the largest residential center in the country. Mrs. Wellman reports, with over 800 residents and 1,500 applicants on the waiting list.

The Goodwill Fashion Parade

was created three and one-half years ago by Mrs. Mildred Churchill of Watertown. She is also the commentator of the show. It is unique because of its rarely-seen styles and because it incorporates the story of Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries, the first Goodwill, into its fashions.

Most of the styles in the Fashion Parade are antiques. Some date as far back as 1800. Most periods are represented up until the present day. The show has everything from highlaced shoes and ostrich-plumed hats to hot pants and midi-coats. A highlight is the display of undergarments from the year 1800.

Parent worried by paperbacks

By WILLARD ABRAHAM
Copley News Service

Q. The paperback books available on the drug store and grocery store shelves are a scandal. I see teen-agers standing around reading them, whispering, giggling, and pointing to particular passages. Our own daughter is 13, and I've absolutely forbid her to hang around those book shelves. She listens to me, and I just wish more parents were as forceful as I am. Don't you agree?

A. Not necessarily. Did you ever hear about "forbidden fruit"? Your ban may work temporarily, but you might be in for a surprise a little later on.

There are more healthful, affirmative approaches — a sound sex education program at school, welcoming open discussions on related subjects at home, and not making a big deal over the x-rated kind of books.

By the way, did your parents' ban on particular books or movies when you were growing up keep you from seeing, talking about or fantasizing about them? I doubt it.

Q. Our baby is 8 months old, and frankly, I'm scared. In fact, I haven't taken him to the doctor for the past three months because I'm terribly worried that something is wrong. He doesn't hold his head steady, and it just seems to wobble an awful lot. Nor does he grab or watch a rattle or ball as I've seen other babies do.

For nearly an hour I sat looking at the sheet of paper on which this letter is being written before I had the courage to write to you. But I think I need help.

A. I wish I could visit with you personally, pack you and the baby into the car, and head for your doctor's office. Sitting around stewing over possible problems certainly doesn't help solve them.

So, right now, call the doctor and tell him you're coming in with your baby. Take your husband, sister, mother or friend with you. Get the answer to this question: Is he all right? If he is, go home and have a happy cry. If he isn't, find out what's wrong and what you can do about it. Time may be important, so don't waste it.

Q. When our 9-year-old girl had her ears pierced, the understanding was that she would wear small, inconspicuous earrings. But now she insists on the long, dangling kind, and they look ridiculous on her. Her friends don't wear earrings like that, and I imagine she got the idea from me. They're the only kind I wear. But, after all, I'm 20 years older, a few feet taller, and 200 pounds heavier. What can I do to stop her silliness?

A. You have a few choices. Ignore it, and it will probably go away, especially if her friends don't share her enthusiasm. Or, insist that if she's to wear any, they should be small and tasteful. Give her a choice of two or three pairs. Or, tone down the example you set.

Ignoring the situation is probably the best approach, but use whatever you think will work best.

(Just a personal aside to you about your 200-plus pounds and your own dangling earrings. Isn't there something you should be thinking about related to your own situation? And if she's copying your earrings, what will she imitate next? Or don't you care?)

COOKING CORNER

New souffles have a gelatin base

By OPAL CRANDALL
Copley News Service

Souffle comes from the French word "souffler," which means to blow or puff up. It can be either an entree or a dessert, both receiving their puffed-up appearance from egg whites.

And now there is a newcomer to the souffle food scene, a dessert which receives its fluffiness from gelatin, as well as from egg whites.

Representatives of this type are Brandy Alexander Souffle, a delicate gelatin-based souffle which is flavored with creme de cacao and brandy, and Frozen Vanilla Souffle. The latter receives its good flavor from the vanilla bean.

FROZEN

VANILLA SOUFFLE

3 eggs, separated
¾ cup sugar, divided
1 4-inch vanilla bean, split
One-sixteenth teaspoon salt
2 packages unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

In the top part of a double boiler combine milk, egg yolks, ½ cup of the sugar, vanilla bean and salt. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until mixture coats a metal spoon, about 10 to 15 minutes. Meanwhile, sprinkle gelatin over cold water; let stand five minutes to soften. Stir gelatin into milk mixture. Chill until soft peaks form; gradually beat in remaining ¼ cup sugar. Beat until stiff but not dry. Fold egg whites and whipped cream into milk mixture. Cut a 20-inch length of waxed paper and fold into thirds lengthwise. Place around a one quart souffle dish to form a collar; secure ends with a paper clip. Spoon souffle mixture into dish, letting it come up above the rim of the dish. Chill until set. When ready to serve, remove paper strip. Garnish with semi-sweet chocolate curls, if desired. Yield: Eight portions.

BRANDY ALEXANDER SOUFFLE

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
2 cups cold water
1 cup sugar
4 eggs, separated
1 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese
3 tablespoons creme de cacao
3 tablespoons brandy
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Softened gelatin in one cup water; stir over low heat until dissolved. Add remaining water. Remove from heat; blend in ¾ cup sugar and beaten egg yolks. Return to heat; cook two to three minutes or until slightly thickened. Gradually add to softened cream cheese, mixing until well blended. Stir in creme de cacao and brandy. Chill until slightly thickened. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually add remaining sugar, beating until stiff peaks form. Fold egg whites and whipped cream into cream cheese mixture.

Wrap a 3-inch collar of aluminum foil around top of a 1½ quart souffle dish; secure with tape. Pour mixture into dish; chill until firm. Remove foil collar before serving. Sprinkle with nutmeg and garnish with candied violets, if desired. Eight to 10 servings.

THE BOTTLE EXPLOSION

The highest number of insurance claims involving household items comes from incidents relating to bottles, according to the National Commission on Product Safety after a three month survey of $45 major insurance companies that write product liability policies.

Total reported claims were 2,582. Injuries from broken bottles were involved in 452 cases. Next highest; 155 claims against makers of beauty aids; third, 112 claims involving stairs.

Many bottle-related injuries were the result of exploding bottles. The glass industry ships over 73 billion [yes, that billion] items each year, so it's not

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS True love may be answer to lying husband problem

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON
Certified Master
Graphoanalyst
Copley News Service

Dear Dorothy:

I love my husband, but I doubt everything he says or does. I know and have proof that he's lied to me on numerous occasions. Should I put all the lies he tells me out of my mind, or are there other measures I can take? I don't want to lose him and yet I don't know from day to day what to expect.

P. G.

Dear P. G.:

Everyone does something for a reason. Could your husband's lying be his defense against being your target?

Take a look at those long rigid beginning upstrokes. You've been used and "put upon" so much by someone, sometime, somewhere, and you refuse to be victimized anymore. Unfortunately, you have come to expect wrongs, injustices, impositions and lies!

You have been so hurt in your past, seen in the large loop, that you are now on the watch for any real or imagined form of rejection. You wouldn't believe praise if you heard it. Your grudges are available to anyone who wants to hear them, seen in the open tops on o, so you spread them to anyone who'll listen.

You are plagued with a nagging suspicion that someone will slip something over on you, and with that far forward slant, you can't help but show it.

Did you ever stop to think that maybe your husband feels that his ground is a little firmer with a lie than with the truth? Trust him! Take him off the carpet. Enjoy truly loving him. You might just find a relaxed loving husband, but ONLY if you relax, too.

STITCHING WITCHERY

crochet on doubleknit

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

How are you on collars? Maybe this little tip will help. When attaching a collar to the neckline, stitch from center back to the left and then from center back to the right.

Keeps the collar from shifting to one side.

Dear Betty: I would like to ask you about crocheting around squares of doubleknit for making quilts, etc. I tried this on several types of knit and simply cannot pierce the fabric to do the crocheting. — Mrs. M. White.

Sounds fantastic! Now, all we have to do is figure out how to do it.

First of all, there is a "residue" on most knits that makes it very difficult to pierce, even with a sewing-machine needle. Perhaps if you laundered the knit and then used a fabric softener, it would make things easier.

Also, choose the "looser" knits that have more space between the threads (no bonded knit), and use the smallest crochet hook you can get by with.

(Maybe some reader somewhere has successfully worked out this problem. If so, I hope she writes.)

Are you working with wool? Be careful. Don't handle it to death. Wool is a bit touchy about being touched, especially when you are steam pressing.

Always use a press cloth, of course, and press on the wrong side whenever possible. Gently lower and raise the iron as you press — do not iron back and forth. Remove the press cloth and allow the wool to cool before moving.

To prevent seam allowances from making ridges on the right side of the wool, place strips of brown wrapping paper (grocery sack) between seam allowance and garment. Then press on the wrong side.

Brownell Backs Stiff Penalty For Crimes Against Elderly

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy) has urged speedy approval for a bill that would increase the penalties for commission of a violent crime on a person more than 62 years of age.

Such legislation, he testified before the Committee on the Judiciary, "has become necessary in light of the rapidly increased number of attacks upon them.

"In the past, senior citizens have told legislative committees that they were 'scared to death over the rising crime rates' and that not only are they afraid to venture out now, but the situation is so bad that they are being attacked in their homes and apartments."

He also reported 49

The department received $135 for plumbing permits and $87 for gas permits. A total of 97 plumbing and 52 gas inspections were made.

Army Engineers Promise To Cut Dredging Noises

Nervous residents of Quincy Point and Germantown can relax.

The Army Corps of Engineers has no intention of doing you out of a good night's sleep while it dredges Weymouth Fore and Town Rivers.

The Corps has assured Ward 1 City Councillor Leo J. Kelly that it is going to study the noise levels expected on the dredging operation for starters.

"The contract documents will specifically direct the contractor to desist from undertaking any operations that could reasonably be expected to prevent the nearby residents from enjoying a peaceful sleep," said Co. Charles J. Osterdorf.

"We are also investigating practical means to reduce sound levels when the contract is in full operation during other periods of the day.

"Realistically, we are unable to eliminate all sounds from this operation, but we are aiming to restrict the periods of high noise levels and further to reduce the levels when the contractor is operating."

Col. Osterdorf, who is deputy New England division engineer, invited Kelly and residents of the area to meet with him after the study has been made and before the bids for the contract go out.

Brett Reiterates Stand Against College Site

Rep. Joseph E. Brett [D-Quincy] has reiterated his stand against the establishment of the proposed South Shore Community College in the Broad Meadows area of Quincy.

"It would not seem sensible to locate the college on the very extreme edge of the [Quincy to Plymouth] district it is to serve," said Brett in a letter to Theodore Chase, chairman of the State Board of Regional Community Colleges.

"The proposed site in Quincy is a sort of dead-end location which means that all traffic to and from the location will have to travel the same roadway going to and leaving from the school.

"This could tend to create some serious traffic problems.

"I would also point out that there is no adequate public transportation system serving the Broad Meadows area other than a neighborhood bus line.

"Another point is that the proposed Quincy location is comprised to a large degree of salt marshes which would tend to result in higher building costs as well as the destruction of a very valuable open space."

Mental Health Center Seeks School Volunteers

The South Shore Mental Health Center seeks volunteers for Memorial School, 574 Main St., South Weymouth.

As the second half of the school year starts, the need for additional help to work with young retarded-multiple handicapped children is great. In order to help each handicapped child reach his fullest potential, he must be given as much individual help as possible. Volunteers will work with the children under the supervision of trained staff members.

Those willing to volunteer are asked to contact Carol Glantz at 335-7372.

Order of Sons of Italy In America

Quincy, Massachusetts

Venerable's Message:

'A Debt Of Gratitude'

JOHN P. BROWN

The year 1924 was a year in which a handful of men in the fast growing city of Quincy decided they wanted to become part of an organization which would not only bring them together for fraternal purposes, but would make them a part of a larger group which represented their origin. And so in the year 1924, Quincy became a part of the Order Sons of Italy in America.

In the past 50 years many proud and determined men have laughed and cried together. They have worked side by side in success and failure. They have known happiness and they have known anger and frustration.

One of the most important things we can be thankful for today is that they never turned their backs or threw in the towel as one might say. And for that kind of determination every one of the 600 members of the Quincy Lodge today owes a never ending debt of gratitude.

The world around us has many ideas but all too often they die or fade away, because those of us who conceive them do not have the courage and determination to fight for them and see them through.

But in the 50-year history of the Quincy Lodge the words quit, give up, it can't be done, were never spoken. There were only words of encouragement: let's give it a try, we'll get together and get it done, I need some volunteers - namely you and you.

The rich heritage we now enjoy is a direct result of all their efforts, and it is essential that we continue on, so that 50 years from now, the members of the Quincy Lodge can be just as proud as we are today.

The first 50 years of the Quincy Lodge is now history. The future depends on thoughts, ideas, courage and - your determination.

It is therefore my esteem pleasure to welcome all of you to the celebration of our 50th Anniversary. May the sun always shine on the Quincy Lodge and the Order Sons of Italy in America, and may you all be blessed with good health and happiness, so that we may look forward to celebrating our 100th Anniversary with all of you.

Congratulations

On Your 50th Anniversary

A Humble Beginning

Quincy Lodge No. 1295 Has Come A Long Way In 50 Years

Quincy Lodge No. 1295, Sons of Italy in America, has come a long way in 50 years.

From a cellar in 1924 to a handsome, modern new home on Quarry St. today. From a handful of members back then to more than 600 members today.

In early 1924, Gaetano Carpano and a group of friends were sitting in that cellar discussing his idea: men of Italian ancestry who have so much in common in their new land should join together to help one another and to enjoy one another's company socially.

Francisco DelVecchio, Luigi DiGravio, Gaetano Principe and Vincenzo Moscardelli who were talking with him agreed. They decided to ask their friends.

By March 31 they had 60 men who wanted to organize under the National Order Sons of Italy in America.

And less than a month later - April 22 - they were presented with a charter under the name of Loggia Roma Intangibile and the number 1295 granted by the Supreme Lodge.

Carpano, appropriately, became the first Venerable. Luigi DiGravio was Assistant Venerable. The other charter officers were:

Pasquale Principe, orator; Vincenzo Moscardelli, financial secretary; Nichola Principe, recording secretary; Francesco DelVecchio, treasurer; Antonios Pestilli, Matteo Cordone, Vittorio Salvaggio, Frederic Mannani and Luciani Luciano, trustees; Nichola Emanuele and Alfredo Moscone, master of ceremonies and Gaetano Principe, sentinel.

Monthly meetings were held in rented quarters in Franklin Hall and Phipps St. Hall. Membership, meanwhile, increased to about 150.

In October, 1927, as mothers, wives and sisters wanted to become active too, Loggia Roma Intangibile sponsored a ladies lodge: Stella del Nord No. 1436 which is very active today.

Meanwhile, the lodge was beginning to hum with activity and its name becoming well known throughout the state. In fact in August, 1930, the Grand Convention was held here in Quincy.

Other highlights down through the years:

- In 1940 the lodge honored Sibby Sisti and Phil Masi of the Boston Bees [remember when the Braves were the Bees] at a Father and Sons Night.

- In 1951, the lodge hosted the Italian cadets from aboard the Amerigo Vespucci while the vessel was visiting Boston.

- The lodge's first newsletter - in English and Italian - made its debut in 1955 headed by Larry Scarnici as editor.

- In 1957, the lodge purchased the South Quincy Bocce Club.

- Columbus Day, 1958 was officially proclaimed a holiday

ORIGINAL CHARTER was granted April 22, 1924 under the name of Loggia Roma Intangibile and the number 1295. The name was changed to Quincy Lodge No. 1295 Nov. 18, 1958.

Liberty, Equality, Fraternity

Upon what principle is our Quincy Lodge No. 1295 based? On the principles of LIBERTY, EQUALITY, and FRATERNITY, and its emblem is a Golden Lion on a white field. The Order intends to unite in one organization all those of Italian birth or descent residing throughout the United States of America having requisites stated in the by-laws. The Order respects the religious, and political opinions of its members but insists upon the conception of God and Country and requires that they do not profess any doctrines tending to disrupt the existing social order by unlawful means.

in Quincy by Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa.

● On Nov. 18, 1958, the name of the lodge was changed from Loggia Roma Intangible to Quincy Lodge 1295.

● A Junior League was started May 21, 1962.

● In January, 1968 there was a "Mortgage Burning" dinner dance for the Furnace Avenue quarters.

● And plans were well underway for a new home. There was a fund-raising drive, a membership drive, site hunting, architect's plans.

And, finally, a gala two-evening celebration Nov. 6-7, 1971 marked the opening of the new home at 120 Quarry St. The first night was for visiting dignitaries and the second for members.

The first business meeting in the new home was held Nov. 8.

Today, the sons of the original founders and the sons of others are working together helping one another and making significant contributions to their community, state and nation.

Today, of course, there are many familiar member names such as Antonelli, Allegrini, Montilio, Losordo, Fabrizio, LaRaia, Raymondi, Frantello, Marella, Mastro, Papagno, DeNicola, DiTullio, DiBona, Fantucchio, Mastrantonio, Avitabile, Barbadoro, D'Arcangelo, Lombardi, Previte, D'Olimpio, Bersani, D'Arcangelo, Buonicino, Salvatore, Rocuzzo, Bellotti, Papile, Fantasia, Repucci, etc.

But Gaetano Carpano and his friends would smile to learn that today's Venerable is named John Brown and there are other members with such names as Anderson, Kelly, Reardon, Hamel, Quinn, Flaherty, Bosworth, Roche, Marshall, McLelland, Rodger, MacDonald, etc.

But really, what is so unusual about Irish, English, Scotch and other such names being members of the Sons of Italy either by marriage to an Italian girl or through mixed marriages down through the years.

After all, the Sons of Italy are also the Sons of America.

3 Father-Son Venerable Combinations

In the 50-year history of Quincy Lodge No. 1295, there have been three father-son Venerable combinations. They are: Domenic and John Allegrini.

Frank and Anthony Bruce. Matteo and Sebastian Papagno.

Mattes and Sebastian Papagno also hold another honor: they are the only known father and son to become Supreme Delegates.

And Sebastian Papagno holds still another honor: he is the youngest ever Venerable, taking office at the age of 22.

Services were held Wednesday for Edward T. [Red] Lewis who rose from an obscure $18 a week job to become city manager of Quincy and executive secretary to two mayors.

St. John's Church, Quincy Center, was thronged with mourners including city and state officials and city employees with whom he was associated during his 43-year municipal career.

Celebrant of the funeral mass was Rev. William R. Carroll. Internment was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery. Funeral arrangements were handled by Sweeney Brothers Home For Funerals, Independence Ave., Quincy.

Mr. Lewis, who lived at 56 Endicott St., South Quincy, died Sunday at Quincy City Hospital after a brief illness. He was 68. He retired in 1968 at which time he was executive secretary to then Mayor James R. McIntyre. Prior to that he served Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa in the same capacity.

As a boy, McIntyre delivered newspapers to Mr. Lewis' home.

Mr. Lewis began his municipal service career as an $18 a week roadman in the city engineer's office in 1925. He then served 20 years in the water department, 13 as office manager.

In 1953, three years after Quincy adopted Plan E, City Manager William J. Deegan hand picked him as his administrative assistant and "right arm."

He was retained by Donald M. Blatt who succeeded Deegan. When Blatt left in 1956, the City Council elected Mr. Lewis as city manager to serve until Jan. 1, 1958 when Quincy returned to the strong mayor Plan A form of government. When Della Chiesa became mayor, Mr. Lewis became his executive secretary.

Mr. Lewis was a past exalted ruler of the Quincy Lodge of Elks. The lodge held services for him Tuesday night at the Sweeney Brothers Funeral Home.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Patricia H. [Condon] Lewis; a son, Edward T., Jr. of Saugus; two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Healey of Lynn and Mrs. Katherine Kennerson of Springfield and two grandchildren.

There are many tributes this week from city and state officials.

One was Mayor Walter J. Hannon who said:

"I was deeply saddened to hear of the death of 'Red' Lewis.

"I came to know and respect Red when he was Executive Secretary to former Mayor Della Chiesa in my first year as a City Councilor. His knowledge of Quincy and the working of city government was an invaluable service to a freshman Councilor.

"Red served his city well and was respected and admired by all who knew him, both in his private and public life.

"I extend my deepest sympathy to his wife, Patricia, and his family."

Other tributes: Senator-City Council President Arthur H. Tobin, speaking for the entire City

"Red Lewis" reached the pinnacle of his career on becoming chief executive officer of the City of Presidents.

"This epitomized the story of the local boy, an employee of the water department to city manager under Plan E where he shared his love and compassion for his fellow man. His active and wise counsel to all the city councilors will be long remembered and deeply cherished."

Former mayor Della Chiesa: "As far as I am concerned, I have lost a wonderful friend, a man I will always remember as a real, true public official.

"He was a man who loved the city - always wanted to do the right thing. He certainly was honest and tried to help everyone who had a problem concerning the City of Quincy. He was a good family man, and I extend my sympathies to his wife and their son and grandchildren."

Former mayor McIntyre:

"He was an extremely affable man who virtually loved everybody in the city. His entire life was the City of Quincy and the people in it. He was a true example of how a young man can rise within city government from the lowest to the highest position, that of managing the city under Plan E.

"He was conscientious and truly interested in the total welfare of the community."

MONEY TALKS

Let's Get It Straight About Insurance Of Accounts

By Philip J. Lawrence
President

COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Holbrook
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursday

Every now and then it becomes necessary to call attention to the big lie that keeps repeating itself about insurance of accounts in savings and loan associations.

The big lie usually states 1) that insurance of savings in S&Ls is not as good as in banks or 2) that in the event of an S&L's default it may take as long as 10 years to get your money back.

Some bankers like to encourage the big lie. Newspaper columnist Martha Patton reported that she even heard it from a Federal Reserve System banker. We were once asked by a bank officer how we could conscientiously advise a widow to deposit her life savings with us when it could take her as long as 10 years, etc.

Let's take up the first part of the big lie, that banks' insurance is better than S&Ls'. The two Federal agencies which provide insurance of accounts to qualified institutions were established by Act of Congress in 1934. One is the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation [for S&Ls]; the other is the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation [for banks].

The wording in the United States code providing for insurance settlement under the FSLIC and FDIC is practically identical. The amount of protection is the same [up to $20,000]. So much for the first part of the big lie.

Now for the second part: In both agencies, payment of each insured account in a defaulted institution is directed to be made "as soon as possible". In both agencies, payment is to be made either in cash or by a transferred account into another institution of the same kind in the same community.

According to Frank Evans, FSLIC chief of insurance settlement in Washington, D.C., in the entire 39-year history of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation there have been 19 cases of default among more than 4,000 member institutions.

In each one of these 19 cases, every single savings depositor who submitted his application as requested received all of his insured savings in cash [by check] within ten days to three weeks of the default.

The option of transferring the insured account to another association instead of making outright payment has never been applied, Evans reports.

No saver protected by Federal insurance of accounts, whether in the FSLIC or FDIC, has ever lost a penny.

We suggest you clip this column and save it, because one of these days someone is going to approach you and ask if you know that it might take as long as ten years....

Sterling Wins Junior City Wide Wrestling Tourney

The increasing interest in junior high school wrestling in the city was evidenced last week when more than 700 witnessed the city-wide championship tournament.

More than 500 watched the finals Saturday afternoon at the Quincy YMCA after about 200 viewed the preliminaries Friday at North Quincy High.

"Every aspect of the tournament was a tremendous success," said Carmen Mariano, a Sterling teacher who pioneered the sport in the junior high schools two years ago and who coached Sterling until this year when he received a leave of absence from the school system to finish graduate studies at Harvard.

"The cooperation I received from the Quincy YMCA, Mr.

Leone's [Carl] office and the other junior high coaches was gratifying. The enthusiasm shown by the large number of spectators as well as the calibre of wrestling left little doubt that wrestling has indeed arrived as a schoolboy sport in Quincy."

Mariano, who assisted Sterling Coach Steve Joyce this year when he had no classes, also was impressed with the knowledge of the fans and their open appreciation of the talent and good sportsmanship consistently displayed by the contestants.

"Both Quincy and North Quincy High schools are due to add wrestling next year and there is every reason to believe that their teams will be fed a strong nucleus of experienced wrestlers by our junior high program," Mariano added.

The woman who was sent in to replace John Havlicek

Our story begins the day we at Dial Finance approached John Havlicek and asked him to endorse our company.

Naturally, John wanted to know more about Dial before he agreed to the endorsement. So we arranged a little experiment.

Without alerting any Dial personnel, we had John call several of our offices with questions concerning loans—interest rates, monthly payments, etc. In every case, John's questions were answered promptly, directly and courteously. Nobody gave him a sales pitch. Or pressured him. Or even asked his name. Not once!

Needless to say, John was impressed. He began seeing that Dial was a different kind of finance company.

Next, to illustrate another dimension of Dial service, we told John about our unique Best Buy Shopping Service, a free, no-obligation way to become a better informed shopper. We explained to John that every Dial office was equipped with a library of respected consumer publications. And that everybody was invited to stop in, browse through the publications and take down information on a whole spectrum of consumer products ranging from toasters to automobiles. The Best Buy Shopping Service details data on brand features, performance, reliability and discount prices. What's more, while John was comfortably seated, absorbing facts, he could rest assured that he wouldn't be rushed or pressured or even approached.

But John made the point that if he stopped in at a Dial office, he would probably be recognized. So the test might not be a fair one. Point well taken. However, he suggested that his wife, Beth (the woman in the picture), go in his place. She did. And here's what she reported:

"As I walked into the Dial office, a pleasant young woman smiled and said 'hello.' I told her that I wanted to use the Best Buy Shopping Service and took a seat at the Consumer Library desk. The woman asked if I'd like a pencil and paper to jot down notes and I said 'yes.' Then I went through the publications for a full hour. Nobody ever bothered me.

"By the way, since John loves to go fishing, I had been planning on buying him some new tackle. The library proved invaluable in providing me with information on fishing equipment. In fact I made up my mind about the specific equipment I wanted to get... and the price I should be paying for it.

All in all, I'd say it was an extremely pleasant and useful experience. I had no idea any finance company has these kinds of services.

"We hope that, like Beth Havlicek, you avail yourself of the Dial Best Buy Shopping Service. Or let Dial help you any way. We want to prove to you that we don't want your business. We want your respect."

Visit John's Radio City office at 32 W. Main Street, Boston, or approach a Dial office. Phone 867-0000 for the BEST BUY Shopping Service. Or call Boston East Street office, phone 553-9420. Or Dial offices: 4 days/week, Bellerica Lynn Malden Walpole.

Rag Dolls Bowl High

In the quarter finals of the 19th Annual South Shore Women's Candlepin Bowling Tourney held Sunday afternoon at the Merry Mount Daylight Alleys, the Rag Dolls bowled high team pinfall for the day to defeat the Woodshooters 1533-1385.

The Highnooners eliminated the Keglerettes 1483-1419, and the Women Merchants ousted the defending champion Weymouth Landing team 1471-1424.

The Koch Club sponsored event will match the Highnooners against the Women Merchants next Sunday afternoon at 1 p.m. in the Tourney semi-finals. The winner will meet the Rag Dolls March 24, in the championship match. The Rag Dolls gained a berth into the finals Sunday, by bowling the days high team pinfall, resulting in a bye from next Sundays semi-final activity.

The Rag Dolls jumped off to a 54-pin first string lead over the Woodshooters, largely on the performance of Gail Dillion's 128, and Leslie Levine's 112; while Marie Tidwell chipped in a 101.

In the second string the same three bowlers reversed their position, but again led the way for another 517 score, identical with their first.

Although the Woodshooters improved their third string score, they were no match for the Rag Dolls who captured the third string for a sweep, and a 148 pin Tourney victory.

Gail Dillion and Marie Tidwell shared top honors for the winning Rag Dolls as each posted a 332, Leslie Levine followed close behind with 321, while Lou Wilson with 278, and Flo Scappettou 270 rounded out the team scoring for the victors.

Kathy Kaberides was top for the losing Woodshooters with 295, Sandy Gauvrea had 284, and Pat Lowe 273.

The Highnooners in their third consecutive steady tourney performance, ran up a 37 pin first string lead over the Keglerettes, and although the losers won the second string by 7 pins, the Highnooners seemed undaunted as they roared on to capture the third string by 34 pins, and notch their third tourney win with a 64 pin victory.

Jini Seaver, tourney top scorer for the Highnooners, led her team again with 313, and was aided by Connie Mele 299,

The Keglerettes had a triple tie for top spot in a losing cause as Bonnie Damore, Elaine Brodie, and Dot Cappola bowled 288 each, while Norma Martin posted a 278, and Pat Chiavari 277.

The Women Merchants rolled up a 42 pin first string lead over Weymouth Landing, found themselves in a 477 second string tie, and edged the losers by five pins in the last string. When the results were in the first string, proved the big one for Women Merchants and a 47 pin quarter final triumph.

Bev Putnam topped the Women Merchants with 320, was assisted in the win by Edna Walker 307, Noreen Mastroianni 296, and Terry Spencer 291.

Claire Foy with 318 was high for losing Weymouth Landing, while Hallie Parziale garnished a 300; and Marie Leahy 297.

The championship team members will receive individual trophies, and a $50 team prize from the Koch Club Tourney sponsor. Trophies will also be awarded for high tourney average, high individual three string total, and high single string.

Simmy Koch's Team Paces

Simmy Koch's team holds a substantial lead in the second half of the Koch Club Women's Bowling League with 52 wins and 20 losses. Her team mates are Anne Moody, Helen Giachetti, Barbara Lombardi and Debbie Lichtenberg.

Mary Ellen Lorizio's team and Barbara Sayers team are tied for second place in the standings with 40 wins and 32 losses each.

Capt. Helen Flynn's team won the first half aided by team members Gerry Delmonico, Fran Darcy, Ellen McAdam, and Margaret Ghetti.

Top ten bowlers in the average department of the league are: Rosemary Earley 96.36, Helen Flynn 96, Linda Koch 95.31, Mary Ellen Lorizio 95.13, Simmy Koch 94.4, Betty Ann Koch 93.29, Marion Tobin 93.18, Nancy Bowes 92.64, Barbara Lombardi 92.42, and Jeannine Hulak 91.15.

Linda Koch holds most spares with 101; while Gerry Delmonico and Mary Ellen Lorizio have a tie for strikes with 18 each.

In January, oil suppliers raised the average price of fuel oil used by your electric company to $9.70 a barrel. We had no alternative but to pay this price in order to keep our customers supplied with electricity.

This increase in fuel prices by our oil suppliers has resulted in a 67% increase in the fuel adjustment charge on your electric bill. It is the reason why your current bill is so much higher.

It is important for you to know that every cent of the fuel adjustment charge on your electric bill is paid directly to our fuel suppliers. We do not retain any of this amount.

Our Average Cost for Residual Fuel Oil

Since the beginning of the fuel crisis last Fall, the fuel adjustment charge which goes directly to our fuel suppliers has gone up 300%. However, in the past year, your basic electric rate has gone up by only 6%.

We do not like these increased costs any more than you do. However, like all utilities, we have no choice but to pass the added fuel cost along to you. At present prices, the total increased cost of oil to our System would amount to over $176,000,000 (176 million) a year. This is more than 4 times as much as our annual net earnings. Our earnings, which are limited by regulatory commissions, are the minimum amount needed to keep our company financially sound so we can provide our customers with reliable service.

We are doing all that we can to reduce our costs and to lower your electric bills by making the most efficient use of the fuel we now use and by converting to coal at those generating plants where coal can be used. Coal is somewhat cheaper and certainly more available than oil.

We do not completely accept the present high prices we must pay for residual fuel oil in order to keep you supplied with electricity. We have sent telegrams to both the Internal Revenue Service and the Federal Energy Office requesting an investigation into some of the extremely high prices we have had to pay for residual fuel oil shipments. These shipments were arranged by the Federal Energy Office. We also will continue to shop for lower fuel prices.

At present, we cannot predict when or how much fuel costs will come down. However, be assured that we are doing all that we can to keep our costs down and your electric bill as low as possible under these very difficult circumstances. Your understanding and cooperation will be most appreciated by all of our employees.

Dr. Walter Wrigley of Wollaston, chairman of the church's Board of Governors, and Rev. John R. Graham, minister, will present certificates of recognition to those who have been members of the church for 40 years or more. Those who have been members for 50 years or longer will receive special recognition.

Those who have belonged to the church for 25 to 39 years will have their names read at the dinner. Miss Amelia Linnell, now living in Falmouth, who joined the church in January of 1906, has been invited to attend the dinner. Miss Linnell has been a member longer than anyone in the parish at the present time.

During the dinner a slide show on "The Life of the Parish" will be shown. Over the past year Anthony Fiorentini, Dale Wickberg and Rev. Graham have been taking pictures of people and activities.

Mrs. Eliot Sargent is in charge of the dinner arrangements and Mrs. Ripley Keating is chairman of the Hostess Committee.

'African Foreign Policies' South Shore UN Council Topic

"African Foreign Policies" will be discussed at the March 14 meeting sponsored by the United Nations Council of the South Shore at 8 p.m. in the parish hall of the Church of the Presidents, Quincy Square.

Judith R. Dushku, Assistant Professor of Government, Suffolk University will be the speaker.

Professor Dushku has said she believes that anyone interested in the United Nations need to know about the foreign policy goals of African states, because the African countries form the largest bloc of nations in the Third World, and it is the Third World Countries which numerically dominate the United Nations.

Because the composition of the U.N. has changed greatly since it began, the U.S. has lately had to rethink its policy toward that organization, which is another reason why concerned Americans should be informed about African policies.

The meeting ends with a question period. It is open to the public, admission free, but there is a charge for a dinner preceding it at 7 p.m.

History and Chairman of the History Department at St. John's Seminary, Brighton, for 15 years. He also has been Chaplain, Catholic Graduates Club, Associate Pastor of St.

'Substance' Christian Science Church Lesson-Sermon

The Lesson-Sermon Sunday at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St., Quincy, Sunday is on "Substance". It reveals the battle now being waged in the minds of men as to what is truly enduring and substantial in life. Included is Christ Jesus' parable about the buyer who went searching for fine pearls; and having found one of great value, he sold everything he had in order to possess it. The secret lies in The Golden Text from 11 Timothy: "The Lord give thee understanding in all things."

George B. McDonald Candidate For Sheriff

George B. McDonald, 51, former Quincy City Councillor now serving his second elected term as Norfolk County Commissioner, announces his candidacy for Sheriff.

In 1970 McDonald received the largest plurality vote of candidates for City Councillor At-Large and in 1972, after serving 12 years voluntarily retired from the Council to devote his time to the office of County Commissioner.

McDonald, a Democrat, presently heads the Norfolk County Regional Solid Waste Program, and is currently working with representatives of the 27 towns and one city in Norfolk County to help them alleviate what he calls the No. 1 problem facing these communities.

McDonald, in a statement declared, "I fully realize the tremendous challenge the office of Sheriff presents. I am cognizant of the current programs initiated by the present Sheriff which must be continued and even expanded. Programs which will give both the inmates an opportunity for useful rehabilitation, and the taxpayers of Norfolk County full dollar value for every dollar spent.

"Having worked on the Sheriff's office budget as well as those of the House of Correction and Jail for the past six years, I am fully aware of the administrative responsibility each budgetary item represents.

It has been part of my duty as a Norfolk County Commissioner to approve by signature all daily expenditures incurred in the operation of the Sheriff's department.

"Because of this invaluable experience, I realize what a tremendous challenge is involved in the office of Sheriff of Norfolk County. I feel ready to face this responsibility and have communicated with my Norfolk County area co-ordinators informing them of my total commitment in seeking the office of Norfolk County Sheriff, and to use my experience and knowledge to continue the fine operation of this office."

McDonald lives at 133 Grove St., Quincy with his wife, the former Sheila Mahony of Killarney, Ireland. They have three daughters.

He attended Quincy schools and the University of California.

He is a member of Ave Maria Council, Knights of Columbus Morrisette Legion Post, Quincy Lodge of Elks, Board of Directors, South Shore Cerebral Palsy, Montclair Men's Club, Norfolk County Sheriff's Associates, Inc. A disabled veteran of World War II, he served in the Army three and a half years in the Pacific.

A County Commissioner since 1968 he is a trustee, Braintree Norfolk County Hospital and Walpole Norfolk County Agricultural School.

Brownell Opposes Gas Co. Rate Increase

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell has added his voice to the opposition against the Boston Gas Co.'s request for an emergency rate increase of $6.2 million.

"In these times our people are being forced to incur financial sacrifices," he said in a letter to DPU Chairman Robert Meade, "there is no legal justification for utilities to be placed in any special class."

Citing a federal court case in which it was held that regulatory commissions such as the DPU are bound only by the "test of reasonableness" in setting rates, Brownell said:

"I believe it is patently unreasonable for utilities (which are legalized monopolies) to incur advertising expenses in their rates.

"I urge your agency to apply the test of reasonableness and resist all efforts to extract any more money from beleaguered consumers."

$70,343 For Squaw Rock

Quincy has been awarded a grant of $70,343 in federal funds to help in the acquisition of the 15-acre Squaw Rock in Squantum from the city of Boston, Congressman James A. Burke (D-Milton) has announced.

The funds from the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation of the Department of Commerce, will be used for the development of a recreation area including landscaping, picnic tables, benches, fireplaces, fencing and walks.

The total cost of acquiring and developing the Squaw Rock recreation area will be $130,000. Final purchase papers are expected to be signed in a couple of weeks.

No Word On When Negotiations To Resume

Union Says Shipyard Strike To Last 'As Long As Management Wants It To'

By TOM HENSHAW

Arthur Batson stood just inside the door to Joe's Lunch across East Howard St. from the main gate to General Dynamics Shipyard, which the old timers still call Fore River.

He wore a red helmet, the kind construction workers wear when they might be hit on the head by falling objects but he wore it mostly so he could be located quickly in a crowd. He needed a shave.

Around him in Joe's Lunch, striking shipyard workers and Quincy police mingled over cups of coffee. Across the street, at the main gate, some 15 or 20 pickets walked slowly in an oval, watched by a knot of police officers.

"It's going to last as long as they want it to," said Batson, who is president of Local 5 of the Shipbuilding Workers Union which struck Fore River Saturday [March 16] at midnight.

"No, there aren't any negotiations going on now. We've told the company we're ready when they're ready. They've been saying all over TV that they're ready but they won't say it to me."

And the group of men who gathered quickly to see what the reporter with the drooping mustache was writing in his notebook nodded their agreement.

It was early Tuesday afternoon. Quiet time. The excitement was over for the day.

Earlier, management and the police had staged their "push" to get supervisory personnel into the yard.

"Quite a few got in," said one striker. He didn't sound very upset about it. "Thirty guys, 90 cops, what can you do?"

"Don't get me wrong," he added. "The Quincy cops are great. Not like them Braintree cops. They'd just as soon club you as look at you."

One minor gate to the yard is

Quinn Sees $1.87 Million Budget Cut By City Council

The City Council may trim as much as $1.87 million out of Mayor Walter J. Hannon's $6.256 million budget for fiscal 1974-75.

"We're shooting for a 3 per cent overall cut," said City Councilor John J. Quinn, chairman of the Finance Committee, which opened hearings on the budget Saturday.

The Finance Committee, which is made up of all nine members of the Council, chopped $7,457 out of the Mayor's budget requests for most of those departments grouped under the heading of General Government.

The big losers to the Finance Committee's scissors were Workmen's Compensation, which lost $5,000, and Election and Voter Registration, which was cut by $1,500. Both divisions are under the City Clerk.

City Clerk John M. Gillis, whose request for $157,083 for election and registration was chopped to $123,373 by the Mayor and now to $121,873 by the Council, said he might have to ask more money for the November election.

Central Accounting was trimmed by $575 to $64,591; the Auditor's Department lost $232 to $45,713; and the Payroll Division felt the knife to the tune of $150, down to $30,246.

Hearings on the budgets of the Personnel Department and Civil Service were postponed so that the department heads could discuss their requests again with the Mayor.

The hearings will resume Saturday at 10 a.m. in the Council Chamber of City Hall, at which time the divisions that fall under the classification of Public Safety will be taken up.

They are: Civil Defense, Police, Animal Control, Harbor Master, General Services, Fire, Fire Alarm, Building Inspector, Wire Inspector, Plumbing and Gas Inspector and Weights and Measures.

Quinn invited any citizen of Quincy with a question on the budget to submit it in writing to his ward councillor or a councillor-at-large so that it can be put to a department head at the hearing.

Cite Lack Of Activities

Teen Council Appeals

To Parents To Help Curb JD

The South-West Teen Council says it has found "a clear lack of activities for teenagers" which it believes to be a major factor in the high rate of juvenile delinquency in the area.

The group said there is a need for a drop-in center and for the involvement of interested parents and other adults if delinquency is to be curbed.

An open meeting for teenagers, parents and other adults is set for Sunday at 7 p.m. at the South-West Community Center, 372 Granite St.

With or without adult help, the council said it is reaffirming its commitment to organizing programs for teenagers in Southwest Quincy.

In a progress and evaluation report released this week, the council declared:

There is a clear lack of activities for teenagers in the South and West areas of Quincy.

This is a major factor involved in the high rate of juvenile delinquency in the area.

We therefore reaffirm our commitment to organizing programs for teenagers in South West Quincy.

In evaluating our past programs, we conclude that:

The Rent-A-Kid Program has been highly successful. Many area teenagers have been placed in jobs. This has instigated a city-wide Rent-A-Kid program which can be very successful if high visibility is maintained.

Great interest has been shown by area teenagers for dances. Our dances have attracted large numbers. However, a small number of teenagers have abused dances in the past, at the expense of those sincerely interested teenagers.

Movies haven't sparked much interest, particularly when considering the cost factor.

There is a great interest in and need for a drop-in center. Renovation problems will first have to be overcome.

Continuing, the Council said: "In evaluating our work, we have concluded that by working in a vacuum, only with teenagers, we can only cover up problems rather than solve problems.

Namely, juvenile delinquency can not be curbed without the interested involvement of parents and other adults. As long as these people can't relate to teenagers and or don't know or care what the teenagers are indulging in, we can not expect to reach our goals.

We therefore call upon all interested adults [clergy, police, school personnel, etc.] particularly parents to join in with us in trying to improve the plight of teenagers in South West Quincy. To this end, we are calling for an open meeting with both adults and teenagers to be held on Sunday, March 24, 1974 at 7 p.m. at the South-West Community Center, 372 Granite St. Anyone interested in working with us, but who can't make this meeting can leave

Quarry 'Death' Grout Pile May Be Removed

The long standing problem of the grout pile at Swingle's Quarry, West Quincy, where two young climbers lost their lives in a rock slide last December, may be nearing a solution.

Public Works Commissioner James Ricciuti is negotiating with two construction firms to remove the pile for use in projects they have undertaken around the state.

A representative of J. F. White Co., toured the quarry area last week to see if the type of stone would be acceptable on jobs the company is doing for the state.

"Since the rock doesn't sell for very much and it would be expensive to move, it appears that the best deal would be to swap it off," said Ricciuti.

He also said warning signs will be erected in the quarry area when good weather arrives.

South-West Teen Council Seeks Help From Parents

their name with us at the South-West Community Center,
471-0796.

There are three specific areas where we hope a combined group like this can work:

- Continuing to sponsor activities for teenagers such as dances, but with more adult supervision.

- Closing the communication gap between adults and teenagers through discussion groups and related programs which could touch on alcohol, drugs, careers, etc.

- Setting up programs to deal with troubled youth. Namely comprehensive programs which would receive input from teenagers, parents, clergy, police, school personnel and others.

Rather than saying our efforts in the past have been successes or failures, we believe that our efforts have educated us greatly.

We have recognized, that juvenile delinquency is a complex problem. We therefore call upon all interested adults in the area as well as more interested teenagers to join with us in improving conditions for at-risk teenagers.

During last summer, various adults in South-West Quincy complained to the staff at the South-West Community Center of the trouble that area teenagers were causing.

In addition, various teenagers complained about the lack of things to do. As a result of the above complaints, the Director of the South-West Community Center, a neighborhood youth corps worker, and a teenager from the neighborhood decided to form a Teen Council.

The intent of the Council was to plan programs by and for teenagers and as a result decrease juvenile delinquency in the neighborhood.

The South-West Teen Council is open to any teenager living in South or West Quincy.

Squaw Rock To Get Major Sprucing Up

The 15-acre Squaw Rock site in Squantum will get a major sprucing up before it is turned over to Quincy by Boston.

Richard J. Koch, executive director of the Quincy Park-Recreation Board, is looking for volunteers to pitch in and help this Saturday in the all-day cleanup starting at 10 a.m.

Members and equipment for the 187th Army Reserve Headquarters at Merrymount Park and Company C, Massachusetts National Guard stationed at the Quincy Armory, will be on hand to help.

"Any boy scouts or girl scouts or any other groups interested are welcome to give us a hand," said Koch.

The area will be officially turned over to Quincy by Boston at ceremonies at the site March 31.

Quincy has sought the area for more than 20 years.

Because it is located in Quincy and owned by Boston, it presented a policing problem and a headache to residents because of noise and drinking parties there.

Congratulations, Sons Of Italy

Quincy Lodge 1295, Sons of Italy in America, is celebrating its 50th anniversary.

It has been a half-century of progress, accomplishment and brotherhood.

The lodge was founded in 1924 by a handful of men who came to this country — this land of promise — from their native Italy.

Its beginning was a humble one traced back to a cellar in a Quincy home where Gaetano Carpano and a few friends decided to organize, because they had so much in common in their new land and felt they should join together to help one another and to enjoy one another's company socially.

Today, the lodge is located in a handsome modern building on Quarry St. Membership is over 600 and the goal is 1,000.

Those of Italian ancestry and those married into Italian families, can well be proud of the significant contributions made to their community, state and nation.

A few Quincy names of Italian ancestry come to mind: Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, Police Chief William Ferrazzi, City Councilors William Papile, Joseph LaRaia, Albert Barilaro, School Committeeman and Paul Marini, Daniel Raymondi in public service. And there are many who have become lawyers, teachers, principals, doctors, or have been successful in other professions and business.

The Italian people today are still warm hearted, close knit families who respect and care for their parents and love and help one another.

They have known what it is to work and sweat and unfortunately to have been jeered at. But they picked themselves up by their own bootstraps to overcome prejudices and to leave their mark in success.

The Sons of Italy today are also the sons of America. As patriotic as anyone who can trace his ancestry to the Mayflower.

Congratulations Quincy Lodge 1295, for 50 fruitful years. And may your next 50 be even better.

Streaking: It's How You Look At It

Streaking, as most people who have spoken out on the subject believe, is nothing but a little harmless good natured fun.

No more harmful than when the kids were gulping live gold fishes, cramming themselves into telephone booths or swiping co-eds' panties.

And, besides, according to what seems to be the big stock argument in its favor, "it's a lot better than having the kids rioting."

Well, if you follow that last argument to a logical conclusion the next fad could very well be sexual intercourse at high noon on Hancock St. And there would be those standing by looking on and saying, "Well, it's better than rioting."

Streaking isn't really anything new. It has been with us down through the years only they used to call it indecent exposure. Every full moon the police department would gird itself for the nitwits running around half-dressed or without a stitch on.

Whether streaking is harmless fun or something to get a bit concerned about boils down to how you look at it — no pun intended.

For example, if you are sitting home in Quincy watching TV and there's a brief newscast of someone streaking in Cambridge [with the camera carefully showing a posterior view only] you might find yourself smiling.

But would you laugh some night if a few of these bare bottom boys streaked up to your wife, mother, daughter or sister?

It's probably just a fad that will soon fade away if squares like us ignore it. Frankly we hope it streaks away.

Meanwhile, however, maybe we should grin and bare—eh—bear it. But if those who cannot resist streaking expect us to be good sports about it, then they should be good sports, too.

If they are caught without their clothes on, they should be brought into court that way, too.

And maybe the judge could smile a little and sentence them to stand in the corner.

A few minutes of that and they would be begging for their clothes.

- White House Kamikaze Threat

- Wholesale Food Prices Drop But . . .

(Copyright, 1974, by United Feature Syndicate.)

WASHINGTON — The Secret Service is preparing secret defenses to prevent a maniac from crashing a plane into the White House. The threat from the sky is a new and ominous development.

First, a Fort Meade, Md., serviceman, who washed out of flight school, absconded with a helicopter and headed toward the White House. Secret Service officers feared he was going to crash into the executive mansion. Instead, he landed on the White House lawn in a hail of shotgun fire.

Then an unemployed Philadelphia salesman, Sam Byck, attempted to hijack an airliner in Baltimore. Only later did the world learn, from a tape recording Byck sent me, that he had planned to crash the big jet into the White House.

This combination of events sent the Secret Service scurrying to devise some means of protecting the President from kamikaze missions. One proposal was to arm the White House police with "Red Eye" missiles. These are anti-aircraft weapons which can be fired from the shoulder, heat-seeking missiles which would zip up the tail pipe of an oncoming plane.

Contrary to press reports, the Secret Service has rejected this solution. For "Red Eye" missiles might miss the target and zoom up the tail pipe of a commercial jet landing at Washington's nearby National airport. The missiles might even destroy jets warming up on the landing strip.

The Secret Service, therefore, has now adopted a different sophisticated defense which, for the sake of the President's security, should not be described.

Nixon Blew It: Saudi Arabia is rich enough in oil that it alone could have broken the back of the Arab oil embargo long ago. King Faisal might even have been willing to resume shipments of oil to the United States unilaterally. But President Nixon, eager to offer some good news to a Watergate-weary nation, embarrassed Faisal by predicting the end of the embargo prematurely.

Last December, Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani, with the king's concurrence, promised that Saudi Arabia would do all it could to end the oil embargo. But U.S. Ambassador James Akins cabled from Saudi Arabia that the offer must be kept strictly secret for the sake of Saudi relations with militant Arab neighbors. I saw the exchange of secret messages during my recent visit to the Middle East.

But the President ignored Akins' warning and predicted an early end to the boycott. The Arab world knew that the President could have gotten this word only from Saudi Arabia. It made King Faisal look as if he were playing Washington's game and reduced his effectiveness in urging moderation upon the Arab militants.

The king, therefore, felt he could no longer push for ending the embargo, without appearing to be a lackey of the United States. As a result, he soft-pedaled his efforts to end the embargo and the militants for a while, got the upper hand inside the Arab oil meetings. King Faisal, rather than jeopardize his position in the Arab world, does not want to take unilateral action to lift the boycott.

Tax Tactics: Many Americans, apparently, are determined to pay less taxes this year. They figure that if President Nixon can get away with paying negligible taxes on a $250,000 annual income, they are going to do the same.

I have made spot checks with several tax accountants across the country. They tell me they have been bombarded with demands from taxpayers for assistance in figuring how to avoid paying taxes. Other taxpayers have written to the Internal Revenue Service, threatening to withhold their full taxes. Invariably, the angry taxpayers have cited President Nixon's tax returns as justification for shortchanging the government this year.

The President claimed a $576,000 tax deduction for donating his vice presidential papers to the government. There is now evidence that the claim was based on a fraudulent document — a backdated deed which actually wasn't prepared until after the legal deadline had passed. The President also sought tax deductions for every possible trivial item from wedding gifts to funeral sprays. He even wanted to count his support payments to his daughter Julie as a salary and, thereby, deduct it from his taxes. But his tax advisers talked him out of it by warning the story probably would leak out.

The United States depends upon a volunteer tax system, the most successful in the world, to finance the government. This volunteer system is in danger of breaking down if the public loses confidence in its fairness.

Gentlemen's Agreement: America's "horn of plenty" has seemed a little empty this year. We have suddenly awakened to find ourselves short of gasoline and paper products. Now the food supply is getting tight.

This is reflected in the price of food, which has continued a steady climb. But unlike oil, the price of some foods has been dropping at the source. Yet the drop in wholesale prices hasn't caused the slightest dip at the supermarket.

Beef on the hoof is three dollars cheaper now than it was a year ago. But have beef prices gone down? No. Pork is also down on the wholesale market as is poultry and butter. But, in most cases, the consumer gets no share of the savings.

When wholesale prices skyrocketed last summer, the rise was quickly reflected at the supermarket. But now that some prices are going down, the benefits are not passed on to the consumers.

The reasons are not too difficult to figure out. Often, two or three major chain stores dominate over 50 per cent of food sales in a given area. There seems to be an unspoken "gentlemen's agreement" in such situations that help keep prices and profits high.

The Federal Trade Commission is investigating some of the most blatant offenders. Meanwhile, the losers are both the farmers and consumers.

Bellotti To Announce April, Tobin 'On The Job Training'?

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Look for Atty. Francis Bellotti to make it official sometime in April.

The former lieutenant governor will definitely run for attorney general and has abandoned any thoughts he might have had about governor.

Bellotti already has set up a Quincy headquarters next door to his Hancock St. law office and has been hunting around Boston for a main headquarters location.

ARTHUR TOBIN holds one well known Quincy political record: he's now in his fifth consecutive year as City Council president.

But he probably holds another one that you don't usually think of: acting mayor.

As City Council president he has served as acting mayor on quite a few occasions in the absence of former Mayor James McIntyre and present Mayor Walter Hannon, like during their trips to Washington in quest of federal funds.

This may not mean much to the average person. But if you're a member of the Speculation Corps, it does. Especially when Tobin confides to close friends that he enjoys being acting mayor.

Or muses: "I'm doing my on-the-job training."

Translation, to politician watchers: He's warming up for a run for mayor in 1975.

IT'S QUINN-QUINN: City Councillor John Quinn, as forecast here, has taken over as Quincy campaign coordinator for Atty. Gen. Robert Quinn in the latter's bid for governor. He succeeds Atty. Richard Barry who has moved into Bellotti's camp as a top aide in his run for attorney general.

SHERIFF Charles Hedges still hasn't eliminated himself from a re-election bid this fall.

"I'm still undecided," he says. "I know some months ago I indicated I would not run again but, really, I'm just undecided."

Asked when he might make an announcement, he replied: "Well, I'm the sheriff."

That means as the incumbent he could wait until the 11th hour.

ROBERT CERASOLI is expected to announce his candidacy for the First Norfolk District state representative seat at a reception March 30 at Montellos, Quincy Point.

Two close friends will serve as campaign co-chairmen: School Committeeman Daniel Raymondi and Ray Dunn Sr., of Murdock Ave. Raymondi and Cerasoli were classmates at Quincy High School where Raymondi was class president [1965] and Cerasoli vice-president. Dunn was his scoutmaster at Troop 17, St. Joseph's Church.

Cerasoli, who lives on Whiten Ave., Quincy Point, is a legislative aide to Senator Tobin.

STATISTICS DEPT: There were more than 50,000 cases of auto theft in Massachusetts last year. More than 60 per cent are the work of teenagers-and for many of them the first step in a life of crime. In more than 40 percent of the thefts, the owner either left the keys in the car or the ignition unlocked. So notes Mayor Walter Hannon in a proclamation designating April 1-6 as "Auto Theft Prevention Week" in Quincy.

NICE GESTURE DEPT: Four Quincy residents recently donated articles to inmates at the Norfolk County House of Correction in Dedham: William Fortnam [television set]; Atty. Charles N. Ross [clothing], and Edward Hannon and Gerald Connor, reading materials.

CHILDREN'S CORNER: Principal David Johnston sends along these observations by kindergarten youngsters at the Adams School on the subject: "Why Grown-ups Need Children". [Are you ready?]

To pick up things in little places where grown-ups can't reach....To help take care of the house....To take care of the grown-ups when they're sick....They like to put them in their laps....Because they're beautiful....They like to rock the children to sleep....Because they're cute....To go to the store for them....Because grown-ups might not want to be alone." [So, now you know.]

SMILE DEPT: From the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Association newsletter via good friend Hector Pelletier:

Wife: You don't seem to be as well dressed as you were 10 years ago when we were married. Husband: I don't know why, dear. I'm still wearing the same suit."

QCA President Replies To Height Limit Editorial

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Permit me, at the outset, to sincerely thank you for your splendid editorial March 17, concerning the proposal of the Quincy Citizens Association, which requests 10-story height limitations on future buildings in Quincy.

Although you criticized me for allegedly threatening to call for a referendum vote on the matter prematurely, since the City Council has yet to vote on the proposal, I fully respect your zeal. My motivation in responding, is to clarify certain inaccurate and unreasonably publically disseminated statements concerning this vital issue, which affects every citizen of Quincy.

So much was I impressed after digesting your editorial, that I phoned your editor expressing my heartfelt gratitude, and later at the regular meeting of the QCA that same day, I enthusiastically read the editorial to a packed house. They too, shared my sentiments, and many complimented the fine manner in which it was handled. Ironically, your competitor also penned his editorial comments on the issue this same day. While the daily's remarks were totally negative, extremely shallow, and contained absolutely no basis in fact, yours by contrast, displayed an unusual sense of civic pride and compassion. While your competitor opened his remarks with the statement that the proposal should be rejected, your opening comment was, "The proposal should be looked over carefully," and then proceeding logically in a rational and logical exposition of the issue, suggesting constructively some sort of "middle ground". In short, you judiciously comprehend there are two sides to the question.

In your fine editorial, you state that I displayed a reaction, "that I would seek a referendum" on the issue. There are two significant misunderstandings within that one assertion. First, as every member of the QCA clearly understands, I have never, and will never, act as an individual separate from the QCA. I have said at every meeting of the QCA, that this phenomenon of individuality will not prevail while I am President. I have assured them that, while I remain the official spokesman for the membership, I shall never dictate policy without QCA ratification. Every important matter confronting me is brought to the floor of the QCA for membership discussion and vote.

Second, I have never stated, the QCA has called for a referendum on height limits. As a matter of fact, I will never call for such referendum, however the QCA very well may. This will not transpire until the City Council, in their wisdom, chooses to turn down our petition. Your own astute reporter, Paul Feldman, during an interview on this matter was told very clearly that due to Councillor Quinn's dire prediction, five minutes after the hearing, that our proposal would be unanimously defeated, that the QCA, at the next regular meeting would hear my request for a possible referendum. I thought I made it quite clear that the body would have to vote on the matter. You can readily see the gross differences in thought here.

I am pleased to say that the QCA met March 6, and by unanimous vote authorized me to investigate the ramifications and preparations for a referendum vote on height limits. This is what I stated I would do and this has been done. I have appointed QCA Vice-President Richard Ward, attorney, chairman of this committee, and deliberately left myself off. Mr. Ward will appoint five other members and swiftly and surely prepare for the referendum, should the need to institute arrive. I further accepted your suggestion that, should a referendum be necessary, QCA should plan for the question to be placed on a regularly scheduled election ballot, thereby saving our city thousands of dollars. I can not predict what course the QCA may ultimately choose.

So you see, DiStefano has in fact never, "called for a referendum" as you have misunderstood, but has acted democratically and intelligently based solely upon the ominous shadow cast by the "Dean of the Council", a man who acted out of turn and startled me into action. I have discussed this entire matter with Mr. Quinn and continue to respect him deeply.

Having attended every budget session last year, I know where the money is being spent and maybe more citizens should attend Quinn's hearings for an education.

With reference to your allusion that "the South Shore National Bank Tower must have caused considerable concern when it was constructed, what with fire hazards and community feeling and all," I'd very much like to offer some personal observations.

I have studied to some extent, the profession of architecture, because I love to see a handsome and soundly-constructed edifice. The South Shore National Bank Tower, is without a doubt, one of the most beautiful examples of superb architecture in the country. This was no accident, it was well-planned.

It has been ingeniously designed to provide fire safety by affording virtual complete ease of exit to those on the 10th floor. The architects who designed it knew full well the countless hazards to those in the upper levels of the Tower, and they objectively provided for this possible hazard. If one looks closely at the Tower, one may see this intelligently planned safety feature. The Tower is built in tiers, hence the levels rise gradually. It is possible for firemen to ladder up to the first tier of three stories, place their ladders upon the roof of the first tier, and ladder up to the 10th floor. By intelligent design and careful planning, the fire equipment, even in those early days was completely capable of reaching the upper levels. Present day buildings lack the depth and beauty of the South Shore National Bank Tower.

Safety is only one facet of the QCA proposal for reasonable height limits. Perhaps the most important aspect is our request for a moratorium on high buildings in Quincy until research is conducted to clearly establish exactly how many apartment units have been constructed in Quincy in the past five years, and precisely where they have been built. No such research has ever been accomplished by the city, and we see this as a serious matter. It not only reflects poor planning, but forces us to be in the total dark as to Quincy's future.

The QCA further presented the argument that the long prevailing myth of "more buildings to broaden the tax base", may be nothing more than just that, a myth. We suggested indepth research to determine the truth. I personally feel the tax base vs. more building debate makes good political rhetoric but little actual sense. The QCA suggested that the increased city services could well eat up any increased taxes from the new construction. The QCA plans to investigate this area factually and completely.

So there you have it, the facts and the myths, my every wish is that you publish my letter in its entirety, since you gave a somewhat unfavorable impression of what the QCA and I said, in your editorial. Naturally, I can't hope to appear in print of large characters, as was your editorial, nor can I hope to have my letter carried across the horizontal two full columns wide, as your editorial was carried, nor even can I secretly pray that you will give my letter an eight word heavy-type by-line, but I can urgently request that you show the citizens of Quincy that I am not mistaken in my belief that you are an honest and dedicated journalist.

I wish to thank The Quincy Sun for its interest in this matter and look forward to future articles concerning the issue and will continue to report both sides.

Thank You,
Pasquale S. DiStefano,
President
Quincy Citizens Association

Unfair baby-sit fee hit

By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

My parents won't let me baby-sit for the neighbors because I have to baby-sit for my little brother. I don't mind but they don't pay me for the time they are away, so I'm always broke. Do you think this is fair?

Debby J.

Dear Debby:

No, I don't think it's fair. They should pay you the same fee they'd pay anyone else. Show your parents this column. Good luck.

Dear Almost Thirteen:

Dear Tired:

You're not really tired, you're selfish. I wonder if your friends and relatives are as busy as you are finding something better than what you selected for them.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

Can the phrases "Excuse me" and "pardon me" be used interchangeably?

L.S. and E.B.

Dear L.S. and E.B.:

They often are, but I feel "pardon me" asks to be pardoned for some inconvenience you've caused. "Excuse me" can be an attention-getter or an appeal for a slight breach of etiquette. For instance, if you must pass in front of someone you would say, "Excuse me." If you bumped into that person, "pardon me" would be your apology.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS She lets details rule her life

By DOROTHY

Dear Dorothy:

I just can't get caught up! We have three children, ages 10, 6, and 4. I always feel that I have to have the house neat and everything in top order before I can even think of going shopping. I'm frustrated and always impatient with the children when they are playing with their toys and running all over the house. I find no time to completely relax.

L.O.J.

Dear L.O.J.:

If you ever figure out a way to get caught up write me immediately.

You're letting details rule your life, seen in the closely dotted i's. It's the little things that slow you down. Each task you perform has to be just right and must conform to a standard which you feel will bring honor to you and be acceptable to others, seen in your moderately tall retraced t's.

Your standards are great, but you are letting trivialities force you into a humdrum kind of life and you don't like it at all, seen in the long y loops.

You love mental and physical challenges, seen in the v and inverted v formations in the m's and n's, and the large loop on the p. Yet, you keep wrapping yourself around that perfectly balanced f, as you shove your love life into the background.

You have to be organized, everything in place, and on schedule. What if your house is a bit disheveled and a meal a little bit late? A few toys scattered here and there, and the sound of happy voices have a way of turning a cold house into a warm house.

Enjoy your children now, and they'll grow up enjoying you. If you deprive them of their rights to respect and self-expression now, you'll have to expect the repercussions later on. Let them realize their childhood needs, in the home before they seek fulfillment somewhere else. Then when your children are grown and gone, you'll have all the time you need to keep a neat, orderly house.

ROTARY MOWER NOT A TOY

Ever since the rotary mower became popular about 15 years ago, it has been a leading cause of home accidents. Each year [according to Public Health statistics] more than 140,000 injuries requiring medical attention are caused by these mowers.

Consider what goes on under the housing. With a motor turning up at 3,600 revolutions per minute, each blade tip of a 20-inch mower is making more than 60 revolutions per second. Thus a hand or foot could be slashed 120 times in one second. Actually, amputation can occur in 1/120th of a second — the very first pass of the blade.

Unfortunately, children are often the victims. Twenty to 30 percent of mower victims are children under the age of 13. Children don't have to suffer these accidents. They should be kept out of the area when the mower is being operated and immature children should be refused permission to operate them under any circumstances.

COIN BOX
Copper cent may stay in '74

By GARY L. PALMER
Copley News Service

The 1974 Lincoln cents are starting to turn up around the country and, yes, they're still made of copper. It now appears likely they might remain that way throughout the full year.

Talk of abandoning the copper cent for one made of aluminum began several months back as the cost of copper began to negate any profits from striking the nation's smallest denomination coin.

But while cost of the metal is rising it wouldn't affect production this year. The mint had enough copper stockpiled at previous prices to see it through this year.

Look for the aluminum cent to come into being in 1975, if not at the first of the year, the change may take place at mid-year, the same time the nation is getting its new Bicentennial coins featuring design changes on the reverse side of the quarter, half and dollar coins.

By mid-1975 the Roosevelt dime may stand alone as the only U.S. coin not undergoing a facelift of some kind as the nation approaches its 200th birthday.

But what about the collector coins and sets? Will the United States at least retain the copper cent in proof and mint sets? That question probably won't be answered until late in the year.

Along with all the coin changes being contemplated a clamor has arisen to bring back the $2 bill — the black sheep of the American monetary system.

Inflation is again the culprit. The dollar does not go very far — face it. It won't even buy two gallons of gas any longer. The dollar bill is still the most common of all currency but the number of them circulating is disproportionate to their value. By making $2 bills, engraving and printing costs would be cut to the tune of nearly $4 million yearly.

DOWN

The return of a $2 bill next year as the new mainstay of small "pocket money" could also incorporate a design change for the nation's Bicentennial celebration. The American Revolutionary Bicentennial Commission (ARBC) would like to see it come about so space on the back of the bill could advertise 1976.

The idea certainly seems logical.

And while the government weighs the idea of the rebirth of the $2 bill it might also consider one other change for birthday currency — a change in the color of our currency.

With today's sophisticated printing equipment it has become increasingly easier for counterfeiters to pass bogus money on the public. Advancements in photo lithography now enable nearly anyone to produce a creditable counterfeit.

Until the mid-1950s the problem was a small one since only the most skilled craftsmen were capable of producing the detailed engraving plates necessary to make good quality fakes.

A lesson could be taken from Canada and its colorful "rainbow" currency which has done much to curb counterfeiting in that country.

One last monetary change that would be nice for the Bicentennial, and helpful to an important segment of the population would be the introduction of Braille markings for the blind. No longer would they have to fear being cheated in an exchange of currency — one of the cruelest hoaxes perpetrated by the criminal elements in society.

PHOTO FUN
Keep control of prints

By GILBERT HILL
Copley News Service

There are at least six places where decisions must be made in producing a simple black-and-white photograph which will change the "contrast" in the final print — and four of those decisions are out of the hands of the photographer who turns his finishing over to someone else.

But contrast is only one of the many elements in good photography, whether monochrome, color prints, or color slides, where too many photographers turn over control of their work — and far more than half of the fun — to others because they fear dark room techniques may be too complicated or too expensive.

There seems to be a growing trend, however, for more workers, both amateur and professional, to return to the darkroom after years of concentration on slides and professional finishing — particularly since the reduction in time, and simplification of the color printing process of the last year or so.

And the simple element of the control of contrast can serve as an example of how a picture can be made a great success, or come out a complete flop — and that's the difference between fun and disappointment.

Too little contrast means a picture that is flat, muddy looking, with all of the tones seeming to run together — and virtually never is acceptable. Too much contrast is all blacks and whites, with no middle tones — a "soot and whitewash" picture — which can sometimes be quite effective.

But the picture with what photographers call "great print quality" is the one in which there are details in both shadows and highlights, but still good blacks and true whites, with a separation of middle tones and an overall "sparkle" to the print.

The photographer makes his first decision in selection of a film. Fast films, generally, have an "extremely long scale," are designed for difficult situations, where there are extreme highlights and deep shadows.

Fast film, therefore, will tend to "flatten out" situations like night photography, inside and out; and work well in the most brilliant sunshine where deep shade is also involved. But they can also flatten out, and reduce contrast, in average light situations.

Medium speed films, on the other hand, are designed for more average situations where lighting is more evenly balanced, and tend to hold, or increase contrast of cloudy days, or brilliant flashlit scenes — or in the flat light without shadows often seen at the beach or in snow.

Perhaps 90 per cent of all pictures are made under average situations, where highlights are either not extreme or not important, and where shadows often have more than enough light to show detail, so they can be reproduced on the print in the darkroom with the minimum of difficulty.

So, the photographer by selection of film, and lighting — or control of light with flash — has control of contrast in the first two steps, and can do his best to produce a good negative or slide by accurate exposures.

But, when he rolls up the film, and takes it to the finisher, he gives up at least four places where he just might like to make a change

Founders Of Quincy Lodge Had 'Tremendous Pride In Their Heritage'

Venerable John Brown paid tribute Saturday night to the founders of Quincy Lodge 1295 as men who possessed "determination and tremendous pride in their heritage."

Brown, the lodge's 27th venerable, was the keynote speaker at the 50th anniversary celebration at the new Quarry St. home attended by more than 300 members and guests.

"In 1924," said Brown, "a man named Gaetano Carpano and some friends founded this lodge. They had dreams and visions of great things for the future of the Quincy lodge and I'm sure if they could be here tonight, they would see their dreams become a reality."

"I believe there were three qualities all of these men possessed: pride, determination and guts."

"They had a tremendous amount of pride in their heritage. They had the determination to someday make the Quincy lodge the best in the world. And they had the guts to make decisions and fight for them with all their heart and soul."

Dignitaries attending and who spoke or made presentations included:

Mayor Walter J. Hannon, Senator-City Council President Arthur Tobin, Italian Counsel General Marcace Franco Faa DiBruno, Massachusetts Grand Venerable Louis Salvatore, U.S. Supreme Venerable Peter B. Bay, Michael Cairra, representing Governor Sargent and Edith DeOrfano, representing the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

The text of Brown's address follows:

On behalf of Quincy Lodge 1295 may I say it is our pleasure to have you here with us tonight to celebrate our 50th anniversary.

Fifty Golden years!! Tonight is a golden night, but as I look out at some of our elder members I wonder how many Golden years they had?

In 1924 a man named Gaetano Carpano and some friends founded this lodge. They had dreams and visions of great things for the future of the Quincy Lodge, and I'm sure if they could be here tonight they would see their dreams become a reality.

I believe there were three qualities all of these men possessed. Pride - Determination - and Guts!

Kennedy, Bellotti, Quinn Send Telegrams

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy [D-Mass] extended his congratulations to the Quincy Lodge Sons of Italy on its 50th anniversary Saturday.

Said Kennedy in a telegram to A. Mario Salvatore, anniversary chairman:

"It is a pleasure for me to be able to take this opportunity to congratulate the members of your lodge."

"I hope the years ahead will be as rewarding and successful as the past."

A congratulatory telegram also was dispatched by Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn, who said:

"My sincere best wishes for a most enjoyable evening and the continued success of the lodge in all their endeavors."

Former Lt. Gove. Francis X. Bellotti, who was out of town on business, wired from San Francisco:

"Congratulations on your 50th anniversary. Sorry I cannot attend."

Other telegrams of best wishes came from:

City Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia: "Congratulations and best wishes on your 50th anniversary. Regret that I could not be there this evening."

City Councillor and Mrs. James A. Sheets: "Congratulations on this your 50th anniversary. We wish you and all the Sons of Italy of Lodge 1295 a happy golden anniversary and many returns of the day."

Henry Bosworth, publisher of The Quincy Sun:

"I am sorry I cannot be with you tonight. But on behalf of everyone at the Quincy Sun I want to congratulate Quincy Lodge 1295 on this great golden milestone. Best wishes for 50 more years of progress, accomplishment and brotherhood."

WEAR YOUR PURPLE !!

Once a year we are called upon to manifest our Italian ancestry by a means other than that which should be self evident at all times. Just once, at least, wear the official PURPLE in honor of Columbus on the anniversary of the very event which has made possible our mode of life, our freedom of thought, action and political belief.

amount of pride in their heritage. They had the determination to someday make the Quincy Lodge the best in the world. And they had the guts to make decisions and fight for them with all their heart and soul.

Some of us complain today about the time and work involved to make a lodge of 600 operate properly. We complain at times about the work it takes to keep this beautiful home of ours looking as it should. But we do our jobs because of our love for the order, the lodge, and each other.

But I wonder if we would have had the courage of the Carpanos, DiGravios, LaRosas, Allegrius, Varrasso and Scarnicis to give of ourselves if we had no home, except a rented store or an old hall that belonged to someone else. Or if people throughout the city and state said "What's the Quincy Lodge Sons of Italy."

These men did it because of a love for something that I could never explain to you in a few short minutes here tonight. It's a tradition that persists today and I'm sure will carry on throughout the years ahead.

I'm sure there are some here tonight who are saying to themselves "Look at that Irishman standing up there expounding on the virtues of our Italian Heritage.

Well it's true I was born with some of the green sod of County Cork in me and sure I've always been proud of it. But "Io sono stato Italiano per nove anni, sono onorato di essere oiu, Stassera Per dirlo a voi." [I've been Italian for 9 years and I'm proud to stand here tonight and say it.]

Ladies and gentlemen again may I say thank you for being here tonight to celebrate with us a very proud moment.

God Bless you, we love you, and "may you all be in heaven a half hour before the devil knows your dead."

Sons Of Italy Preamble

Upon the soil of this great republic of the United States of America, the people of Italian descent, immigrated to or born in America, have joined together in creating a national organization of a fraternalistic nature under the name of the ORDER SONS OF ITALY IN AMERICA. They realize that they are an integral part of this great nation and of its young people. They are conscious of the historical mission entrusted to them as representatives of an older civilization, and they offer to the American nation the glorious traditions of their native land for the greater development of America. Realizing that by the constant and intelligent exercise of their civic rights and duties, they advance the welfare of this nation and its citizens, they have united in a spiritual bond to solidify their strength and better serve their country. The pride in their own being becomes stronger with the knowledge of their collective responsibilities. The Italian of the past has contributed in a prodigious way to the civic and cultural development of this great nation. The Italian people are offering, and have offered, their energies just as much as any other people or race towards the grandeur of America. They are fully conscious of their rights, duties, and civic responsibilities, and hereby proclaim the ideals of the ORDER SONS OF ITALY IN AMERICA.

Lydon To Meet With City Department Heads

Ward 3 Councillor John J. Lydon has taken the first step in what he calls a plan "to understand the 'workings' of the City of Quincy."

"It is my intention to review with department heads and supervisors within the City of Quincy the daily operations and responsibilities of their departments", Lydon said.

His first step was to request an appointment with City Treasurer Robert Foy.

In a letter to Foy Lydon said, "Corporations and municipalities are run by their 'purse strings' and your department plays an important role in the financial operations of the city."

Lydon said he believes that his plan will "develop a closer relationship with the City Council and a better understanding of municipal government" for his constituents.

I'M A KITE AND I JUST MIGHT

I'm a kite I might fly over the country,
I just might!
I might look at every beautiful sight,
I just might!
I would fly high I would fly low,
I would visit all the people I know.
I would have fun,
I would fly under the sun.
I'm a kite and I just might -
Do all these things!

IT'S GREAT TO BE A KITE

It's a great March windy day to go flying in the sky. Here I go over the field to go for a ride in the sky. I feel so good as the wind blows against me and I look down at the beautiful world. The little children are playing below me. People walking in the city look like ants as they go in and out of the stores. All of a sudden I am being pulled down. It is time to go home. Well tomorrow will be another day and maybe I'll go for another ride in the sky.

Quincy AFS Chapter International Dinner Friday

The Quincy Chapter of American Field Service is sponsoring an International Dinner Friday, March 22, at 6:30 p.m. at the Broad Meadows Junior High School.

Tickets may be purchased at the door. Dishes from many foreign countries will be featured, as well as the best of American food.

The American Field Service International Scholarships Organization fosters understanding between peoples of more than 60 nations through scholarships for senior high school students. Since its inception at Quincy High School 10 years ago, AFS has allowed many of Quincy's most intelligent and adaptable young citizens to spend either a summer or a full school year living with carefully selected families in such countries as Germany, Denmark, Japan, Belgium, Ecuador, Austria and others. At the same time it has brought to Quincy students from Spain, Peru, Ireland, Argentina, Brazil and Norway to become members of Quincy families and to share in the life of this community.

Immediately following the International Dinner, there will be a panel discussion by several AFS students now spending the school year in the South Shore area who will give their impressions of life here and compare it with customs in their own countries. Quincy High School's visiting AFS student for this year is Geir Skagemo of Norway.

Why John Havlicek volunteered to be a substitute.

It all started the day we at Dial Finance approached John Havlicek with a proposal. We wanted him to endorse our company, but not until he had proven to himself that Dial was a different kind of finance company — one with a dimension of service that runs far beyond the ordinary.

We asked John to volunteer to be a substitute — for you, the consumer. Without alerting any Dial personnel, we had John call several Dial offices with a battery of questions you the consumer might ask about loans.

Here, in John's words, is what happened.

"As I was dialing my first call, I couldn't help but think that the Dial management had great confidence in its personnel. It was a gutsy kind of thing to do, because they didn't know what kinds of questions I'd ask.

"It turned out that in every case, my questions were answered promptly and directly. But what was most impressive was this: I got no sales pitches and no pressure of any kind. They didn't even ask my name. It was like their only purpose was to help me — with no strings attached.

"One fellow I remember in particular. I threw some very heavy questions at him — mostly concerning big loans in the nine and ten thousand dollar area. I asked him to explain what home equity was... and how much I could borrow against my home equity. What surprised me was that he answered some very complicated questions in a very simple and direct way. And cleared up some misunderstandings I had about big loans."

The kind of service and consideration John Havlicek received from Dial isn't reserved for just basketball stars. It's reserved for everybody. And things have been that way with us since 1897. So next time you're thinking of borrowing, think of Dial Finance. You see, we don't want you to like us just for our money.

Park Baseball Permits Meeting March 20

A meeting of Quincy baseball and softball sponsors, managers and coaches will be held Wednesday March 20, at 7:30 p.m., in Room 27 of the John F. Kennedy Health Center, 1120 Hancock St.

Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Quincy Park and Recreation Board, said that one of the purposes of the meeting will be to discuss applications for permission to use Quincy baseball and softball fields this summer.

If any adjustments are made at this meeting to prevent duplication of requests or conflicts in dates, it will be more efficient for the Park and Recreation Board to process and act on all applications at its regular meeting April 1, according to Koch.

Koch requests those attending to give the board the number of boys, girls or adults registered and participating in their programs, the age group for each league or team, and the number of years the team or league has been organized.

Youth baseball managers and coaches will meet at 7:30 and adult softball managers and coaches at 8:30.

Raiderettes 12-5, First Ladies 8-9

The Quincy and North Quincy girls' basketball teams have ended their seasons and, although neither qualified for the state tourney, Barbara Webster's North girls did finish in a second place tie with Malden in the Greater Boston League.

The Raiderettes wound up with a convincing 50-21 win over Chelsea for a 9-3 league record and 12-5 overall.

This year the girls have been put in the same tourney setup as the boys, with four state-wide divisions. A team, unless it wins or shares a league title, must win 75 percent of its games to qualify.

If the girls had to win only 65 percent as the boys do, North would have made it.

The Raiderettes also finished in second place in the GBL last year.

Meanwhile, Gale Palmer's Quincy girls, who won the league crown last year, finished with a 7-5 league record and 8-9 overall mark when they lost to Malden, 43-34, last Friday.

This was the final GBL season for both teams, which move into the Suburban League next year.

In North's easy win over Chelsea, Denise Beresiewicz, as usual, was top scorer with 23 points and Cathy Conroy added 19.

North's junior varsity also romped, 31-7, sparked by Saralee Cobbin's 11 points.

Quincy was led by Kathy Bennett and Donna Brickley with eight points apiece against Malden, while Terry Tucker had seven. Marilyn Silverstein shone on defense and Sue Higgins excelled on the boards.

Malden, with the win, joins league champion Medford in the tournament.

Earlier in the week Quincy defeated Everett twice on successive days. The First ladies won the first, 45-30, and followed up the next day in a makeup game with a 52-26 romp.

In the first game Quincy led, 17-0, and Miss Palmer substituted freely. Eight girls scored with Miss Bennett having 13 points, Miss Higgins eight and Miss Brickley seven.

In the second game Kelly Sparks led the scorers with 12 points, followed by Cindy Pozzi and Miss Bennett with 11 each.

B.C. High Jayvees Wind Up With 10-8 Slate

The Boston College High School junior varsity basketball team, which included seven Quincy players on its roster, recently completed a winning season.

Rookie Coach Brian Buckley, also of Quincy, was pleased with the 10-8 record and the squad's overall excellent attitude.

"I used 15 players with each one starting and being captain for at least one game," Buckley said. "With three games remaining, the players elected as captain Joe Young, a 6-2 sophomore, who led the team in scoring and rebounding."

The Eaglet jayvees recorded bit wins over Abp. Williams, Arlington, St. John's Prep and Quincy.

Reds Win Top Spot In St. Joseph's Loop

The Red team, by virtue of an 11-6 romp over the Blues last week at Shea rink, finished first for the third year in a row in the St. Joseph's Hockey League.

The Green team upset the golds, 4-1, in the other game to relegate the Golds to second place.

The league playoffs got underway last night [Wednesday] with the Red team playing fourth place Blues and Golds facing the third place Greens in the start of the double elimination competition.

Mike McNalley exploded for four goals and John Duffey had three to spark the Reds' easy win. James Crowley had two goals and Rick Brunstrum and Ron Gattorna the others. Paul Venezuela, Ed Del Gizzi, Dennis Larkins, Mark Walker, Dave Erriechiello and Dave McNalley scored for the Blues.

Scoring for the Green team were Jim Connors, Mike O'Sullivan, Chuck Shea and Joe Brill, while John Alfano scored the only Gold goal.

The final standings:

Elvis surprised at pants tossing

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Even Elvis was a little surprised when, during his next-to-closing night show at the Las Vegas Hilton, a girl threw baby-blue bikini pants on stage.

Though Elvis has girls throw themselves at him on-stage and off, and though he's the top male sex-symbol of the era, and though he frankly exploits sex through his singing style, he generally doesn't get this kind of traffic during a Vegas show.

Tom Jones is regularly honored with lingerie showers, and he encourages the treatment. But girls at Elvis' shows are more inclined to pelt him with stuffed animals. In fact, shortly after the girl threw the bikini pants, another handed El a cuddly, toy tiger.

When Presley picked up the pants, he missed a beat. Then he handed them without comment to his backup boy, Harley Hodge.

Elvis goes on tour again in March with his first stop to be Oral Roberts University.

He invested part of his most recent Vegas stand in breaking in new material for the tour and in introducing The Voice, a male trio he's added to his act, good enough to make it eventually on its own.

Elvis is singing fewer sad songs these days both publicly or privately. His new act includes no real tear-jerkers, not even the poignant and popular "I'll Remember You." And his treatment of "Love Me Tender," a number closely identified with Priscilla since it was their wedding song, is casual.

Cloris Leachman's mother-in-law, Mabel Albertson, has joined her in "Pete and Tillie," a CBS television pilot based on the movie starring Carol Burnett and Walter Matthau.

Cloris plays Tillie, but Mabel doesn't play Pete. He's played by Carmine Caridi.

The only thing about the Sonny and Cher separation announcement that surprised Hollywood was that it came before the end of the current television season and that it was Sonny, not Cher, who officially broke the news.

Through his attorney, Howard L. Winton, Sonny declared that he'd filed for a legal separation "because of irreconcilable differences."

One of the "differences" to which Cher may have had trouble reconciling herself is Sonny's devoted secretary, Connie.

When, as so often happens, people ask Pat Boone how he stays so young, Pat gives credit to a clean conscience.

"It's not that I never sin," he says, "but I know where to take my conscience to get it laundered."

Foot surgery kept Rock Hudson on the operating table for four hours but in the hospital only two days. He's recovering rapidly.

Liz Taylor was so pleased to receive the Photoplay Gold Medal as Favorite Female Star of the year that she wanted to have it hung on a chain to wear around her neck. However, since the medal is too heavy to be worn comfortably as a pendant, she's having a duplicate made as an addition to her jewelry collection.

Following the Photoplay Gold Medal Awards party at the Beverly Hills Hotel, Horace Heidt Jr., was besieged by autograph hunters, one of whom wanted him to sign a snapshot taken when he was 5 years old and traveling with his papa, Horace Sr. Horace didn't think anyone had a picture like that except his immediate family.

Lisa Presley is recovering rapidly following a tonsilectomy.

Southwest Council Urges Turnout For Hearing

The Southwest Community Council is urging all interested persons to attend a public hearing to be conducted by the Quincy Planning Board Tuesday, April 2, at 7:30 p.m. at City Hall on a proposed Quarry St. land purchase.

The Quincy Lodge of Elks want to buy approximately six acres of land on the west side of Quarry St. It lies in the center of a total approximate 19 acres of city-owned land.

The Council said it wants to alert people of the hearing, particularly those living adjacent to the area. Due to the central location of this particular piece, the sale would permanently divide up the 19 acres, it notes, thus hampering potential use of the land. These possibilities include permanent open space, a school or other municipal facility or any form of residential development, the Council said.

The Council has previously written a proposal for maintaining the 19 acres as open space. The three major reasons for wanting to do so, it said, are:

- There is no land in Southwest Quincy designated for open space.
- Any construction on the area would potentially divide up the area and thereby greatly diminish its potential.
- The City Council voted for a near half million dollar bond issue to purchase open space in Squantum and Germantown. It would be contradictory to sell the open space that the city still owns.

Approximately 1400 signatures of area residents have been obtained to support this proposal. In addition the South Quincy Civic Association, the Quincy Citizens Association, The Quincy Conservation Commission, the Mount Ararat Association and the Quincy Environmental Protection Society have all voted to go on record to support keeping this area as open space.

The public hearing will be the one chance for citizens of Quincy to express their views on this proposed land sale.

Union Says End Of Strike Up To Management

on Quincy Ave., just across the Braintree line. Five pickets were arrested there Monday morning during the first day's "push".

"It doesn't seem like they care when it ends," Batson was saying.

"They're behind schedule in the gas ships. I don't know if they have a penalty clause in the contract but I think they're trying to keep the strike going so they can buy time and blame the union."

"I'll tell you one thing. They didn't negotiate in good faith. They played games all through the negotiations. It wasn't until the last couple of days that they offered their complete package."

General Dynamics said it had withheld its final offer, the complete package, until bargaining had taken place on other issues which it called "productivity improvements".

The company has offered a 34 cents an hour wage increase for the first year up to 90 cents an hour for the third year for first class mechanics. Local 5 has asked $1.50 an hour plus a 25 cent an hour cost of living adjustment.

"They said there would be more money if we agreed to their other demands," said Batson.

A first class mechanic at Fore River now gets $4.19 an hour.

"We were the lowest paid shipyard in the United States at the termination of the contract Saturday night," said Batson. "Their proposal of 34 cents would have put us ahead of only one, Bath, Maine."

"Some of them are getting $5.15 an hour now and they're due for increases this year. The majority of them are close to $5 an hour. The southern yards are running about 55 cents an hour ahead of us."

The contract that expired Saturday midnight had been in effect for five years. In retrospect, it was a mistake.

"When we were negotiating in 1969 they guaranteed us that if we signed a five year contract the yard would get the DX program [Navy destroyers]," said Batson. "That meant lots of work."

"Three months later, the whole job went south to Pascagoula, Miss., leaving us hung up with a five year contract. When we asked the company if they would make some adjustments, they told us: 'You bought it. You eat it.'"

"We were in good shape at the time. Now the rest of them have passed us by."

Batson indicated that Local 5 would accept another long term contract.

"The length of the contract depends on how much money we get for the first year," he said. "We proposed a one year contract. We told them we want to settle the rate of pay for the first year. Then we'd look at additional years."

And General Dynamics wants to settle other things first.

"It's going to last as long as they want it to," said Arthur Batson.

More Labor Woes For General Dynamics

Local 90 Vows To Fight For 'Big Pay Increase' In April Negotiations

By TOM HENSHAW

New labor problems are on the horizon for General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard whose production lines have been shut down since midnight, March 16, by a strike of 1,800 members of the Shipbuilding Workers Local 5.

Arthur Fitzgerald, president of Clerical Workers Local 90, this week disclosed that his union's five-year contract expires June 16. He said negotiations are scheduled to start April 16.

"We expect a big increase in pay," said Fitzgerald, whose union has 225 members. "We have worked under this contract for five years to help give them a start. Now we expect a reasonable contract."

"We'll fight for it," he told The Quincy Sun.

Fitzgerald said Local 90 "is in the same situation as Local 5. Our pay scale is way below the other shipyards in the country."

Local 90, whose members refused to cross Local 5's picket lines, went back to work Monday [March 25] as lines were withdrawn to let clerical workers and members of Draftsmen's Local 151 to enter.

"We recognized the picket line for fear of bodily harm," said Fitzgerald. "Once the line was withdrawn we recognized our liabilities under our contract."

The number of pickets outside the gates of the shipyard was reduced markedly this week after Federal Judge Andrew A. Caffrey issued a temporary injunction against mass picketing Friday.

A full hearing on the injunction was scheduled for today [Thursday] at 10 a.m. before Judge Caffrey.

"We are trying to keep five or six pickets on the small gates and about a dozen at the main gate," said Arthur Batson, president of Local 5. The numbers were smaller than that Tuesday morning and so were the police.

Police protection at the gates was a matter of controversy between General Dynamics and the city of Quincy last week.

The company charged that "local police have been unwilling or unable to provide adequate protection" and asked for State Police to preserve order at the gates.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon, calling State Police "totally unnecessary," said the city is considering billing General [Cont'd on Page 2].

Ceremonies At 1 P.M.

Squaw Rock Transfer To Quincy Sunday

Mayor Walter J. Hannon will meet with Boston City officials Sunday at 1 p.m. at the Robert I. Nickerson Post, Squantum, to accept the official transfer of Squaw Rock to the City of Quincy.

The transfer is the culmination of eight long years of negotiations with the City of Boston to purchase the 17.1 acres in Squantum. McCormick.

Representing Mayor White at the ceremony will be Deputy Mayor Edward T. Sullivan.

Boston Corporation Counsel Herbert P. Gleason will officially pass title on Squaw Rock to Quincy City Solicitor Richard J.

Mayor Hannon said that the acquisition of Squaw Rock will now provide the public with not only an educational and historical landmark, but also with additional open space for leisure time activities and passive enjoyment. The Squaw Rock acquisition is the first element in the Mayor's acquisition and improvement program which he proposed to the City Council last March.

6-Month Tax Bills

In Mail Today

If you get an unexpected tax bill in the next few days, don't be alarmed or confused.

It's just the city of Quincy catching up with the old 18-month budget.

The budget passed last year covered the period from Jan. 1, 1973 to June 30, 1974 to put the city on a fiscal year rather than calendar year basis.

The bills that went out last year were for the period Jan. 1, 1973 to Dec. 31, 1973 figured at a rate of $154.30 per thousand.

The bills that are expected to go out today [Thursday] are for the period from Jan. 1, 1974 to June 30, 1974, figured at a rate of $77.15 per thousand.

Youths, Adults Meet

5 Solutions Proposed For Southwest Teen Problems

Five solutions were proposed for teen-age problems Sunday during an open meeting of youths and adults sponsored by the Southwest Teen Council at the Southwest Community Center.

They included dances, a drop-in center, jobs for youth, more group discussions and alternatives to juvenile delinquency.

The meeting was attended by more than 40 people, half of them adults, including Mayor Walter J. Hannon, Rep. William Delahunt, and representatives of City Councillor James Sheets; Survival Inc.; and Police and School Departments.

Co-chairmen were Maura Kelly, a member of the Southwest Teen Council, and Jeff Isaacson, the council's advisor.

The problems of teen agers in Southwest Quincy were identified as drinking, drugs, lack of organized activities, parents, jobs, guidance, hanging around business areas, crime, the hassing of teen agers and lack of adult concern.

Complaints were aired that the Quincy Youth Commission had unjustifiably taken credit for some of the accomplishments of the Southwest Teen Council.

Some of the accomplishments were listed as the city's first out-of-doors teen concert, development of a site for the Teen Center in Southwest Quincy and the initiation of a Rent-A-Kid program.

He said the sale of the land to developers "after it was acquired through eminent domain proceedings resulting in the displacement of 38 families whose homes were torn down, would be a dangerous precedent to establish in the city."

Local 90 To Seek 'Big Pay Increase'

Dynamics for the cost of keeping some 50 police officers on extra duty at the gates.

The police detail cost the city $28,908.18 for the first seven days of the strike. The most expensive day was Tuesday at $6,448.81 but by week's end it was down to $957.05 per day.

Meanwhile, the strike itself, which saw clashes between pickets and management personnel and some arrests during its first week, settled down to what may be called watchful waiting.

"They haven't made any move to resume negotiations," said Batson in his unofficial strike headquarters in Joe's Lunch, across the street from the shipyard's main gate on East Howard St.

"One of the mediators called me Monday and I told him we were ready. He said he was going to call the company and he'd get back to me if anything developed. He hasn't called yet."

General Dynamics has said that it too is ready to resume negotiations but nothing has happened.

The hitch appears to be that Local 5 wants to talk first about money, which Batson calls the main issue, and the company wants to talk first about what it calls "productivity improvements."

A first class mechanic at Fore River gets $4.19 an hour under the old contract, the lowest of any shipyard in the country. Some other yards pay as much as $5.15 an hour.

Local 5 is asking an increase of $1.50 an hour, plus a 25 cent an hour cost of living adjustment. General Dynamics has offered 34 cents an hour for the first year up to 90 cents an hour in the third.

Batson said support for the strike is still strong among members of the union despite the fact that many of them have only recently returned to work.

"At this point, no one has suggested to me that we change our position," said Batson.

"It was slow death the way we were going. We had to make a stand and get back on our feet or we would die completely."

The strikers who were gathered in Joe's Lunch Tuesday morning, awaiting their turns on the picket lines, were older than an average group of workers. They drank coffee from styrofoam cups, did crossword puzzles, and talked about the televised basketball game between North Carolina State and Marquette.

"I remember Al McGuire [Marquette coach] when he was playing for the Knicks 20 years ago," said the man in the yellow stocking cap. "He used to play Cousy. Not much talent, but boy did he hustle."

"These are basically the long-service employees," said Batson. "Most of the young people who were laid off haven't been called back yet. Some of the shipfitters and welders are young, though."

"We haven't paid any benefits yet. We'll just have to wait and see how many people we have here. Our funds are limited. We can't put everyone on picket duty and pay them."

Burke Calls For Action On Fuel Charges

Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton] has called upon state officials to take action against "exorbitant" fuel adjustment charges levied on consumers by utility companies in Massachusetts.

His call for action was addressed to Gov. Francis W. Sargent, House Speaker David Bartley, Senate President Kevin Harrington and the State Department of Public Utilities.

Burke said steps should be taken "forthwith that would allow coal conversion by utility companies which would result in the savings of over $100 million a year to Massachusetts consumers.

"The cost of coal is presently about half that of the amount of residual oil needed to produce the same amount of electricity.

"With the Arab nations and other countries jacking up the price of oil to astronomical heights and with no relief in sight we must act now."

Quincy Group Fight Increased Fuel Costs

A group of angry Quincy consumers have set out to do battle with the electric companies over the rising fuel adjustment charges on their utility bills.

Mrs. Evelyn Crews and Mrs. Grace Pion are co-chairmen of the Quincy Consumers Against Fuel Adjustment.

The group is circulating a petition objecting to "having 100 per cent of the increased fuel costs passed on to us. This eliminates the incentive on the part of the electric companies to obtain the cheapest possible fuel."

The petitions will be presented to a Department of Public Utilities hearing April 30 in the State House.

The Shipyard Strike: Let's Sit Down And Talk

Shipyard strikes have been a familiar—and painful—scene in Quincy down through the years.

And regardless of how long they seem, they are eventually settled and the men return to work. For observers, however, it is sometimes hard to tell who won or lost when it is all over.

The present dispute, now in its second week, will, like the ones before it, run its course and the yard will be back in production.

Only this strike, it appears, not only could be a long one, but a bitter one, too. And that is sad because both management and labor want the General Dynamics yard to be the busiest and best in the nation. They have got to work together to accomplish this. We hope there are not deep scars left by this strike to thwart this goal.

Twenty-six persons have already been arrested on disorderly conduct charges. And even though at this writing a calm has descended over the area, tempers could suddenly flare again.

We don't think the company helped matters any in its apparent attempt to force non-striking Local 90 and 151 union members to cross Local 5 picket lines to get their pay. In our estimation that was "bush". To a union man, it was like insulting his mother.

And, it was not very smart, either. Management has to sit down soon with Local 90 to negotiate a contract. Why antagonize them in advance?

We hope management and Local 5 will get back to the negotiating table before there are more incidents that will make it more difficult to reach an early settlement.

The union contends the Quincy yard is the lowest paid in the U.S.

Workers there have long held a proud reputation of being among the finest shipbuilders in the world. The great ships that have passed through the Fore River bridge attest to their craftsmanship.

The union says it accepted the just expired five-year contract because management assured them it would win the multi-million dollar Navy DX [destroyer] package that went to Pascagoula, Miss. instead.

And, according to the union, when it then sought adjustments in the five-year pact, the company told them in effect: "You bought it. You eat it!"

There are reports circulating that the strike could last as long as three months and that management would not mind that at all because the company is behind schedule on contracts containing penalty clauses. The strike could be blamed for the delay, goes the story.

Most of these reports are coming from union sources. Union spokesmen are easy to reach for comment. But management traditionally goes into a shell and seldom makes itself available for comment or to counter reports such as these.

But there seems little doubt that management was expecting a strike and was getting ready for it long before negotiations broke down. Bedding and food supplies were moved into the yard for non-union supervisory personnel who are "living in" for the duration of the strike. They even have a washing machine for their laundry.

Because of the five-year contract it now calls a mistake, the union is going to look over carefully everything and sign nothing until it is sure it is the right thing.

Arthur Batson, president of Local 5, has said the strike "is going to last as long as they [management] want it to." He said the union is ready to resume negotiations when the company is ready.

We would like to see P. Takis Veliotis, general manager of the yard, take Mr. Batson up on that.

Federal mediators are standing by, gentlemen. Let negotiations resume. Unless you start talking, it could be a long, costly strike.

Your actions affect the entire South Shore which already has been hard hit by unemployment. We need a humming shipyard.

Sit down and talk it out. Don't let this be a strike that no one wins and both sides lose.

Hearing April 2 On Quarry St. Land Purchase

The Quincy Planning Board will hold a public hearing Tuesday, April 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chamber to consider an offer by the Quincy Lodge of Elks, Inc. to purchase 204,000 square feet of city-owned land.

The land is located on the southwesterly side of Quarry St., West Quincy.

- U.S.-Russian Detente Frayed

- 24 Ruined For Nixon

(Copyright, 1974, by United Feature Syndicate.)

WASHINGTON — The Russian-American detente is becoming dangerously frayed. Secret intelligence reports warn that the Soviets believe Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is trying to diminish their influence in the Middle East.

Suddenly, Moscow radio has started attacking Kissinger in its Arabic broadcasts. The same broadcasts warn the Arabs that all the United States really cares about is oil and that it will do nothing to curb Israel as long as it can get Arab oil.

Intelligence reports also claim that the Kremlin has brought pressure on Syria not to go to Washington for peace talks. Instead, the Kremlin wants the talks held in Geneva where its own Middle East negotiator has been waiting.

Russia not only wants a voice in the peace talks but is preparing to sabotage any agreement Kissinger works out — unless Soviet interests are fully protected.

In Washington, President Nixon has acknowledged privately to aides that the Middle East developments have not been "a happy situation" for Russia. He also told aides that "the Soviet-American detente has served us far more than it has served" the Russians.

Nevertheless, he said, the Russians "have been acting with restraint." He is counting on Kissinger to reassure the Kremlin leaders and bolster the Soviet-American detente on his trip to Moscow.

Chicom Kidnap Manual: The recent revolutionary kidnappings have been linked by the Central Intelligence Agency to Red China and North Korea. Strictly speaking, the kidnappings were ordered by Peking and Pyongyang. But both countries have furnished guerrilla instructors who have encouraged political kidnappings.

The kidnapping idea is found in guerrilla manuals, which the instructors have written. This is a tactic that the Chinese Communists used in their own struggle for power. At one point, they even kidnapped rival leader Chiang Kai-shek and held him for political ransom.

The Chinese manuals have become available in the United States and extracts have been printed in underground newspapers. The kidnapping of Patricia Hearst by the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA), for example, appears to be taken right out of a Chinese text. The manual even suggests that the kidnap victim should be ransomed for food to feed the poor.

This does not mean that the SLA is directed by the Chinese. But they have access, apparently, to guerrilla manuals put out by Peking.

Meanwhile, confidential police reports warn ominously that there are several other underground groups like the SLA that can now be expected to attempt similar kidnappings.

Henry's Pessimistic: The lifting of the Arab oil embargo should bring fast relief to motorists who have been lining up for gas. It will take six weeks for oil to reach U.S. ports from the Middle East. But Arab oil in Caribbean refineries can now be diverted to the United States immediately.

There is a definite danger, however, that the Arabs may reimpose the oil embargo just before the summer vacation months. They have agreed to reassess the situation after two months. If there has not been an Israeli withdrawal from Syria's Golan Heights, the Arab militants are certain to demand a new oil embargo.

What's more, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has admitted to the White House that his diplomatic magic may not work in Syria. Dealings with the Syrians, he said, has a "bizarre quality." He found himself talking to the heads of factions, most of whom, he said, were extremists.

In a secret report to President Nixon, Kissinger described Syria's President Assad as highly intelligent, with a sense of humor. But Kissinger said he never knew when Assad "is going to jump the tracks."

If Assad jumps the tracks, unfortunately, it could once again derail those oil shipments to the United States.

A Human Tragedy: Behind the Watergate headlines is a tragic human story. Two dozen of President Nixon's closest associates have been ruined. They have either pleaded guilty or have been indicted for crimes. Yet not one has been accused of committing a crime for his own benefit. They committed the Watergate crimes for the benefit of Richard Nixon.

As their reward, most of them have now been cut off from the White House. Some have gone to prison. Others are going through or preparing for agonizing trials.

Remember how John Mitchell, the former attorney general, used to puff calmly on his pipe and assert the need for "preventive detention" and "no-knock" laws? Now he hides out not only from the press but from his friends. He lives alone in a Manhattan hotel under an assumed name. The few who have access to him say he drinks too much. He has lost his good name, his livelihood and his wife.

His successor, Richard Kleindienst, has passed the prosecutors' lie detector tests and is maintaining a stoic public image. But in private, he has been devastated by the Watergate wreckage and the damage it has done to the nation. His friends have walked into his office and have found the man in tears.

G. Gordon Liddy, the former White House undercover man, invited his superiors to hire gunmen to shoot him down in the streets. When this offer was declined, he went to jail, lips sealed, for a 20-year sentence.

Bernard Barker, the leader of the Watergate crew, came out of prison with his face partially paralyzed. Charles Colson, the combative presidential assistant, has turned to Christ.

Others also are now broken and harassed men. The human toll has been tragic.

Richard Koch 'Commissioner', Ruth Gordon Smash Hit

By HENRY BOSWORTH

The Cemetery and several other municipal departments figure in a re-organization movement planned by Mayor Walter Hamon.

According to insiders the Park, Recreation, Forestry, Cemetery Departments will be consolidated in a new department to be known as the Department of Natural Resources or a name similar to that.

"The departments and boards affected," said an insider, "are the so-called earth departments."

But a commissioner will head up the new department.

And the man who reportedly has the inside track for that appointment is Richard Koch, present executive secretary to the Park-Recreation Board.

The news should break sometime in April.

The boards involved in these departments will be retained along with the Conservation Commission.

QUINCY'S RUTH GORDON is a smash hit in Minneapolis. The Academy Award winner's "Harold and Maude" in which she stars with Bud Cort, is now starting its THIRD CONSECUTIVE YEAR at the Westgate Theater there.

So reports her close, good friend, Mrs. Irving LeBeau of 6 Presidents Lane.

Miss Gordon and Cort were guests of the theater's management for a two-day celebration last week.

The movie recently closed in Detroit after a two-year run. Miss Gordon and her husband, Garson Kanin, recently returned from Paris where "Harold and Maude" is still being shown.

She plans to return to Quincy June 25 for the 60th anniversary reunion of the Quincy High School Class of 1914 at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. That's the famed so-called "Worst Class".

NICE STORY DEPT. - North Quincy Knights of Columbus and Wollaston Masonic Lodge members have become close friends since getting together for an annual brotherhood dinner the past four years.

And, Tom Cashman and Lawrence Strout have a friendly rivalry going that someday could very well save someone's life. Each is blood committee chairman for his group.

They have a bet on to see who can get the most blood donated during 1974 by their members and by others donating in the name of the Wollaston Masonic Lodge or North Quincy Council, during Red Cross bloodmobile visits at various places.

Tom owns the O. A. Hodgdon Co. that now is installing the new phone booths in downtown Quincy. Larry runs the Winfield House.

And to make it interesting, the bet is a day's work at the other fellow's place of business. If Tom loses, he has to wash dishes for a day or night at the Winfield House. If Larry loses, he has to spend a day with Tom, mixing cement in a wheel barrow.

MIKE DUKAKIS will soon be invading the Quincy-South Shore area in his bid for governor. Rep. William Delahunt is his regional coordinator and City Councillor Joseph LaRaia will serve as Quincy chairman.

A TRIBUTE: The long lines of persons who paid their respects to John Daniels Sr., city health inspector, who died suddenly last week, was a genuine tribute. John belonged to many organizations and was quite active civically. But most of the mourners were there because he was a true friend-a man who was always there when he was needed and to do anything to help. He will be long missed.

LAST WEEK we editorialially saluted Quincy Lodge 1295, Sons of Italy, on its 50th anniversary and mentioned several individuals of Italian descent who have been quite successful in public life. We didn't attempt to name them all.

But we got a note from someone regarding "Italians in the city you missed." Among them: former Lt. Gov. Francis Bellotti, the late Aldo Della Chiesa, Public Works Commissioner James [Pete] Ricciuti, Veterans Director William Villone, Assessor Henry Bertolon, Highway Supt. Fred Raymond, Atty. Edward Libertine, Sewer Supt. Russ Eranio and businessman Larry Antonelli. [We are sure there are still a lot more].

EDDIE SCOLAMIERO, Billy DeWolfe's long-time close buddy, picked up three extra copies of The Quincy Sun issue with Billy's funeral coverage. He sent one each to Billy's three close West Coast friends: Bing Crosby, Doris Day and Johnny Carson.

NOTICE anything different about School Committeeman Harold Davis? Quick now. Give up? He shaved his mustache-a trademark since he entered politics. And because we believe in replacement, we would like to report that Quincy Center letter carrier Tom McDonald has grown a humdinger.

TYPO TERROR DEPT: From the Nashville Tennessean: "I think I ought to say that the two groups don't work in concert at all...They don't share, as I understand it, the same goals."

SMILE DEPT: Jack Silverstein, the North Quincy druggist, says as far as he's concerned, women's lib is a misleading organization."

Unconventional Convention

Over 50 Quincy Political Figures At Mass Caucus '74

By PAUL HAROLD
Quincy Sun Correspondent

FRAMINGHAM - "I'm not a member of any organized political party," said Will Rogers, "I'm a Democrat". These words were never more true than at the recent Mass Caucus '74 here.

Confusion seemed to be the order of the day at the caucus, as more than 3,200 people filled the municipal auditorium and the adjoining school. Originally only 1,500 were expected.

Quincy was well represented with about 50 delegates, though still far below its allotment. At the previous statewide caucus in 1972 in Worcester, there were only about a dozen people from Quincy. Yet unlike the previous caucus, there were more "regular" Democrats participating. In effect, the "new politics" was in for an afternoon lesson in practical politics.

The Mass Caucus '74 was originally organized by the liberal wing of the state Democratic party to endorse candidates for Secretary of State and Attorney General. But since the legislature abolished the pre-primary convention, the caucus took on more importance than anticipated.

As a result of this new importance, the "new politics" took on a new look as this unconventional convention saw liberal reformers sitting next to bus loads of city and county employees who were "given the word" to support one candidate or the other.

A number of prominent Quincy Democrats were in attendance including:

Rep. William Delahunt, Councillors Warren Powers and Dennis Harrington, Asst. Dist. Atty. Thomas Norton, Massachusetts Women's Political Caucus head Geraldine Pleshaw, former Councillor Ted McLelland, Rep. Thomas Brownell, South Shore Women's Caucus head Kathleen O'Donnell, City Planning Director Geoffrey Davidson; Quincy's delegate to the 1972 national Democratic convention Marilyn Hanabury, and Mayor Hannon's executive secretary Joseph Shea.

Delahunt had organized a group for Rep. Paul Guzzi. Originally he had planned to have a bus from Quincy, but it was cancelled at the last minute because of the large number of people attending the funeral of former health inspector John Daniels, Rep. Brownell was also with his colleague Rep. Guzzi, as were a number of other state reps.

Peter Niles was the South Shore coordinator for Boston city councillor Larry DiCara in his unsuccessful bid to gain the caucus' endorsement.

Incumbent Secretary of State John F. X. Davoren did not enter the caucus.

In the Attorney General's race, Shea, McLelland and James Lydon [Councillor John Lydon's cousin] were backing Norfolk County Register of Deeds Barry Hannon. And from the number of Hannon buttons, it appeared that Quincy had adopted the Brintree candidate as its own favorite son, at least for the afternoon. But Quincy's unannounced candidate Francis Bellotti did not participate in the caucus and a number of people admitted that although they were with Hannon at the caucus, they would be with Bellotti come September.

Quincy Taxpayers Revolt leader, Tim Cardwell, was in charge of the Quincy group for Somerville Mayor S. Lester Ralph. Raymond Dawe of North Quincy and a member of the Ward 6 Democratic Committee, was the Quincy organizer for Ted Harrington, who the caucus eventually endorsed.

The Quincy delegation was assigned an area in the basement of the Framingham auditorium, a room about the size of the Quincy armory. And despite the confusion, noise, smoke and uncomfortable wooden chairs, most of the delegation sat through the proceedings until the third ballot was cast.

Reactions to the caucus were as varied as the groups of people attending. Marilyn Hanabury of Wollaston who represented Quincy at the 1972 convention in Miami said:

"Today is not much different from the Miami convention, except that it's more confusing." She went on to say that the new politics have in some ways inherited organizational problems of the old politics. Mrs. Hanabury had also attended the Worcester caucus in 1972.

For Bryant Carter of North Quincy it was his first caucus, although he had attended the 1970 Republican state convention. In comparing the caucus to the Republican gathering, he said:

"The Republican convention was much better organized and people knew what they were doing."

Yet overall he commented, "The caucus is a good idea. It just needs to be better organized, with more preparation."

Barbara Hawley of Merrymount came to the convention with a group of friends to support Larry DiCara. It was her first experience at a political gathering of such magnitude. Although her candidate lost, she thought it was time well spent and that, "In the absence of a convention, for all its faults, the caucus is the best means available for endorsing candidates."

McLelland, chairman of the Ward 3 Democratic Committee, cited the disorganization and went on to say, "At least the convention had some thought, meaning and direction. I don't see any of that here. The caucus just boils down to see who can pack the hall."

Ann Gaffey of Wollaston, an astute observer of Massachusetts politics and sometimes called the first lady of Quincy politics, has been attending conventions and caucuses since 1937. She attended her first convention in Worcester as a reporter for the old Quincy Evening News. The caucus lacked all the banners, bands and hoopla of regular conventions, and despite its disorganization, she thought it was a job well done. She said she was against the abolition of the pre-primary convention and that it was needed by the party.

The Mass Caucus was the first political event of this election year and it previews what will follow between now and November.

As things shape up, 1974 promises to be one of the most spirited [or hectic, depending on your point of view] campaigns in recent memory.

•Youth Speaks Out

• President Nixon not only discovered gaps in the tapes, but there may even be a gap in his second administration - say about two years.

• Most of us don't really know if there's an energy shortage or not, but I find it easier to believe Ralph Nader, than the president of an oil company.

• Did a politician really say that the cemetery situation was a dead issue?

• It appears that besides a gas, energy, and paper shortage we're having a shortage of Spring.

Daughters want match for mother

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

You've heard of ambitious mothers trying to marry off their daughters? Well, I have two daughters who are determined to marry again. My husband, their father, died two years ago. Since then, I've managed to get a good job, enjoy my new freedom, and I do not see any reason why I should marry again. In fact, I'm happier single than I was married. I don't want to tell my daughters this because they think their father and I had a fairly good relationship which is far from the truth.

How can I handle these two matchmakers? Every time I go to their homes they have cornered another poor soul for me.

Single and Happy

Dear Happy:

Be glad your daughters are interested in your future. And who knows — you just might change your mind.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

My husband is a heavy drinker. He has never been brutal to me or the children. However, he uses foul language, comes home with lipstick on his shirt, misses work because he can't get out of bed, and embarrasses us constantly.

He claims he does not remember any of his wrongdoings. Is this possible? Also, can I ever hope he will change?

Wits End

Dear Wits End:

It is very possible that your husband does not remember.

Blackouts of memory are one sign of an alcoholic.

It is impossible to have a decent family life with an alcoholic and your children are the innocent victims. Tell your husband that he has two choices — seek the help he needs or get out of the house. Stress that you are willing to stick by him if he seeks help immediately. Why not contact A.A.? This splendid organization is listed in your telephone directory.

Yes, you can hope your husband will change. This will require understanding, courage, and faith. I wish you success.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I have a friend who takes her needlepoint with her everywhere she goes. She is constantly stitching and talking. She works on her needlepoint at every gathering.

I finally suggested to her that others did not enjoy this and that she should leave her work at home. Now, I'm afraid I've lost a friend because she replied, "My needlepoint doesn't hurt others and it relaxes me. I can't say the same for your smoking." I must admit that I am a heavy smoker. How can I undo what I did?

Mrs. C.C.

Dear Mrs. C.C.:

Disraeli said: It is much easier to be critical than to be correct.

Call your friend and tell her you are sorry. I am sure she'll be happy to accept your apology.

If you have a question, write: Pat and Marilyn Davis, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

COOKING CORNER

Put flair in party fare

By SUSAN DELIGHT
Copley News Service

The successful hostess is one who has the ken to include flair in party foods. Flair includes many things — food dramatics, eye appeal and out-of-the-ordinary dishes and seasonings.

It includes serving foods in chafing dishes, flambe foods and new and different combinations. These touches need not be unduly expensive, only excitingly different.

Chafing Dish Beef and Rice, Tasty Prune Appetizers and Spirited Honey Pears will most certainly come under this category. Each will add flair to any party.

CHAFING DISH BEEF AND RICE

- 1 pound beef top round, thinly sliced
- 2 tablespoons oil
- 1 clove garlic, sliced
- 1 large onion, sliced
- 1 green pepper, sliced
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- ¼ cup whiskey
- 2 cups beef broth
- Salt, pepper
- 2 cups precooked rice
- 1 tomato, in wedges

The meat should be sliced on the diagonal or against the grain, preferably while it is partially frozen. Heat the oil in the chafing dish over direct heat. Brown meat lightly. Remove to a dish and keep warm. Add vegetables, cook until onion is transparent. Add liquids, bring to a boil, add rice. Cover the pan and simmer until the rice is tender, about ten minutes. Add tomato wedges and meat, reheat for 2 minutes. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Peel pears but leave stems and cores intact. Add honey and water, bring to a boil, cover, and simmer 15 minutes until fruit is barely tender. Add liquor, steep overnight at room temperature. Serve fruit with a little sauce. Makes 4 servings. Use remainder of sauce to poach and steep other fruit, as desired. A little more liquor may be added to the sauce at serving time, for extra zest.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS Self-blame shows in 'T' crossings

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON

Copley News Service

Dear Dorothy:

I have a wonderful husband and four children. I work away from home at our business. At times, I wonder if I'm a good mother and wife, because there is such tragedy in my life. We almost lost two of our children through accidents. Deep down, I feel a guilt for these accidents, especially since the two children have been left with defects. — W.O.

Dear W.O.:

When the load of misfortune becomes too heavy for our normal human weaknesses, it is easy to walk in the shadow of guilt.

You are thrusting so much blame upon yourself, seen in the t crossings swung to the left, that you are turning yourself inward and letting it consume you.

You fear what others think, seen, consistently, in the high section of the m's. You expect them to blame and shame you. Nevertheless, you are working on some compensations. You are trying to draw some visible attention to yourself, and those circle i dots are doing it. Perhaps, you'll wear an outfit that will make you stand out from the crowd... or maybe it's an unusual hairdo. Whatever it is, others see you.

You want to think and act for yourself, seen in the short t's. Especially is it hard for you to accept ideas of others, seen in the very narrow (almost retraced) e loops.

Then, your life guides have to be practical, seen in the short i and h loops. You feel that if it's going to work, you must be able to see it. So, consolation and faith seem to you to be a pretty ineffective way to go in releasing your pressure of guilt feelings.

To be relieved, you have to believe in relief. And this takes a greater strength than yours... or mine.

If it is upon courage and spiritual standards that civilization, itself, depends for its survival, then so it is with you. — D.J.

● Market Report

Lamb, Ham, Chicken Good Buys

California asparagus is plentiful on produce counters now, of excellent quality and reasonable priced, with some special sales offered reports the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture. The crop precedes our own native asparagus harvest, which appears in early May.

Iceberg lettuce is in heavy supply and most reasonable. Navel oranges are plentiful and well priced. Carrots and turnips are also in very good supply.

On the meat counter, leg of lamb, ham and chicken are moderately priced. Chicken can usually be found on special sale.

If you find meat too high for your budget, remember that there's plenty of protein in milk, cheese, eggs and such crops as soybeans, chick peas, dried beans and peanuts. Combine cereals or vegetable foods with a little milk or cheese for balanced meals. Combinations like rice with fish, meatballs with spaghetti, meet all body needs.

INVISIBLE MENACE - GLASS DOORS

The newest menace on the home accident scene is the sliding glass door - the kind that stretches from floor to ceiling and usually opens to the backyard or patio.

Last year over 150,000 people were injured when they walked into doors they thought were open. Report after report tells of lost eyes, cut tendons, disfigured faces and severed arteries... all from flying glass.

One of the problems here is that a great majority of the glass in these doors is flimsy - often not much stronger than ordinary windowpane. But there are some solutions recommended by the National Safety Council.

Decorate your glass door with a decal or sandblasted-type design to alert people when the door is closed. A foolproof precaution, however, is to install a door made of shatterproof safety glass which doesn't cost too much more than ordinary glass. But whatever the cost difference, it's worth it.

STAMPS

Skylab project marked

By LEA BLAUVELT

A 10-cent commemorative will be issued May 14 in Houston to salute the Skylab Project.

Skylab IV splashed down Feb. 8 this year, after completing a record breaking 84 days in orbit. The fourth and final Skylab orbited the earth 1,214 times with a crew of three, collecting information increasing man's knowledge of his planet.

The stamp will be issued on the first anniversary of the Skylab I launch on May 14, 1973. That event thrust the United States into a new phase of the space age.

Depicted on the stamp is the dramatic two-man space walk required to free a jammed solar panel during the Skylab II mission. (A magnifying glass is helpful in locating the two spacemen.)

Robert T. McCall, who designed the stamp, has been closely connected with the space program since 1958. It has been speculated that if the National Aeronautics and Space Administration ever decides to send an artist into space, McCall will probably get the nod.

The stamp will be printed in yellow, red, blue and black in two passes through the offset press and in blue and black in a single pass through the Giori. It will be issued in panes of 50 with only one plate number. The only printing on the stamp will be a white "US 10c" in the upper left and a blue "Skylab" in the lower right.

First day cancellation requests may be sent to "Skylab Stamp, Postmaster, Houston, TX 77013." Proper remittance must be enclosed, along with addressed covers, and the orders must be postmarked no later than May 14.

WORLD OF MUSIC

Happy days

By JUDY HUGG

You hear again the clean, sparkling sounds of "Brigadoon," and then your eye falls on an item in the paper about people fainting and vomiting during a performance of "The Exorcist."

No wonder one of the biggest hits on TV lately is "Happy Days," which recalls a period in American life two decades ago when pot was just something you put on a stove.

If you are a Fifties Fan, or at least a fan of the mood of that era, you'll find gold in MGM's latest blockbuster release of "Those Glorious MGM Musicals." MGM was Hollywood in those days and most of the top stars worked under the MGM banner.

MGM Records issued six, two-record soundtrack albums in its first release — and the same number in the latest collector's special.

One of the gems is "Brigadoon," which was the first Broadway success of Lerner and Loewe ("My Fair Lady"). The film version of the musical about a magic village that appears only once each century came out in 1954. Gene Kelly and Cyd Charisse were the stars and Vincent Minnelli (father of Liza) was the director. Johnny ("Body and Soul") Green was the conductor of the MGM Studio Orchestra and Chorus. One of the best songs on the soundtrack is Kelly's "Almost Like Being in Love."

And then there was Jerome Kern's "Lovely to Look At," which first appeared on Broadway in the 1930s and was made into an MGM musical some 20 years later. Kathryn Grayson made a national anthem out of "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," the musical's hit song. The other stars were Red Skelton, Howard Keel (he was in nine out of ten musicals in those days), Ann Miller and Marge and Gower Champion.

Remember "I Won't Dance" and "Yesterdays"? They're on this soundtrack — the Champions do the former, and Miss Grayson the latter.

A musical called "Words and Music" made its film debut in 1948. The music and lyrics were written by Rodgers and Hart. It may be hard to believe, but mugster Mickey Rooney played the Hart role — and sings, on this LP, "Manhattan." He also sings with Judy Garland (she was in it, too) "I Wish I Were in Love Again," which alone is worth the price of admission.

Lena Horne sings "The Lady Is A Tramp," June Allyson croons "Thou Swell," and Ann Southern performs "Where's That Rainbow?" All on this same "Words and Music" album. They were lavish with talent in those days.

Sigmund Romberg's music was featured in the musical, "Deep in My Heart," which made its MGM film appearance in 1954 and starred (hold your breath) Jose Ferrer, Merle Oberon, Helen Traubel, Walter Pidgeon, Paul Henreid, Rosemary Clooney, Gene Kelly, Jane Powell, Vic Damone, Ann Miller, Cyd Charisse, Howard Keel (there's that man again) and Tony Martin. Which is quite a cast.

Printing at home revived

By GILBERT HILL
Copley News Service

A revived and rapidly growing interest in photographic prints — as compared with slides — means a vast increase in the number of active home darkrooms.

It means, too, undoubtedly that relatives once more are receiving those coveted snapshots of loved ones and that big pictures are available for display on walls, while photo albums are once more being seen on living room coffee tables.

The popularity of slides undoubtedly is based upon (1) color; and (2) their use in programs, lectures, and other audience entertainment.

Now color is available in prints. And, once the color negative is made there can be as many reproductions made as needed, of any size and kind, including slides. It is a real good trick, perhaps a bit easier with new materials, to produce a good duplicate slide. But any number of slides, cropped and color corrected, can also be made from a negative.

Admittedly, 20 album sized color prints (3½x5") from a 20 exposure roll of 35-mm film will cost almost twice that of 20 35-mm color slides. But the costs balance out quickly when an inter-negative is made for color or monochrome prints — or duplicate slides are required for any reason.

And once that color negative is available, the skilled photographer quickly develops the desire to "do it my way" in producing a print.

There was a time, of course, when almost every fine and successful photographer made his own prints. He would be almost scandalized at the idea of allowing anyone else to "even touch" his negatives.

And, under the rules of exhibitions approved by the Photographic Society of America, all prints, color or monochrome, still must be the work of the photographer — because at least half the fun, and most of the creativity in producing great prints comes in the darkroom.

With the arrival of color photography, however, with its time consuming complications and expense, many professional and commercial studios began sending their work to custom finishers, who, of necessity tended to standardize and mechanize, producing great work, but with a plant's style, rather than that of the photographer.

STANDING SKILL — Once a negative is available, any number of pictures like the family on skis, in a variety of sizes can be — and are being — made in home darkrooms these days. Color printing has been so simplified that it is easily within the reach of the skilled amateur.

There now seems a reversal of that trend, back to the individual darkroom, created by rapid changes and simplification of the chemical processes required, while giving full sway to individual modifications which were once routine in all print making.

Cropping, for instance, which part of the picture to enlarge and save and which to discard, is done under the easel, where the photographer can finalize the composition which he saw in the camera in the first place.

He can lighten and darken a color print with "dodging" to hold back exposure and "burning in" to intensify other sections, just as in monochrome printing. And he can even change, or modify colors, in parts of the print by use of filters as "dodging" tools. Normally, a photographer knows in three or four minutes or less if he's made a good monochrome print — or whether it has to be made over again, and often makes several prints to get that one that is seen on exhibition walls. In color it once took up to 23 minutes for processing and then up to another half hour to dry it enough to judge colors. Now that total time has been reduced to 20 minutes or less.

So, there's good reason why good photographers are having fun once more making their own prints in their own darkrooms.

Bethany Chancel Choir To Perform Faure's 'Requiem' On Passion Sunday

The Chancel Choir of Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center, will perform Gabriel Faure's "Requiem" or "Mass for the Dead" at the regular worship service in the sanctuary at 10 a.m. on "Passion Sunday", March 31.

The "Requiem" was first performed at the Madeleine in Paris in 1888 and is one of the finest and best loved works of the organist who received every honor the French government could bestow.

The performance is under the direction of the organist and choir director of Bethany Church, Lambert W. Brandes, who also is a member of the faculty of Eastern Nazarene College.

Choir members include: Peter Barber, Alita Benson, Anita Benson, Jean Bettinson, Winslow Bettinson, Carol Bodnar, Cheryl Bodnar, Lois Brandes, Barbara Carr, David Carr, Charles Dillingham, Sherry Eng, Sharyn Gifford, Helen Krasinski, Peter Krasinski, Barbara MacKay, Vivian Miller, Howard Phillips, Richard Phillips, David Ray, Mary Ruth Scott, Bernhard Sword, and Barbara Walker.

Solo Parts will be sung by Lois Brandes and Jean Bettinson.

Rev. John D. Banks, minister of Bethany Church, will conduct the worship service.

The substitution of a choral presentation in place of the sermon is an innovation for Bethany Church and is another in the series of events which make music a vital part of the church. The beautiful composition of the "Requiem" is especially appropriate to the spirit of passiontide.

Gabriel Faure was born May 12, 1845 at Pamiers, France, and lived until 1924. He held many posts as organist-choirmaster at major cathedrals of France. He studied composition under Saint-Saens from 1861 to 1865, and became professor of composition at the Paris Conservatory in 1896 and its director from 1905 to 1920.

Catholic Charitable Bureau Seeking Foster Parents

The Catholic Charitable Bureau of Boston is recruiting families to provide foster homes for children of all races from 12-18 years of age.

Some of the children are teenage single parents in need of a foster home placement for themselves and their infant babies. One of our children may need a foster home for a number of months, a year, or even longer.

The Bureau is seeking adults who are willing to offer a positive family experience, patience and understanding to a troubled youngster. Relevant information regarding the child will be provided prior to placement and the child will visit with the foster parents prior to actually moving into their home.

The foster family will receive a fee once the child is placed in the home. Added expenses for the child will be paid by the agency.

The Catholic Charitable Bureau staff will be available to a family when one of the children is placed. A social worker will also work closely with the child to help in his adjustment and to help him make plans for his future.

Foster parents income and size of home or apartment is not important. It's desire and ability to help a youngster in need of a caring family.

For additional information regarding foster homes, contact the Catholic Charitable Bureau, 523-5165.

Billy Graham Film 'His Land' To Be Shown At Bethany April 3

The Billy Graham film "His Land", rich in color and sounds, with a musical score by Ralph Carmichael will be shown April 3 at 7:30 p.m. in the Social Hall at Bethany Congregational Church, Spear St., Quincy Center.

Across a barren land, scarred by centuries of war and neglect, the spectres of ancient Israel appear, hover, and fade away. Suddenly there is movement of a different sort, and slowly, steadily, a startling transformation begins to take place.

Thus begins "His Land", the story of Israel from ancient to modern times. "His Land", a one-hour color feature motion picture, takes you on a journey through space, time, and current events. You see graphically, the fact that Israel today is a living testimony to the words of the prophets when they proclaimed that Israel would take her place among the nations of the world.

In the company of Cliff Barrows and Cliff Richard, England's popular star, who sings a number of Ralph Carmichael songs, some of which were actually written on location, you travel the vibrant streets and lonely solitary paths of this nation whose destiny is daily discussed in the counsels of governments all over the world ... the same paths taken by Jesus and the prophets: Galilee ... the wilderness ... Jerusalem ... the Mount of Olives ... mingle with the people of modern Israel as they work, plan and build a nation.

Words of Scripture come to life as the two men reflect upon the events that in recent years have confirmed much of the ancient prophecies. You are witness to the fact that out of death and desolation is emerging a new Land ... a "Land of milk and honey", where the future climactic events of history will take place.

While there will be no admission charge, an opportunity will be provided for a free-will offering to be used toward the expenses of the evening.

WHAT CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CAN do for a family.

It can bring an understanding of God's closeness and care, helping each one in the family in everything he does.

It can develop a deep love for the Bible, and joyful obedience to God's law.

It can teach every member, and the family together, to heal problems in the way Jesus showed.

How can Christian Science do all this? Through Sunday School classes that strengthen children. Through Sunday services that inspire parents. Through Wednesday testimony meetings where personal accounts of healing are shared. Through Reading Rooms where truths are pondered in quiet.

Won't you invite Christian Science into your family's life?

handsome plaque to Freddie

Guess How Much Freddie Has Sold And Win A Color TV Set

How much has Freddie sold?

If you have the right answer—or closest to it—South
Shore Television, 1570
Hancock St., Quincy Center, has a color television set for you.

The contest is one of the highlights of Freddie Days.
Thursday, Friday and Saturday in commemoration of Freddie Poblenz' 50 years as an appliance salesman.

The idea is to estimate the total dollar sales Freddie has rung up in the past half-century.

The one who comes closest to the computer-estimated
new portable color television set.

The figure was estimated by computer by feeding in approximate average prices of products, since 1924, including small and major home appliances. These average prices were multiplied by the estimated number of each appliance Freddie sold each of the last 50 years.

For example, if Freddie sold 100 radios a year, valued at $20 apiece for 50 years, then he sold $100,000 worth of radios.

The computerized figure will be sealed in an envelope and placed in a covered aquarium which will be secured by a half-inch chain and padlock and displayed in a window at South Shore Television and Appliance.

The envelope will be opened and the figure announced on Saturday,
April 6, at 4 p.m. by John R.
Murray, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

'They Know I'm Not A Fly-By-Night'

Freddie's Career A 50-Year Love Affair With The Public

By STEVE FERRARA

Frederick [Freddie] Poblenz remembers when he had to convince skeptical housewives that the new fandangle refrigerator was really better than an ice box.

He smiles when he recalls the "giant 10-inch" screen TV sets which came with magnifying glasses.

Freddie has been selling home appliances for a half-century — the last eight at South Shore Television & Appliance, 1570 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

At 75, he's the Quincy-South Shore area "dean" of sales and selling superstar.

And for him, it comes easy. He loves people, they love him. They trust him and the name brands he sells. Brand names such as Admiral, Electrophonic, Motorola, RCA, Sylvania, Westinghouse, Whirlpool, Zenith.

"After 50 years they know

I'm not a fly-by-night," he laughs.

The last thing he's thinking about is retirement. He's too young for that kind of nonsense. He's more interested in the new models of television sets and home appliances coming into South Shore Television & Appliance.

Freddie's selling career spans the crystal set era to today's modern color console TV sets and four-channel stereos.

"People used to have to buy parts to build their own crystal sets," he recalls. "Some built them in cigar boxes."

Freddie began his career as a salesman and buyer for a Boston jewelry firm and then switched over to home appliances for another Boston store in 1924.

Calvin Coolidge was president then. The Quincy tax rate was $27 and the population 54,000. Gustave Bates was mayor and Charles A. Ross president of the City Council.

Rump steak was selling at 30 cents a pound at Foy's Markets. At Remick's you could get blue serge two-pants suits for boys from 10 to 20 years old for $11.75 to $19.75. A new 5-passenger Chevrolet sedan was selling for $795 at North Quincy Garage.

You could get a pint of Plymouth Rock Ice Cream for 20 cents at the Wollaston Pharmacy but you had to make reservations.

FREDDIE POBLENZ [right] was 20 in 1918, and in his first job as assistant art buyer for A. Stowell and Co., Jewelers, Winter St., Boston. With him is Advertising Manager Paul F. Donelan.

thought ice had to be better than electricity."

The first refrigerator he sold cost $275 and was 10-cubic feet. Today that size is one of the smaller ones and costs around $179. Today's refrigerators are smaller overall but with more room inside and better insulated making them cheaper to operate.

After serving with several other Boston appliance stores, Freddie was employed by Westinghouse and in 1936 opened a dealership in Quincy called Robinson Home Utilities—under David Robinson. This is where South Shore Television & Appliance is

Mr. Frederick G. Poblenz
South Shore Television
1570 Hancock Street
Quincy, Massachusetts

Dear Fred,

It is with a great deal of pride that we are presenting to you today a plaque commemorating your full half century's service to the retail appliance and television industry.

You have witnessed and been a living part of the growth of this great American endeavor - from the days of selling parts for the construction of home-made radios to the advent of today's technological wonders including Color Television and 4-Channel Audio equipment.

You even anticipated Zenith by two years - because the Zenith Radio Corporation was not founded until 1927! And so, you certainly have been a valued spokesman for Zenith over the years and one number thousands of customers who have benefited by your product knowledge and sales acumen.

Your dedication to our industry and your inspiration to the many hundreds of retail salesmen who have benefited by your guidance and help over the past fifty years certainly place your name high in the "Retail Salesman Hall of Fame".

Our continued good wishes to you and your organization, South Shore Television, at Smith, we'll be looking forward to presenting you with an even more impressive plaque and recognition for your 75th selling anniversary!

Best personal regards,

Senior Prom Set For May 10

By JIM MCCABE

The North Quincy High Senior Prom Committee has announced that it's annual 1974 Prom, entitled "The Way We Were", will be held Friday, May 10, at the Blue Hills Country Club from 8 p.m. to midnight and will feature the music of Harvest.

"Today, it has to be every businessman's business."

"The vital business I refer to is Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve. They represent 30% of our trained military personnel, an integral part of the total force available, at a cost of only 5% of the budget." I urge you to lend your assistance to the efforts of the Committee for Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve by signing a Statement of Support Pledge Card. Particularly during Employer Support Week, April 1-6.

For Pledge Cards and information, simply write: Employer Support, Arlington, Va. 22202. Or contact your local Guard or Reserve unit.

Employer Support Week for the Guard and Reserve, April 1-6.

The Blue Hills Country Club which was the site of last year's senior prom at North, is lavishly decorated and comfortably sits 550-600 people. The dance floor is in the middle of the room and is convenient for all sections of the room to reach.

Under the direction of Mr. Nicholas Verenis, the senior class advisor, plans have been finalized for a roast beef dinner and delicious baked Alaska for desert, topped with hot chocolate sauce.

After dinner a full evening of music, dancing and entertainment is planned until 12 midnight when the traditional favors will be passed out marking the end of the occasion.

Persons attending the affair are urged to be in the lobby by 6:45 p.m. so they can get through the reception line and to their tables in order that the meal be served by 8 p.m.

Invitations are being sent out now to all North seniors, and tickets may be purchased from any committee member.

An interesting sidelight that all seniors purchasing tickets should know is that a seating plan will be available so you'll be able to pick where you want to sit. So if you want to be with your friends be sure and buy them together. The ticket price has not yet been determined.

Current Art Trends Recall The Tulip Mania

By Philip J. Lawrence
President

COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association

In these days of search for alternative places to invest money, it is well to keep in mind the admonition of the financier Bernard Baruch, "All economic movements, by their very nature, are motivated by crowd psychology."

Baruch liked to quote the German poet, dramatist, and historian Johann Schiller: "Anyone taken as an individual is tolerably sensible and reasonable; as a member of a crowd he at once becomes a 'blockhead.'"

Like birds in formed flight, the human crowd moves in various and unpredictable directions as, in unison, it searches for monetary windfalls. Take, for instance, the present boom in art. Even art dealers themselves are nervous about zooming prices on styles, schools, and artists that have suddenly caught public fancy.

A doctor who realized ten times his investment in an auction last October is quoted in a financial magazine: "In the last three years there has been a tremendous surge of buying, almost reckless. I stand there with my mouth agape. 'My God!' I think, 'they're getting fleeced.' I don't think it has much to do with inflation; it's more disillusion with the stock market."

The chief appraiser for a leading U.S. auction house is quoted in the same publication as frowning at the suggestion that art can "be used as an inflation hedge. "There are too many imponderables," he says.

The flight into art and its skyrocketing prices recalls a similar mania over tulips that afflicted Holland and western Europe in the 17th century. The tulip had been introduced into the continent about the middle of the 16th century; it was so rare that rich persons were prompted to send to Constantinople and pay extravagant prices for bulbs.

Interest broadened until every level of society became almost insanely fixated with owning tulips.

Rare species brought fabulous prices in the mid-1630's. One bulb was exchanged for twelve acres of building ground. Another brought 4,600 florins, a new carriage, two gray horses, and a complete set of harness.

The ultimate was a single root of the rare species called "The Viceroy" which was recorded as exchanged for the following: 8,000 pounds of wheat, 16,000 pounds of rye, four fat oxen, eight fat swine, twelve fat sheep, two hogsheds of wine, four tuns of beer, two tuns of butter, one thousand pounds of cheese, a complete bed, a suit of clothes, and a silver drinking cup.

People of all classes divested themselves of money and other properties in order to acquire these precious flowers. Prices soared as the tulip became a veritable medium of exchange.

Then prudent heads began to suspect an inevitable outcome and quietly divested themselves of their tulip collections. The trend spread and, quite suddenly, the tulip was worthless and Holland was in financial chaos. The government at the Hague was helpless to untangle the financial snarl. Those whose wealth was in tulips were left to bear their ruin as best they could.

Even today some art collectors are in comparable straits. A Connecticut animal lover is trying to sell his $14 million collection of horse paintings to save his expensive estate from foreclosure—a brother under the skin of the Amsterdam tulip collector of a bygone century.

A recently retired director of the Chase Manhattan $3-million art program said it succinctly if illegantly: "Whether he goes into the art market or the stock market, the small investor is set up to be screwed."

Alleged Lack Of Police Patrolling On QSD Called 'Erroneous'

Recent charges by the president of the MDC Patrolmen's Union claiming an alleged lack of police patrolling of MDC highways in Quincy have been called 'erroneous' by Laurence J. Carpenter, superintendent of the MDC police.

Union President William Delaney, an MDC patrolman, claimed Quincy would get more police patrolling Quincy Shore Drive and Furnace Brook Parkway if it broke an MDC agreement giving city police a share in jurisdiction over MDC property.

"Those two roads are better patrolled than ever under the agreement," replied Carpenter.

"Since the contract with Quincy police has been in effect our own patrols in the affected areas have been increased," Carpenter noted. "I am equally certain that Quincy police officers feel more confident while travelling those roads in the performance of their own patrol responsibilities. The joint jurisdiction contract has worked extremely well within the city of Quincy and I feel it should be continued."

Carpenter's statement followed that of Quincy Police Chief Francis X. Finn, who said Delaney's remarks, made recently at a State House hearing, were incorrect. The chief called Delaney 'seriously misinformed.'

CENTRAL JUNIOR HIGH School students Larry Player, Mike Reidy and Jim Oriola watch a suitcase spin under its own power during a General Motors "Previews of Progress" science show. The spinning suitcase dramatized the principles involved in modern navigation and space flights to the moon.

'So You Want To Be A Sports caster'

Coleman Hits Homerun As Author

By TOM SULLIVAN
Quincy Sun Writer

North Quincy native Ken Coleman, the Voice of the Red Sox and one of the country's most experienced broadcasters, has turned author.

His first book, "So You Want to be a Sports caster", published by Hawthorne Books, New York, is now in its second printing.

The book, in which Ken draws from his own 25-year experience as a nationally known TV and radio sports announcer, is a must for anyone aspiring to be a sports caster. In fact, I found it to be excellent reading for any sports buff.

"I have received hundreds of letters from those interested in broadcasting," Coleman said. "One thing I discovered was that I couldn't find any books on sports casting to recommend. That is how I came to write the book."

The introduction is written by Sidney B. McKen of the Worcester Telegram and is a play-by-play account of a day spent by McKen in the summer of 1970 with Ken and his crew at Fenway Park.

In the first chapter, "How it all Began," Ken tells of his start as a sports caster in 1947 for Station WSYB in Rutland, Vt. Actually Ken had gone on the air a year before, while still a student at Curry College, on a program called "Veterans Job Center of the Air" over WEEI in Boston.

Following a few years in Rutland, Ken returned to Quincy to work at WJDA before going to Cleveland in 1952 to start a 14-year career as announcer for the Cleveland Browns in football and 10 years with the Cleveland Indians in baseball.

In 1966 Ken came to Boston to succeed Curt Gowdy as the Voice of the Red Sox and he has done many other broadcasting jobs in addition to the Sox games.

When the Sox won the 1967 pennant, Ken narrated the "Impossible Dream" record which sold thousands of copies.

He has done Harvard football games, still does NFL games and this winter broadcast some of the outstanding college basketball games with TVS, an independent television network.

Ken has done considerable after dinner speaking and started doing speaking engagements when he was 21 years old and working for WJDA.

"At WJDA, under Jim Asher and Joe Tobin, I did a kiddies' program, disc jockey shows, newscasts, ship launchings, panel discussions, quiz programs, telephone-interview shows, remote broadcast interviews from Weymouth and Marshfield Fairs, and a lot more," he writes. "In addition there was football, basketball, occasionally high school or American Legion baseball, a daily sports program and a sports quiz show. The experience was invaluable and, though the work was hard, it was also fun."

We have known Ken since his days at WJDA and, despite all his success, he is still the same unassuming guy we knew then. Success hasn't spoiled him.

Ken covers the sports he knows best, baseball, football and basketball, and hockey, as well as golf, boxing, horse racing, bowling, tennis and swimming.

Ken, now a resident of Cohasset with his wife, Ellen, and their five children, has valuable tips for those who broadcast all sports.

For instance, in talking about baseball, he advises, "Give the score early and often, never say the score is 'three to two'—it is always 'Boston three, New York two'. Just three to two doesn't mean anything to the person who just tuned in. Keep your eye on the ball. Don't get caught looking at your scorecard before a catch is made in the outfield. Sometimes the ball is dropped and you, as well as the outfielders, are in trouble. At the end of each half inning as the team takes the field, look to see if any substitutions are made."

Ken, in his 16-chapter book, includes a Sporting Variety, The Daily and Weekly Sports Show, The Art of Interviewing, The Announcer Wears Many Hats, The Role of the Former athlete, Producing and Directing, Well-Known Announcers and How They Got That Way, Bouquets and Brickbats, Playback, and How Do You Get Started?

In the chapter, "Bouquets and Brickbats", Ken includes several letters from fans both praising and criticizing him and his view.

Ken also writes of the goofs which, he like every announcer, has made from time to time.

We found the chapter, "Playback", to be one of the book's highlights. In it he tells of many of the outstanding games and plays he has covered during his long career.

Among them are:

Describing Ted Williams' 500th major league home run after seeing Ted 20 years earlier while still a high school student and sitting in the Fenway Park bleachers.

Seeing Herb Score's brilliant pitching career ended when hit by a batted ball.

Describing the Red Sox amazing drive to the 1967 pennant when, Ken says, "Carl Yastrzemski had the best single season I ever saw on a baseball field."

Describing Otto Graham lead the Cleveland Browns to a championship every year of the ten he spent as a pro.

Watching Lou Groza, still a close personal friend of Ken's, kick three first period field goals to beat the Steelers.

Watching the amazing exploits of Jimmy Brown.

Describing Harvard's unbelievable comeback to tie Yale, 29-29, in 1968 on a pass reception by North Quincy's Pete Varney for the tying points.

And many, many others. Ken, a graduate of North Quincy High school where he played ball with Dick Donovan, a major league pitcher for several years, has the credentials for writing his book.

He has been honored for excellence in broadcasting by the American Federation of Radio and Television Broadcasters, and was named Ohio's outstanding broadcaster for six consecutive years by the National Association of Sports Writers and Broadcasters.

Although this is Ken's first book, he has done a lot of writing. He wrote a sports column for the Boston Sunday Herald's television magazine and has contributed to other publications.

We heartily recommend "So You Want to be a Sports caster" for any aspiring broadcaster and for any sports buff.

Bunker's Last Shot At GBL Title

For five years North Quincy baseball coach Charlie Bunker has tried to win the Greater Boston League championship and make the Eastern Mass. Tourney.

Each year Charlie has failed in both quests and this is his last chance to win the GBL crown. Next year the Raiders enter the Suburban League in all sports.

"Every year I have had high hopes and we got off to fast starts but faltered late in the season," Bunker said. "It seem we always have some key injuries or something else happens to keep us from winning the title or making the tournament. This year I am again optimistic and think we have a good chance."

Last year, just as they did the year before, the Raiders got off to a good start and appeared to have an excellent chance to win the GBL crown and make the tournament. But they lost their top pitcher, sophomore Tim Clifford, for several games and this was a big reason for the Raiders failing again.

Bunker has several returnees from last year's varsity and will be depending a good deal on graduates of last year's outstanding junior varsity team which, under Lou Ioannili, had a 15-1 record.

Joining Clifford, rangy right-hander, are three 1973 starters, first baseman Steve McLaughlin, second baseman Jim McCabe and shortstop Jack Rabel.

Mike Devine was backup to Bob Morton as last year's catcher and Dan Minton was a backup outfielder.

"It will be between Devine and Steve McKinnon, last year's junior varsity catcher, for that job," Bunker said. "Both are excellent catchers and I'm sure, regardless of who plays there, the job will be in good hands." Clifford should have another good year pitching. John Lawlor, unbeaten for the jayvees last year, looks like the number two pitcher and will play somewhere when not pitching, as he is a fine hitter. He led the jayvees in batting with a 478 average.

Rich Befera, also up from the jayvees, is another good looking pitcher who may be the number three starter and Bunker feels McCabe and Minton, both with strong arms, may do some relief pitching.

Paul Rooney, Frank Micelli and Dennis McGuire are outfielders from the jayvees and Bill Berberen saw a little action with the varsity. Rooney was one of the leading batters for the junior varsity, while McGuire also is a good batter and a fine all-around player.

Bert McMahon is a jayvee infield graduate who may be in the fight for third base. Lawlor may also play there when not pitching.

Bunker sees McLaughlin, Lawlor, Rabel and Micelli as among the best hitting prospects.

The jayvees, incidentally, should have another good year as last season's junior high team coached by Ron LaQuaglia, was undefeated. Both Ioannili and LaQuaglia are back this year.

North will play a 20-game schedule including 18 in the GBL with the addition of two new teams, Haverhill and Peabody, which hadn't been scheduled to enter the revised league until next year. Abp. Williams and B.C. High are the non-league games. Williams will be the opening opponent April 10 at Adams Field.

Bunker has lined up a busy schedule of scrimmages beginning April 4 and the Raiders will face Milton, Boston Latin, Braintree and Portsmouth N. H.

City, Morrisette Bid For N.E. Legion Baseball Tourney

A joint effort by Mayor Walter J. Hannon and Morrisette Legion Post is underway to bring the New England Regional American Legion Baseball Tournament to Quincy's Adams Field in May, 1975.

The initial step was successfully taken March 23 when the Morrisette Post bid to host the regional playoffs won the unanimous approval of the American Legion Department Athletic Committee and the Department Executive Committee at its meeting at Indian Orchard, Mass. The invitation to be host was extended by Department Vice Commander John P. Comer of Quincy and Norfolk County Athletic Chairman Charles Ward of Milton.

The American Legion Executive Committee has sent a letter of endorsement of the Morrisette Post bid to its National Americanism Commission in Indianapolis, Ind., who will make the final selection of the regional playoff site.

The regional tournament playoffs are a major athletic event and Mayor Hannon hopes to make it one of the activities for the Bicentennial year. "With the celebration of the 350th anniversary of Mt. Wollaston in 1975 and the beginning of Bicentennial activities, it seems to be an opportune time to schedule this outstanding event in the "City of Presidents", Mayor Hannon said. He has named Ray Cattaneo, coach of the Morrisette Legion team to work on scheduling the tournament here in Quincy.

Letters of endorsement have been sent to the Americanism Committee by Mayor Hannon, the Quincy City Council, the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, the Park and Recreation Board, the Quincy Center Business Association, WJDA, the Quincy Elks, Kiwanis Club, Lions Club and the Rotary Club.

Recently, through the efforts of Hannon and the City Council, a new lighting system was installed at Adams Field making it one of the most outstanding baseball fields in Southeastern Massachusetts. New bleachers were also installed to accommodate 714 people and an additional set of bleachers to seat the same amount will be installed this year. The existing bleachers will be relocated to other areas within the City.

Freddie Poblentz' Career Love Affair With Public

located today.

Other brand names were added and the business flourished until Robinson's death in 1965. Freddie and Allan Haas, TV repairman, then went with the DeNicola Brothers - Pete and Remo - owners of South Shore Television & Appliance.

"Retire?" laughs Freddie when questioned. "I've never even thought about it."

Freddie helped pioneer the sale of television sets in Quincy, after World War Two, while with Robinson.

"I sold the large cabinet TV's with the small, 10-inch screens. They were advertised as 'giant 10-inch screens' but people bought magnifying glasses to put over the screen and enlarge the picture."

"The buying public is the same today as it was when I started in business," says Freddie. "At first people are skeptical about a new advancement, but soon they see that new conveniences make living easier."

"Like the electric refrigerator. People hesitated but soon realized that it was the ultimate thing to have."

Freddie sold the first fully automatic clothes washers in Quincy while with Robinson. They replaced the old wringer-type washers, but spun so fast [500 to 600 revolutions a minute] that they had to be bolted through the floor and the ceiling of the room below.

"If they weren't bolted down they would jump all over the room. Sometimes you could see the floor bouncing up and down in time with the machine."

Freddie explained that for years it was hard to convince people that clothes driers were efficient. Women just preferred to hang their wash out in the fresh air and sunshine.

"But as time went on the women realized that both a washer and drier are a must. Today almost everyone has both."

When the U.S. entered World War II, Freddie enlisted in a Coast Guard Reservist Unit and continued as a part-time salesman at Robinson.

Freddie will go to great lengths to prove the quality of merchandise-if he believes in it.

During World War II he was selling wicker baby carriages at Robinson Brothers. One young mother said she didn't think the carriages looked secure enough to put her baby into.

"You don't think so?" said Freddie, as he wisked her off her feet, plopped her down in the carriage, and wheeled her up and down Hancock St.

Today Freddie doesn't even look close to retirement age. He doesn't act it, either. Last April he spent an afternoon of his vacation in Puerto Rico snorkelling in coral reefs one quarter of a mile off shore.

Freddie has three children -- his oldest daughter, Mrs. Barbara Ross of Boxford, Mass.; Mrs. Jean Louise McGrath of Sharon; and son Fred Jr., who is an engineer for Lockheed Co. in California. They have presented him 13 grandchildren, and recently, his first great grandchild.

In his 50 years as an appliance salesman Freddie has sold a lot of appliances and made a lot of people happy.

"I've always specialized in personal service," he says. "People feel more secure knowing they are getting a dependable product from their salesman and from South Shore Television."

"When a man has been in the business for 50 years people know he's not running some fly-by-night operation."

"People become your customer, and also a pretty good friend. They call you by your first name and they feel like they know you. It's not like in a large department store where you're a number, and not a name. That's good old-fashioned service."

Thousands of customers on the South Shore know Freddie today.

When they come in to see Freddie many say, "Hey, are you still around? I bought my first TV off of you 25 years ago."

Now, their children are also buying from him.

Profile Of A City

Quincy 99 Percent White, Median Family Income $11,092

United Community Planning Corporation (formerly United Community Services of Metropolitan Boston) reports the 1970 median family income in Quincy was $11,092 as compared to a median of $9,133 for Boston families.

Census figures recently compiled and analyzed by the UCPCC Research Department from records collected during the U.S. Census Bureau's 1970 count show that:

Twenty-five percent of Quincy families had an annual income of $15,000 or more and five percent earned less than $3,000 per year as compared to Boston where 18 percent of the families had an annual income of $15,000 or more per year and 10 percent earned less than $3,000 per year;

The racial composition in Quincy was 99 percent white and 1 percent black and other racial groups. Boston was 82 percent white, 16 percent black, and 2 percent other racial groups;

Nine percent of Quincy residents aged 25 and older graduated from college and 36 percent did not complete high school. In Boston, 10 percent of the residents graduated from college and 46 percent did not complete high school;

Fifty-seven percent of the workers in both Quincy and Boston had white collar jobs — professional, technical, administrative, managerial, clerical and sales;

Fifty-nine percent of Quincy residents had lived in the same dwelling for almost 10 years and 56 percent owned their homes as compared to the City of Boston where 73 percent of the residents rented their living quarters;

Thirty-seven percent of Quincy residents were born or had at least one parent who was born outside the U.S. Of this number 23 percent were Canadian, 23 percent were Italian and 19 percent were Irish. In comparison, 37 percent of Boston residents were born or had at least one parent who was born outside the U.S. Of this number, 22 percent were Irish, 19 percent were Italian and 15 percent were Canadian.

2-Year Recuperation Ahead

Friends Planning Dinner Dance For Kidney Transplant Patient

By STEVE FERRARA

A 38-year-old Scottish-born bricklayer, home after undergoing a three-hour kidney transplant Feb. 8, faces another two years of recuperation to see if his body will accept or reject the new organ.

James (Scotty) Holmes of 77 Lawn Ave., Quincy Point was rushed to New England Medical Center in the middle of the night for the operation when a kidney was donated unexpectedly.

He had been suffering from chronic Nephritis, a degenerative disease which destroys kidney function, for two and a half years and has been on dialysis treatment at Lemuel Shattuck Hospital, Jamaica Plain since March, 1973. Dialysis treatment was begun when Holmes collapsed during a visit to Scotland sponsored by friends one year ago. Since then his kidneys had been operating at only five percent efficiency, until they were removed Aug. 1.

Holmes has been out of work since Sept., 1972. He has been a bricklayer since before he immigrated from Scotland 15 years ago.

Friends and fellow workers are sponsoring a dinner dance at the Lantana, Randolph, April 25 to help defray hospital costs and housekeeping expenses.

"I feel terrific now," Holmes says. "I used to feel lousy all the time when I was on the (dialysis) machine. I get tired easily but I feel fine."

Holmes is off dialysis now, living on his one transplanted kidney, but makes regular visits to New England Medical Center outpatient department three days a week for tests.

His wife, Mrs. Irene Holmes, says that Scotty will not be able

Draftsmen Expect Layoffs

Strike Talks Deadlocked On Several Issues

By TOM HENSHAW

The 19-day-old strike at General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard centered this week around issues not directly related to the contract struggle between Local 5 of the Shipbuilders' union and the company.

At least four, possibly nine, supervisors were fired by the company, reportedly for refusing to perform union work, although it was said they were offered an opportunity to return to their jobs and some did.

One page typewritten flyers were circulated among supervisors urging them to "form an organization to protect our rights." It was signed by the "Supervisor's Committee to Organize", which was not further identified.

Sixty seven members of the Clerical Workers Local 90 were laid off for lack of work Thursday [March 28], the day after the company obtained an injunction forbidding mass picketing and enabling them and others to cross the Local 5 picket lines.

And James Arthur, president of Draftsmen's Local 151 warned his people to "be prepared for layoffs. It's happening to Local 90; it's going to happen to us."

Meanwhile, efforts were made by mediators to resume negotiations Thursday and Friday but they failed even before union and management could sit down at the same table.

Negotiations have been suspended since March 16.

Local 5, asking $1.16 an hour [scaled down from $1.50] increase plus 25 cents an hour cost of living adjustment, wants to settle the money sections of the contract first.

General Dynamics, offering raises from 34 cents an hour to 90 cents an hour during a three-year contract, wants to discuss "production improvement" aspects of the contract before bargaining on money.

A spokesman for the company said:

"We are making an effort to eliminate those work practices which result in idle time or standby time. Idle time is created when a worker has to wait for someone else to do something before he can continue his job."

"We also want some relief from the abuses of the system under which the company pays union stewards while they are conducting union business."

"The company is willing to pay a steward while he is negotiating union business and grievances with the company on the premises. But some are devoting a full 40 hours to union business."

Such non-productive time must be eliminated if the company is to remain competitive in bidding for new contracts, he said.

The company spokesman declined to comment on the firing of the supervisors, saying only that "it is an internal situation which we feel has been solved. We don't see any further problem."

Sources close to the strike gave this account of troubles between the company and its non-striking supervisory employees:

At least four, possibly eight supervisors were fired Friday.

General Dynamics officials met with other supervisors in the company cafeteria Monday. They were told by General Manager P. Takis Veliotis that "those who want to stick with me stay, the others can leave."

Two thirds of the supervisors walked out, one source said.

Late Monday afternoon, a source said, the six or eight supervisors who had been fired were given a chance to come back to work. Some did. But another supervisor was fired Tuesday.

Calling Alpha-1

On television it's Adam-12 but around Quincy it's Alpha-1, Bravo-2, Charlie-3; etc.

The city has changed the designations of its police cars to facilitate use of the Suburban Police Automatic Information System computer, which carries two digit designations for cars.

Each department division now has its own code name [Alpha, Bravo, Charlie, Delta]. Echo means lieutenants, Frank is sergeants and X-ray stands for ambulances.

And if you hear a call for Sierra 9, that's Chief Francis X. Finn.

QCAFA Collects Over 400 Signatures

More than 400 signatures have been obtained by the Quincy Consumers Against Fuel Adjustment, on their petitions to lower electric bills.

The petitions read: "We, the consumers of Massachusetts are outraged at the high prices of our electric bills. We totally object to having 100 per cent of the increased fuel cost passed on to us. We, the undersigned, want our bills lowered. NOW!!!"

The QCAFA has outlined its four basic reasons for demanding a lowering of their electric bills:

- "We object to having 100 per cent of increased fuel costs passed on to we, the consumers. This eliminates the incentive on the part of electric companies to obtain the cheapest possible fuel. This benefits both the electric companies and the fuel companies, leaving we, the consumers on the short end of the stick.

- "We object to paying bills covering a two-month period and being charged for both months at the second month's rate. The electric company presently bills its customers bimonthly, using the higher price of oil in the second month to compute the fuel adjustment for the first month. According to Congressman Michael Harrington [D-Mass], the electric company has overcharged 750,000 customers $3.6 million in this manner.

- "Whereas the electric companies are monopolies, we see no need for them to spend money on advertising.

- "Finally, the dividend rate of the New England Electric System was 1.56 in 1971, 1.59 in 1972 and 1.78 in 1973. These increased dividends are unnecessary for a public utility and are paid by we, the consumers.

The Quincy Consumers Against Fuel Adjustment will be presenting its petitions to the Department of Public Utilities at a public hearing April 30.

The QCAFA is urging consumers in Quincy who seriously want to have their electric bill lowered to actively join the organization. The next meeting will be Friday at 7:30 p.m. at the Southwest Community Center, 382 Granite St.

Mc Donald Says:

County Disposal Plan 'Money Maker For Quincy'

A regional solid waste management plan for Norfolk County comes up before the Committee on Natural Resources in the State House Wednesday, April 10, with favorable reactions from most of the 28 communities involved.

"We have talked with selectmen of 20 towns," said County Commissioner George B. McDonald of Quincy, an ardent proponent of the plan, Tuesday, "and we have had no opposition to it at all."

The plan, which will cost the county some $38 million dollars, was put together by Camp Dresser and McKee, Inc., consulting engineers, after a 16-month study. Legislation is required to put it into action.

The proposals would divide the county into four districts, each served by a processing facility that would reduce the district's rubbish to a residue that could be disposed of in a single dump in Norfolk.

One of the processing facilities would be located in Quincy near the current city dump in the quarry area on Ricciuti Drive. McDonald views that part of the plan as an economic windfall for the city.

"Quincy will make money on the operation," he says.

"As one of the host communities with a processing site in the city, Quincy will receive a guaranteed credit of $3 a ton for all refuse taken to the site from Milton, Weymouth, Cohasset and eventually Braintree.

"The estimate is very low. It will go up to a $7 or $8 a ton credit with its rubbish picked up and transported for nothing. All Quincy will have to do is maintain the site."

The study by Camp Dresser and McKee reported that it cost Quincy about $950,000 for its rubbish collection in 1972 and the disposal facility on Ricciuti Drive has from 10 to 12 years left as a dump.

It also disclosed:

- Quincy now generates 2,500 tons of solid waste a week, including 730 tons of household waste, 670 tons of industrial waste, 370 tons of commercial waste and 370 tons of construction and demolition waste.

- The city's weekly tonnage will rise to 3,800 by 1995.

The processing plant in Quincy would take up only 12 acres of the Ricciuti Drive site, returning other dump land, which is currently leased by the city, to the tax rolls.

McDonald said the county plan is expected to go into operation by late 1977 or early 1978.

"That's the fastest we can get it into operation," he said. "And we have to. Some of the towns in the county have less than three years of life left in their town dumps.

"Waste disposal is the number one problem not only in the United States but in the world.

"We have the best plan right here. All the other states and a lot of countries are going to be watching us to see how Norfolk County works out its problems."

The Right Move, The Right Man

Mayor Walter Hannon has made the right move in his plan to reorganize the city's five "earth departments" under a Commissioner of Natural Resources.

And in his choice of Park-Recreation Board Executive Secretary Richard J. Koch to serve as commissioner, he has tapped the right man.

It would work like this: the heads of the cemetery, park, recreation and forestry departments and the executive director of the conservation commission would be under the commissioner's over-all supervision. And, the commissioner would be directly responsible to the mayor and City Council.

What the mayor is trying to do is to centralize administration of these five departments that have much in common: the good earth and open space of Quincy.

The feeling, of course, is that the cemetery department problems the past few months prompted the move, because a commissioner might have had tighter control over that area.

Whether it did or not, the move still is the right one in that it has one man overseeing the five departments rather than having each of the five departments jockeying for favoritism in money appropriations, and other matters. He would give each department fair treatment and would be in a position to know the problems of each and to deal with them objectively.

Quincy's "earth", whether its for cemetery purposes, for park land, recreation open space or whether trees are growing from it, is still a precious commodity. And these departments affect just about every one of Quincy's 92,000 residents in one way or another.

Mr. Koch has not yet said he would accept the appointment. We hope he does because in his dozen or so years as head of the Park Department, he has shown a dedication to service, expertise and good old common sense.

We hope the City Council approves the plan and that Mr. Koch accepts the honor of being the first Commissioner of Natural Resources.

It is a good step in the right direction for a city that is now a $62 million per year business.

And Mayor Hannon has picked the right man to make that step.

5 From Quincy In Student Government Day

Five Quincy youths have been selected to represent their schools at the annual Student Government Day at the State House Friday.

They are:
Donita Sanger of 100 Phillips St., Wollaston, Woodward School; Carl Awed of 580 Furnace Brook Parkway, Wollaston, Quincy High; Robert McCulley of 58 Hovey St., North Quincy, Norfolk

Agricultural School; Gerard McKillop of 210 Norfolk St., Wollaston, Timmins High; and James Timmins, 196 Hamilton Ave., North Quincy, Boston College High.

The five will be escorted to and from the State House by Rep. Joseph E. Brett [D-Quincy] and will take part in a mock session of the legislature including committee hearings, debates and voting.

- Nixon Impeachment Almost Certain
- Oil Pipeline Manipulations
- Food, Fuel Bills Going Up

(Copyright, 1974, by United Feature Syndicate.)

WASHINGTON — The impeachment of President Nixon, which used to be the pipedream of a small group of liberal congressmen, now seems almost certain. Even after the firing of Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox, the secret count for impeachment in the House was less than 80 votes. But today, a majority are expected to vote for impeachment.

Several factors have brought about this change. First, the incessant public debate has lessened the fear of the process. Previously, many congressmen were afraid the move would weaken the political system. Now they have become convinced that the best way to preserve the system is to impeach the President.

Other congressmen are guided by pure politics. In this election year, they have more to lose by supporting the President than by repudiating him.

But the justification most often given privately for impeachment is that the congressmen are merely grand jurors. They determine only whether there is enough evidence to warrant a trial. They don't judge the President's guilt or innocence. It will take a two-thirds vote of the Senate to convict him.

Meanwhile, more than 100 lawyers, investigators and research assistants are now studying the evidence behind the tightly closed doors of the House Judiciary Committee. Enough evidence has already leaked out to justify a Senate trial. So the House is expected to vote for impeachment.

Even the President himself, according to my White House sources, is now concentrating on winning the final showdown in the Senate.

Europe's Complaint: A petulant President Nixon has complained that our European allies have rewarded us for our past generosity with economic confrontation and open hostility. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has also made no secret of his irritation with Western Europe.

In fairness, I have talked to European diplomats on both sides of the Atlantic to get their side of the story. Their chief complaint is that Washington embarks on a diplomatic course without consulting them, yet expects them to follow obediently.

They object to the way the Nixon Administration practices diplomacy by secrecy and surprise. Not even American diplomats know what is going on at the Nixon-Kissinger level. The people at the lower levels are unable to implement policies they know nothing about. Therefore, they can't discuss problems and policies with their European counterparts.

Our European allies often are left in the dark until a new policy has been adopted. Then they are taken by surprise after it is too late to contribute their ideas. This sort of diplomacy, the Europeans have told me, breeds suspicion and resentment.

I can now report, however, that Kissinger is taking time from the Middle East crisis and the Soviet detente to deal more with Europe. He is quietly working out new modes of advance consultation with our allies, particularly Britain, France and West Germany.

Pipeline Manipulation: Oil pipelines, like a vast underground highway network, pump crude oil around the country. These underground rivers of oil are controlled by the big oil companies through joint ownership of the pipelines.

Thus, the major oil companies have been able to control oil and gas deliveries to virtually every area of the nation. They can also squeeze out competition by making less oil and gas available to the independents.

The pipeline monopoly has caused scattered shortages and higher prices all across the nation. Congressional investigators now have evidence that the heating oil shortage of last winter was created by manipulating the pipelines.

The effort to squeeze out heating oil retailers forced some schools, hospitals and homes to go without heat. Many independent gas station owners were also cut off by the pipeline owners when the gas pinch began to be felt.

Yet despite this obvious monopoly condition, the Justice Department has failed to take action. The congressional sleuths suspect that political influence may be the reason. They recall that President Nixon collected more than $5 million from oilmen during his 1972 campaign.

Up, Up And Away: President Nixon's economists, with their charts and slide rules, have made some disturbing calculations. They have concluded unhappily that food and fuel bills will continue to climb this year.

At the same time, wages aren't expected to keep pace with prices and profits. This means the purchasing power of the average American will drop still more this year.

The economists have given the President the bad news, but he is reluctant to reveal it to a Watergate-weary nation. Instead, he told businessmen in Chicago that the rest of the world has even worse inflation. The truth is that at least eight industrialized nations have lower inflation rates and most industrialized countries have less unemployment than does the United States.

The food and fuel industries, meanwhile, are ringing up record profits. Food processors and supermarket chains are paying the farmers less and charging their customers more for many basic foods. And the outlook is for still higher food prices.

The oil companies are raking in even bigger profits. Yet they are now hungrily eyeing prices in Europe where gasoline has gone from an average 85 cents to $1.50 a gallon in the past year. Gasoline is selling from $1.15 a gallon in Britain to $1.92 a gallon in Portugal.

Now the oil companies are trying to figure out how they can push prices in the United States closer to the European level.

Unsolicited Sex Mail On Decline

The number of complaints about unsolicited sexually oriented material sent through the mails is on the decline, according to the Postal Service.

Such complaints from postal customers totaled about 45,000 for the year ended last June 30. This was 38.4 per cent fewer than the 73,000 received the previous year.

Postal officials said laws aimed at unsolicited sexually oriented advertising have made the problem less acute.

There are two legal methods by which postal customers may prevent the delivery of objectionable mail to their residences.

• Those who have received unsolicited material considered to be offensive may submit a request to their local postmaster which directs a particular mailer to refrain from sending any additional mail to the postal customer.

• Persons who do not desire to receive any such material may have their names and addresses placed on an official list maintained by the Postal Service. No one may mail any sexually oriented advertisement to any individual whose name and address have appeared on the list for more than 30 days."

A 'People's Commissioner'? New Job For Newcomb?

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Mayor Walter Hannon may have further plans to consolidate other municipal departments under commissioners.

Our report here last week that he planned to reorganize the five so-called "earth" departments with Richard Koch as commissioner was quickly confirmed by the mayor's office.

The heads of the cemetery, park, recreation, forestry departments and the executive director of the conservation commission would come under the commissioner.

Koch right now is weighing the offer.

City Hall sources, meanwhile, report that once this is all put together and if it works as well as Hannon thinks it will, he will move to consolidate other departments.

In fact, according to the sources, this has already been discussed. One such concept would be a so-called "People's Commissioner" with the city treasurer-tax collector, veterans services director and purchasing agent under him.

Still a possibility—but further away than that—would be a public safety commissioner with the police and fire chiefs, civil defense director and harbor masters under him.

MEANWHILE, City Hall sources also report that Purchasing Agent Richard Newcomb may be in line for a new post.

Reports are that he will in the near future be named assistant director of the Quincy City Hospital in charge of non-health departments such as maintenance, finance, housekeeping, etc.

ANOTHER HAT is expected to soon go sailing into the First Norfolk District state representative ring. This one stenciled: Peter Gacicia of South Quincy.

He would be the first contender from that area and apparently the first Republican to enter. However, some friends reportedly have been trying to convince him to run as an Independent.

Already off and running are Democrats James Papile, Thomas Williams and Robert Cerasoli.

Political observers are wondering if there might be an entry from North Weymouth yet. Two of the precincts in the district for the first time this year are North Weymouth based.

THE SPECULATION CORPS hears that Ward 6 Councillor Dennis Harrington might make a bid against Rep. Joseph Brett in the new single seat Third Norfolk District, this fall.

WELL, you'd have to say that the Norfolk County Development and Tourist Council has both an appropriate address and telephone number. Address: 1776 Heritage Drive [at State Street South, North Quincy]. Telephone: 328-1776.

JOSEPH SHEA, Mayor Hannon's executive secretary, has a cracked vertebra, but doesn't know how he did it. And despite it, he's been managing to get into work.

AS FORMER CHAIRMAN and chief executive officer of General Motors Corporation, you might think James Roche would be one to project a big wheel [no pun intended] image wherever he goes. Not so, says USAF Col. Milton Mitler, who is assistant to Roche in the latter's new role as chairman of the National Committee for Employer Support of the Guard and the Reserve.

Mitler told this writer at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce dinner meeting where Roche was keynote speaker that Roche shuns hotel suites in favor of a single room, for example. And pays his own way when he travels by commercial airliner in connection with his new duties. And he likes plain foods. Sounds like this is at least one appointment President Nixon scored a plus on.

INCIDENTALLY, those handsome caricatures presented to Roche and Chamber Past President John Blake are the talented work of Bill [Brob] Robertson formerly of the Herald-Traveler.

HARRY MESSINA, president of the Quincy Youth Hockey Association, is convalescing at home following back surgery at Mass. General Hospital. He'll be sidelined for about six months at his home, 10 Appleton St., North Quincy.

BARON HUGO, the noted orchestra leader via West Quincy, has been around a long-time and has known many of the greats before, during and after the big band era. And says he: "The most personable orchestra leader I have ever met in my life is Myron Floren."

Baron was at the Blue Hill Country Club recently where Floren packed them in. Floren took time out to mingle with the crowd and after the dance stayed on to chat and meet the folks.

Baron, incidentally, will be doing a "Big Band Night" at the Chateau de Ville, Randolph Nov. 15 for the Milton Rotary Club. He jammed them in there a few months ago, playing the "original arrangements of the big bands."

The most requested numbers: Glenn Miller's "Moonlight Serenade," "In The Mood" and "Tuxedo Junction."

Baron doesn't think the big bands will ever come back as we used to know them in the 1940's. "But they're going to be around for a long time to come," he says. [We hope so.]

TYPO TERROR DEPT: From the Ft. Wayne News-Sentinel: The victim had been stabbed by co-workers worried about her unusual lateness to work."

Time To Pay Property Taxes Again?

"Is it time to pay property taxes again? I just paid them last October and now I've received another bill."

To this inquiry the Voter Information Phone of the League of Women Voters answered, "Yes, it is time to pay again. If your bill is not paid by May 1, 1974, it will be subject to interest charges."

This bill covers a six-month period and will complete the changeover being made by all cities and towns to conform to the Commonwealth's fiscal year which starts July 1 and ends the following June 30. From now on, taxes may be paid twice a year instead of annually.

There is another tax bill coming along soon but it needn't be paid immediately. The assessors must mail a full year's tax bill for the coming fiscal year July 1, 1974 to June 30, 1975 to all property owners by June 15, 1974. This bill may be paid in two semi-annual installments the first due by Nov. 1, 1974, the second by May 1, 1975. That's the way it will be thereafter, one bill a year that can be paid in semi-annual installments in November and May.

Comments On Draft Lottery, Sun's Editorials

Editor, Quincy Sun:

It seems significant that results of the 6th U. S. draft lottery coincided with the Quincy Sun's editorials (3/21/74) - "Congratulations Sons of Italy" and "Streaking: It's How You Look At It!"

One of my favorite non-American Italians from history was John Bernardone, the son of a wealthy cloth merchant. When taken to court, he removed all his clothes. Standing naked, he handed them to his father, who disinherited him.

The young man had had a bad military experience. He had been a leader of youthful revelers and had seen his friends killed in a senseless war.

Because of his familiarity with the language of medieval troubadours, his nickname was "Il Francesco" (the little Frenchman).

He lived in Assisi and, with his own hands, built the chapel of Santa Maria degli Angeli, which he called his "Portiuncula" (little inheritance).

St. Francis must have considered the lilies of the field. Probably he believed that lewdness, like beauty, is in the eye of the beholder.

In 1974, by still promoting a birthday draft lottery for possible military service, we, of the United States, annually rob our sons of their rightful inheritance - the sanctity of their natal day. This proves that despite our vast wealth and power, we are a degenerate nation with scant reverence for life. (We advance the "rights of fetuses" and especially memorialize those slain in battle.)

But war is the most obscene of all possible acts. Hopefully, our streaking youths may acquire the vision of the gentle, humble saint from Assisi. If they do, they might give their followers a peaceful "Portiuncula" based on love.

Love And What Looks Like Love

There's a big difference between SELF LOVE ... and SELF INDULGENCE. Loving yourself is trying to meet one's total needs ... not just one small part of you ... at one small point in time. That's self-indulgence. List your self-indulgences ... over sleeping ... over eating ... over drinking ... over preoccupation with your health ... or your children ... or your job ... or your possessions ... being lazy ... continuing to be a loner ... continuing to be a poor reader ... irresponsible ... immature. The list is limitless of ways we can indulge ourselves. But none of them show self love. This is the problem of most people ... the lack of loving themselves. Nobody loves himself/herself too much.

Jesus said ... "Love your neighbor as yourself". The Church and preachers of the gospel got this all turned around in their eagerness to "save the world" ... encouraging people to sacrifice for the heathen a few generations ago ... as a sort of trade-off it came through that God will love you more and prosper you more if you sacrifice. That isn't the Gospel of Jesus at all. He said ... "Love your neighbor as yourself." The measuring stick of neighbor love ... husband love ... wife love ... love of children, any real love, is HOW DO YOU LOVE YOURSELF? That the true gospel.

Sacrificing love of yourself ... by neglecting yourself ... your own development, your own needs ... so you can show love to others becomes a Phony thing. It may look good ... outwardly that you're a worthy person ... be very charming ... but is really deceitful and shortlived. Without love of self first, it only looks like love.

To be praising someone else ... building them up ... making them look big only makes ourselves look little and unworthy. To put oneself down to build another up just looks like love. Mary did this with her six children. She sacrificed her own needs and pleasures for her children ... called it "love". It was really misguided self sacrifice. It makes children feel guilty ... not appreciative of their parents. How can anyone feel good about benefitting from the sacrifice of someone else? Only by having no moral sense ... no knowledge of the way love works.

Love yourself ... you must before you can really love anyone else.

Consumer Corner

Q - I'll be graduating from high school this June and would like to select a good private vocational school to attend. Do you have any tips?

A - First and foremost, don't be swayed by sophisticated ad copy and undocumented claims. The Federal Trade Commission recommends you contact prospective employers, the people who may be hiring you when you complete your schooling. Tell them the name of the school and the course of training. Then ask them the 4 questions: 1 - Would you hire graduates of the school? 2 - How many have you actually hired? 3 - Were they hired because of the school training? 4 - Did the training make any difference in the salary?

Q - Certain days of the week my mailbox is stuffed with junk mail, why can't the mailman save himself the trouble and skip my house as far as delivering junk mail?

A - The Post Office says there is no such thing as junk mail. Mail advertisers spend millions of dollars on postage to send you coupons and tell you about their sales. This money pays a lot of the cost of running the Post Office, it pays part of the cost of the letters and packages you send.

Q - They say 1.8 million people are injured on stairs in the house in an average year while windows and doors cause injury to another 350,000. My wife and I are looking to build or buy a new home. Where can we seek help in eliminating these hazards in our new home?

A - It's spelled out for you in an excellent book produced by the Housing and Urban Development Agency and is available for $1.50 at the Government Book Store, Room G-25, J. F. Kennedy Federal Bldg., Boston, MA 02203.

Youth Speaks Out

• Modern day Robin Hoods - They steal the rich and ransom them for food for the poor.

• The energy crisis may be a hoax, but if you check Congress you'll find a definite shortage of energy.

• We wonder if Mr. Nixon likes "tapeless" waitresses?

• Maybe we should have a new colum in The Quincy Sun - "Youth Streaks Out".

• With the problems Delta Airlines is having, Delta may stand for Don't Ever Leave The Airport.

• Gas stations are now open on Sunday - Must we be "robbed" on the Sabbath also?

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS Word endings hint tenacity

Dear Dorothy:

My husband is very appealing to other women. I guess I'm either terribly possessive or very insecure. I feel that every woman he's around is my rival. I try to be more attractive, understanding, attentive and loving than any woman he could meet. He says that I'm the only one and to trust him. He's always home on time and we always go out together and are happy. For eight years, now, our love has been stronger than any hurts we've had. Why, then, do I feel like I'm competing with other women? — T.R.

Dear T.R.:

If he begs for your trust, and furnishes all the proof it should make your heart feel bigger than life.

You are very possessive, seen in the small beginning loop on capital M. The up-swing endings keep you begging for his constant "sweetnothings." Then, the small hooks on the word endings make you as tenacious as a glue stick. You won't let loose, no matter what. When you reached your legal wifely status, you forgot to put aside your childish ways.

Your vivid imagination, seen in the large lower loops on y and g, plays tricks on you. Let your husband speak to or look at another woman, and your mind's eye can see just about anything it wants to see. It can blow an innocent gesture all out of proportion until you find yourself living with an intolerable, but unreal situation.

The closely spaced letters keep you conveniently "ruted" to your post, as a wife, while your poor mind scrambles around trying to fit all the pieces together of something which isn't even there.

If your husband's normal... he's going to look. You might as well get used to it, and let well enough alone. If you keep pressing the issue, you could push him right out the door to plant the H-bomb of infidelity... right in your own backyard.

D.J.

Dear Mrs. Tobin: My wife has put 40-watt bulbs in every lamp socket, all in the light of the energy crisis. (Excuse the pun!) Is she really saving fuel? — Going Blind in Illinois

Dear Going Blind: Replace those bulbs. Eyeglasses cost more than those few pennies you're saving on your electric bill. William Simon doesn't want anyone to go blind or freeze to death. He expects us to plug the wasteful leaks. Get yourself good reading lights but turn them off when not being used.

Dear Mrs. Tobin: A friend said that she had just bought an antique semailier. She paid $500 for it. She sounded as though she had acquired a bargain. Perhaps she did but my question is, what did she buy? — Nanette J.

Dear Nanette: A semailier is a tall, narrow chest with seven shallow drawers. It was originally used by French women to hold their lingerie... one drawer for each day of the week. Modern furniture makers generally call this piece of furniture a lingerie cabinet.

LET'S TALK

Fifty — and growing

By W. LEE TRUMAN
Copley News Service

A woman who has just turned 50 has shared with me some very deep things about how she was living her life.

Dorothy confided that she found it a relief that now she was 50 she did not just start falling apart, and she found that there was still an opportunity for more growth. She spoke about being thankful for what she has learned in the last few years, and now she is getting used to the idea of being a grandmother.

As Dorothy talked about what she thought being 50 would be like when she was younger, I could understand and well identify with the things she was saying. She thought she would be white-haired, mostly senile, and dressed only in gloomy blacks. I do not know if she is white-haired, but she certainly is much more exciting than quiet, and wears anything but dark somber colors. Her excitement came out of the discovery that 50 is approaching the pinnacle rather than the decline.

I reviewed the work done in this field by Eric Erickson, the psychologist. He verified what she said, that both in mind and in spirit many people are expanding, not collapsing after 50.

Dorothy has a strong faith, and she feels very much like the First Psalm — her tree of life is planted by the waters.

After many hours with Dorothy, her progress of arriving at this stage of her life can be roughly outlined as follows. Her first step was accepting her own uniqueness, past, present, and future, and learning to underline her strengths and to be aware of her unique weaknesses. When she got over the hurdle, she was no longer comparing herself with other people or wishing to be someone else.

She had to find a new attitude toward her parents which she now sees as individuals, and finds herself appreciating their strengths, and forgiving their weaknesses. Then she could no longer hold them responsible for her life, and this was her next breakthrough.

This allowed her to let her children be themselves, free to choose their own way of life and putting no entangling apron strings around them.

She said she grew when she understood that her life was her responsibility and no one else's. She found that her life held ever increasing possibilities and no effort to develop or expand herself was ever wasted.

Then almost with tears in her eyes, she spelled out her majestic realization of the inter-relationship of her life with all of life and that she is a part of the whole and the whole is a part of herself. "I feel very much a part of God's work in this world, both redeeming and lifting both the suffering of my brothers and sisters and leading and helping as I can."

The eminent psychologist, Abraham Maslow, has a school of thought which is dubbed "self-actualization." He writes about the need for persons who are mature to work continually on fragments of their own immaturity until there comes a point where a person can see all of the strands of life coming together.

I felt excited as this nongray souled grandmother in her own wisdom had touched some very real fibers of what life is all about. I also have a very real feeling that her great-grandchildren will say that she had it all together and knew what the score was when it came to life — namely, do not grow old, but grow up.

• The Kitchen Almanac

For a really different taste, baste chicken or turkey with the juice from any canned fruit ... When making a cake, have eggs and liquid ingredients at room temperature.

Baked potato toppings: (a) crumbled bacon in melted butter; (b) French onion dip; (c) shredded cheese or freshly ground pepper atop sour cream.

America's favorite dessert is fruit pie — with ice cream second. A combination of the two — pie a la mode — is third ... Sprinkle buttered noodles with poppy seed.

To frost cupcakes in a hurry, simply dip the top of each cupcake into soft frosting and swirl ... Keep a large salt shaker filled with flour. It comes in handy when flouring a board for rolling out dough, coating chicken, making gravy, etc.

ESCALATOR ESCAPADES

Escalators are a safe and convenient means of transportation when properly used. Too often, though, accidents are caused by not observing these basic safety rules. Always use the handrails to avoid falling, especially when stepping on or off the escalator. Don't stand too close to the edge of a step or lean against the handrail or side panel.

Children pay the least attention to safety on an escalator. See that your child does not play with the handrail, face in the wrong direction, sit on the steps or prop himself with his hands on the step above him.

Remember also that long skirts, full sleeves, handbags, umbrellas, or loose shoelaces can get caught in escalator parts and cause damage or injury. Never set packages on the steps or handrail, and you should also avoid the escalator when using crutches or a cane.

S.S Jacks And Jills Singles Club Organized

Are you 27 or over, single, and tired of the cocktail lounge scene?

If you fit this description and interested in socializing with friendly people, then the Jacks and Jills Singles Club is the answer.

Jacks and Jills, the first singles club on the South Shore, will sponsor weekly dance socials on Friday nights, beginning April 19, at the Quincy Elks Lodge, 1220 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Organizers Ruth O'Brien and Robert McDonough feel that there is a large demand for a singles club in this area because although there are five clubs on the North Shore, there are none South of Boston and there are "over 700,000 singles in the Boston area."

Says McDonough, a member of similar clubs north of Boston,

"The average person would rather go to a dance-they're usually tired of lounges-where they can meet friendly people and socialize."

Jacks and Jills offers dancing to a live band, cocktails, refreshments and social chatter at reasonable prices. It is a non-profit organization-any profits go back into reducing prices for other social events for members.

The first Friday night will be a "Get Acquainted" night. Other evening and daytime gatherings are planned, including a boat ride around Boston Harbor on Provincetown Line "Bay State" on July 20.

Membership applications will be available at all dances and gatherings. You do not have to be a member to attend dances, but membership includes reduced admission rates.

He received nine weeks of intensive instruction in seamanship, small arms training, fire fighting, close order drill, first aid and Naval history.

He will now report to a formal school for specialty training or to a ship or shore station for on-the-job training.

Gym Show At Atlantic Tonight

The Atlantic Junior High School physical education department will present its annual gym demonstration [Wednesday and Thursday night] at 7:30 p.m. in the Atlantic Junior High Gym.

Under the direction of Mrs.

Mary Younie and John Oliva the students will perform dance routines, group numbers, a parachute number, gymnastics, and a clown act.

Tickets are available daily at Atlantic Junior High School.

Language In Motion Classes Start

Classes in the Language of Motion for high school students will begin tonight April 4, at 7:30 p.m. in the Knights of Columbus Hall, North Quincy, and will continue each Thursday for four weeks.

The classes, sponsored by the Committee for Educational Recreation, will be instructed by Frank LaVey. Fee for the course is $5 per student.

Plans for the promotion of the series of instruction were made during a meeting of the Committee for Educational Recreation March 20 at the home of Mrs. Margarita Bellotti, 120 Hillside Ave.

Mary Bouchie Appointed Telephone Engineering Secretary

Mrs. Mary R. Bouchie of 18 Tirrell St., North Quincy, was recently appointed New England Telephone engineering secretary in Boston.

Mrs. Bouchie joined the company in 1969 as a general clerk in Boston and has also served as clerical assistant.

The former Mary Garvin of North Quincy, she graduated from Dorchester High School and attended Bryant and Stratton College.

The Pocket Mime Theatre, a creative and entertaining experience without sound, will perform at Atlantic Junior High School, North Quincy at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, April 10 as part of the Metropolitan Cultural Alliance program, "Performances South".

One of the founding members of the company is performer, John Tormey who grew up in Quincy and attended Coddington and Cranch School, Central Junior High School, and Quincy High School. This will be his first professional performance in his home town. "Wells of Fancy" is the title of the production, derived from Lewis Carroll's description of imagination. Without props, sets or artifice, Tormey, Katie Birchenough, and Michael Atwell create story theatre for the eyes and imaginations of their audience.

The Quincy Arts Alliance is assisting the Metropolitan Cultural Alliance in promoting the Performances South series.

The Alliance is telephoning friends to support the series and distributing brochures to PTA's, churches, mothers clubs and senior citizens groups.

The Alliance will sponsor a reception following the April 10 performance of "Pocket Mime Theater's Wells of Fancy" in honor of Tormey.

Mayor Walter Hannon, school committee members, city councilors and the audience will be invited to attend the reception in the Atlantic Junior High School cafeteria.

Pocket Mime Theatre is one of the few mime troupes in the world that performs ensemble as well as solo mime pieces. They have created a uniquely American form of mime.

The company's material consists of pieces that are funny, others that are filled with pathos, and still others that bring a touch of whimsy to everyday situations. This is theatre for young and old.

Tickets can be obtained by calling 773-3290. Prices are $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for students and senior citizens with subscription and family rates of $3 and $1 respectively.

Tormey, one of the original founders of the Pocket Mime Theatre, was born in Erie, Pa. The family moved to Quincy in 1957 where his father worked at General Dynamics, becoming quality control manager. He is the oldest of six children, with a sister, Mary, and four brothers, Pat, Tim, Pete and Jeff. He is single and currently lives in Somerville.

After graduation from High School, he entered M.I.T., majoring in oceanography, an interest he had held since high school.

At MIT he took up acting to provide a needed contrast to his serious studies. He found that it fascinated him, and with encouragement from those around him, decided that this was an area to receive his full attention.

That summer [1970] he attended the Harvard Summer School Theatre Workshop. Studying with Kenyon Martin, he was introduced to mime, shortly thereafter deciding that mime was to be his career. He left MIT and took up mime in earnest.

Tormey took a job at the Quincy shipyard to support himself, and studied acting at night, which eventually led to the formation of the present Pocket Mime Theatre in Boston.

Currently, he is involved fully with the mime company, performing four times every weekend and touring throughout New England during the week.

Deliverance From Bondage

Passover Services At Beth Israel, Adas Shalom, Temple Beth El

By LESTER GLASSER

The Festival of Passover commemorates the deliverance of the Israelites from Egyptian bondage followed by their exodus from Egypt under the leadership of Moses about the 13th century before the Common Era.

The Biblical account in the book of Exodus relates that after Moses had unsuccessfully pleaded with Pharaoh to release the Israelites from slavery, God smote the Egyptians with 10 plagues in rapid succession. Only then in desperation did Pharaoh relent and let the Children of Israel go.

Before the 10th and most devastating of all the plagues - the slaying of Egypt's first born - each Israelite family was commanded by God to offer up a lamb. The blood of this animal was sprinkled on the doorpost of each Israelite home so that the Angel of Death would "pass over" the dwellings of the Children of Israel as he stalked the land. Hence the name of Pesah which, quite literally means "Passover".

Aside from the special prayers recited at services in the synagogues, Passover is primarily a home festival. The first two nights of Passover [in Israel and among some reform Jews, the first night only] are marked by a home ceremony known by its Hebrew designation, seder, meaning, "order" [of rituals].

The exact "order" of the home celebration of Passover is set down in detail in the Haggadah which, as the Hebrew term implies, is literally a "recital" of the miracle of the Exodus. It contains readings, prayers and hymns compiled over a period of centuries which are read and chanted by the entire family seated around the festive board.

Services at the Beth Israel Synagogue, Grafton Street, Quincy Point will be Saturday evening at 7:45; Sunday and Monday mornings, April 7 and April 8 at 9 a.m. and Sunday evening at 7. Rabbi Jacob Mann will officiate.

At Congregation Adas Shalom, 435 Adams St., Quincy, services will be Sunday and Monday at 8 a.m. and 9 a.m. Rabbi Samuel Kenner and Cantor Tevella Ring will conduct the services. At Temple Beth El, Hancock St., Quincy, services will be under the direction of Cantor Morris Semigran as Rabbi David J. Jacobs is ill. They will be Saturday and Sunday evenings at 7 p.m., Sunday and Monday mornings at 9:15.

John Holland
President
Citizens For Life

John J. Holland of Quincy was elected chairman of the Quincy Chapter of the Massachusetts Citizens for Life at a meeting at Bethany Congregational Church.

Other officers elected: Mrs. Anna Smyth, vice chairman; Mary Steinkrauss, secretary; Mrs. Joan Boland, treasurer; Mrs. Margaret McCarthy, telephone committee chairman; Mrs. Dianne W. Hayes, media committee chairman and Rep. William Delahunt and Paul P. Hayes Jr., legal representatives.

Elected to the board of directors were Rep. and Mrs. William Delahunt, William Donnelly, John Forbes, Mr. and Mrs. Paul P. Hayes Jr., Charles J. Jacobs, Mrs. Ruth Newcomb, Dr. Daniel F. Shea, and the Rev. John J. Tierney.

Guest speaker for the evening was Richard Allen, chairman of the Woburn Chapter of Citizens for Life who spoke on problems confronting the legal and medical professions regarding children who survive abortion.

The next meeting of the Quincy Chapter will be April 16 at 8 p.m. in St. John's Rectory, Gay St., Quincy.

28 Volunteers Log 239 Hours For RSVP

Win Pulsifer, Director of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) for the South Shore, announces the program now includes 28 active volunteers who have logged over 239 hours of assignments.

RSVP is open to retired people over 60 years who are interested in volunteering their time to community service.

So far RSVP has placed a public relations man in the South Shore Cerebral Palsy Foundation and two others at the YMCA. Another woman is cooking for girls at a South Shore half-way house, others are addressing envelopes, and a choral group has been visiting area nursing homes.

The RSVP staff has been visiting senior citizens meetings at 1000 Southern Artery and the Fenno House in a drive to recruit workers. The staff shows an official film "What You Do Speaks So Loud" depicting volunteers in action.

"RSVP feels that volunteering is of no value to a person unless he feels that he is doing something that really matters", said Pulsifer. "Before we assign someone to a project we consult them as to what line of work they prefer."

For information on the program write RSVP, 1354 Hancock St., Adams Building Room 306, or call 471-3600.

A BIG BLACK CLOUD

If I were a cloud
A great big black one,
I would hide, hide, hide
The sun, sun, sun.

I would thunder and rain
And make an awful day.
I'd like to be a cloud
In the sky I'd stay.

A cloud can be good
A cloud can be bad,
A cloud can be happy

POLLUTION

Trash is thrown everywhere
But nobody could care
The animals and fish are

But who is trying
The air is polluted
Will the world be

The cars, trucks, and Give off too much smoke Pretty soon we will all choke

How can the animals, birds and fish live
If we don't even give Why don't you put litter in it's place
Before you have a court case.

It doesn't matter who you

All you have to do is ride a

QUINCY GEOLOGY FIELD TRIP

On our field trip we went to West Quincy, Quincy Point,
Rocky Island and Blue Hills. At West Quincy we went up the hill and Mr. Crowley told us about granite rock. Then we had to find our own granite rock, and we put them in our bag. Then we walked down the very first railroad tracks. They should weed around it and keep it neat because that is a nice place.
Then we went back to the bus, and went to Quincy Point. At Quincy Point we found Braintree slate and we walked around and found other rocks.
Then we walked back to the bus.
Then we went to Rocky Island and found a lava flow. Then we went back in the bus. We went to Blue Hills and went up the monument and came back down. Then it was getting late so we had to go back.

Pete, Priscilla Little Believe In Catering To The Public

By STEVE FERRARA

Small businesses can make large contributions to strengthen "community spirit."

Such is the belief of Harold (Pete) Little and his wife, Priscilla Little, owners and operators of the Houghs Neck Package Store, 1183 Sea St., Houghs Neck.

Although they are new to the liquor business—they took over ownership last Nov. 11—they have lived in Houghs Neck at 4 Littlefield St. for 21 years and treat their customers like neighbors.

"We listen to what the people ask for and then get it in stock for them," says Mrs. Little. "We cater to the public because they're our customers," said Mrs. Little.

The Littles even go as far as making free deliveries in Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Merrymount.

"We're the only package store around here. The closest one is on the Southern Artery. So we serve the people in Ward 1 only," she said.

In keeping with community spirit in Houghs Neck, the Littles have been supplying beverages to local social functions.

Recently they furnished liquor, mixes and ice for a Parish Council dance at Blessed Sacrament Church, Houghs Neck. On Saturday, March 30 they will supply a fund raising affair for the Houghs Neck Youth Hockey League at St. Aquinas Hall.

Pete spends most of his time at his other business, the H. W. Little Co., 1221 Sea St., Houghs Neck. The company installs laundry and dry cleaning equipment and rigs heavy machinery. It has been in the family for 20 years.

Meanwhile Mrs. Little sees that the package store runs efficiently.

"I work sometimes 10 or 11 hours a day, six days a week," she says. "I come in at nine in the morning and sometimes I don't get out until 10 at night."

Mrs. Little is relieved at night by her husband and local college students who have been hired to work part-time.

The Littles have six children and three grandchildren. Three of the children have married and moved away, but Beth, 22, a teacher's aid at Great Hill School, Houghs Neck, Janet, 21, a senior at Boston State College who also plans to be a teacher, and Jeff, 16, a junior at Quincy High School, all live at home.

A large family is plenty of incentive for the Littles to work long hours and to support "community spirit."

Navy Drug Instructor Merrymount Speaker

Brendan A. FitzPatrick, Drug Instructor for the First Naval District, will speak at the Merrymount Association's general meeting tonight [Thursday] at 8:30 p.m., in Our Lady of Good Counsel Parish Hall on Sea St.

A graduate of Boston College, currently employed by the Boston Edison Co., FitzPatrick served in Vietnam during 1968 and 1969. He is presently a member of the United States Naval Reserves.

It was during the Vietnam recall that FitzPatrick got a first hand look at drug abuse and decided to try to do something about it when he returned home.

"As a father of six children, I had a special concern for drug use prevention," he said.

He will discuss drug prevention, the rehabilitation of an addict and what parents should look for if they suspect their child is using drugs. The audience will be shown various synthetic samples of drugs and view his realistic marijuana plant. Brochures that may be taken home concerning the different drugs will also be given to the audience.

FitzPatrick, his wife Kathleen, and six children (four sons and two daughters) live in Jamaica Plain.

The meeting is open to the public.

Child, Drug Abuse Houghs Neck Seminar

"Child Abuse" and "Drug Abuse" are topics of a seminar to be held April 8 at 7:30 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Legion Post Home, 1116 Sea St. The public is invited to attend.

Speakers include Barbara Walsh of the Children's Protective Service, with offices on Hancock St., Quincy. A Houghs Neck native, she will discuss child abuse.

Thomas Hughes of the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office will speak on drugs.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Timcoe are chairmen of the seminar, sponsored jointly by the Houghs Neck Legion Post and Auxiliary as a part of the American Legion's observance of April as "Children and Youth Month".

Roché Seeks Reserves Support

'Accentuate The Positive', Reardon Urges At Chamber Dinner

Support the reserves...and...accentuate the positive businesswise.

Those were the two key themes at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce's annual dinner meeting at Valle's, Braintree.

Making the pitch to 300 Chamber members and guests were James M. Roché, former chairman of the board and chief executive officer of General Motors Corp. and George D. Reardon, owner of President Chevrolet Inc., Quincy, and Chamber president.

Roché is now chairman of the National Committee for Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve and that was his subject.

He urged employers to support the ground and air force reserves by establishing policies in their companies to encourage and to make it easier for employees to participate in the reserves. Such policies would include leaves of absence in addition to vacations.

Reardon, urged members to accentuate the positive to counter negative news in the media and called for, among other things:

- Extension of the MBTA beyond the South Quincy station.

- A new Fore River bridge so that General Dynamics can build larger ships and get them out to sea.

- Building better relations between management and labor to curtail strikes.

Object of the "Support the Guard and Reserve" move said Roché is a "Total Force Policy" by which volunteer armed forces will be backed by well-trained, equipped National Guard and Reserve units.

"No straight thinking American," he said, "will deny the fact that we must maintain a strong defense posture in the kind of world in which we live."

"Today we are achieving an uneasy peace throughout the world—due in large part, I think, to the bold steps taken by President Nixon to attain the guarantee of peace we all desire.

Reardon zeroed in on the business scene as it affects the Quincy-South Shore area. He struck out at the "negative news" in the media.

"News is negative," he declared. "And like the song we must accentuate the positive. The natives are restless—the populace is looking for leadership. Inuendo and conjecture crowd the media.

"Speculation is more rampant in the newspapers than it is on Wall Street."

Reardon said that action—not speculation—is needed to help the South Shore's future. He cited:

- "A 10 per cent unemployment rate on the South Shore—we need jobs badly.

- "We must extend the MBTA south of Quincy.

- "We must build a new larger bridge over the Fore River so large LNG tankers can be built.

- "Besides this, we must build better management-labor understanding so work may continue uninterrupted.

- "Our's is an area for untapped tourism as the very concepts of our country were conceived here."

Reardon said "No South Shore business can afford not to be a member of the Chamber of Commerce."

Strike Talks Deadlocked On Several Issues

was addressed: "To All Supervisors", said, in part:

"The rewards of our efforts to get into the shipyard during the first week of the strike are being given by the company.

"By now you know that four supervisors were fired Friday for refusing to bow to Veliotis' directive to do work.

"This is the same day orders to clean toilets, wash the hospital floor and pick up scrap in the steel mill were cancelled after we demonstrated our protest by threatening to terminate.

"We agreed to enter the yard to perform our own work, not to be used as strike breakers.

"Now more than ever we should realize the mistake we made when we failed to organize ourselves.

"It's time now to revive our efforts and form an organization to protect our rights."

The layoff of 67 clerks was described by Arthur Fitzgerald, president of Local 90, as "a last minute deal. Usually they give two or three days notice before they do something like that."

"It proves the company's subterfuge in getting us to cross the picket lines," said Fitzgerald. "There was no work in there anyway. They were just trying to start a fight between two locals."

Arthur Batson, president of striking Local 5, said of the abortive attempt to renew negotiations last week:

"The mediators called us to a meeting Thursday. We met with them for an hour and a half. We gave them those of our demands that weren't wrapped up yet. They went to meet with the company.

"The mediators came to us about 5:30 or 6 o'clock and told us to come back at 10 o'clock Friday morning. We did and they chased management around all day.

Finally, about 3 or 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon the mediators got to meet with the company. Around 6 o'clock they came back to us and told us, 'It's no use to continue. We'll get back to you.'"

The General Dynamics spokesman said:

"The mediators called both parties to the hotel [Sheraton Tara in Braintree]. They spoke individually with both sides until 5:30 p.m. Friday. They then recessed until further notice.

"We have no clear idea when we will be back to the table."

Meanwhile, Veliotis sent out a letter to striking employees, saying, in part:

"We have made it clear to the Local 5 bargaining representatives that the shipyard seeks provisions in a new labor contract which would eliminate wasteful and non-productive practices and correct problems of stewards' time-off-the-job.

"We have clearly stated to the union negotiators that if such provisions were accepted more money would be available for Local 5 members.

"There is no question that the elimination of non-working stewards and other wasteful practices causing low productivity will mean bigger paychecks.

"It is as simple as that."

City, County Planning Bicentennial Projects

Edward W. Owens, president of the Norfolk County Development and Tourist Council, announces approval of three joint projects with the Quincy Bi-Centennial Committee, headed by Rev. John R. Graham.

Total value of the three projects is $37,500, of which the Tourist Council will pay one-half [$18,750] and Quincy one-half.

First project is an Historical Trail Brochure at a cost of $10,600. Fifty thousand copies will be produced in full color and serve as an informational hand-out intended to promote and stimulate interest in Quincy, and at least 10,000 copies will be distributed professionally throughout a 600 mile radius.

Second project is a program for study, designing and producing a new set of Historical Trail Markers. The current Trail has been called "random, confusing and inadequate".

Quincy will physically produce the signs. Total value of this project is $11,000 with $5,500 provided by Quincy and $5,500 by the Council and the Norfolk County Commissioners' office, under chairman James J. Collins.

Third project is a 16-page full-color Picture Book designed to tell Quincy's story through attractive and exciting photography. The book will include 25 four-color photos showing the industrial and commercial development of the City as well as its historical, recreational and natural assets. There will be 25,000 copies printed at a total estimated cost of $15,900, - $7,950 from Norfolk County and the other half from Quincy.

The final phase for bringing the three projects to fruition is the affirmative action from the office of Mayor Walter J. Hannon and approval of the City Council.

Cerasoli Says He Would Be Full-Time Representative

"I intend to make the office of state representative a full-time job," said Robert A. Cerasoli in announcing his candidacy before a crowd estimated at 900 at Montello's, Saturday night.

Cerasoli, who lives at 21 Whiton Ave., Quincy Point, is seeking the First Norfolk District seat now being vacated by Clifford Marshall.

Cerasoli is presently a Legislative Assistant to the Massachusetts Senate Committee on Rules.

He was also a former research assistant for the City of Quincy and is Secretary of the Quincy Historic District Study Committee and BiCentennial Committee.

"These activities," he said, "have given me the opportunity to study and work in the governmental process on both a city and a state level."

Cerasoli's interest in government, he noted, was sparked in high school and continued through college to the present. He said:

"I have acquired a working knowledge of the critical problems confronting the residents of the First Norfolk District. My desire is to serve the people I've lived with all my life."

"This helped me to make the decision to seek the seat of State Representative."

A life-long resident of Quincy, he attended Thomas B. Pollard Elementary School, Quincy Point Junior High, graduated from Quincy High School in 1965, and received his B.A. in Government from the American University School of Government and Public Administration in Washington, D.C. He also received his Masters Degree from Northeastern University in Political Science.

A member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles Cerasoli is also a Unity Award Recipient of the Ward 2 Civic Association.

Cerasoli is also a member of the Sons of Italy Lodge 1295, a member of the Young Democrats of Quincy, serving as a Ward 2 Executive Board member, and a member of the Quincy Historical Society.

'Unreality' Lesson-Sermon At Christian Science Church

"Unreality" is the subject of this Sunday's Lesson-Sermon at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St., Quincy at 10:45 a.m.

It reveals the way mankind can wake up from false pleasures and pains of a material sense of existence to find a spiritual understanding of God as divine Life, all-satisfying and health-giving. "Thou wilt show me the path of life; in Thy presence is fulness of joy; at Thy right hand there are pleasures forevermore." Psalms 16:11

Open Friday At Milwaukee

McAuliffe, Cooper, Marichal Should Help Sox Chase Flag

By TOM SULLIVAN
Quincy Sun Writer

Several weeks ago we said Dick McAuliffe, veteran Detroit infielder, was a valuable addition to the Red Sox and predicted he would see plenty of service at second base.

We also ventured the opinion that Cecil Cooper could make the grade this year as the Sox first baseman, as he is playing for Darrell Johnson, under whom he had excellent seasons at Pawtucket last year and at Louisville the year before.

These opinions now look pretty good as the Sox prepare to open their season Friday at Milwaukee and get set for their home opener next Tuesday against Baltimore.

Doug Griffin's back acted up again in spring training and McAuliffe made a lot of people take notice as he took over second base. We are convinced Dick will play a lot of second base this summer and it appears he could be in for a good season.

And Johnson recently said Cooper will stay with the team, and we feel this means he will play some first base while Capt. Carl Yastrzemski will play some in left field.

This looks like a most interesting season for the Red Sox, who have one of the finest pitching staffs in their history. It still remains to be seen if the many off-season trades, were enough to beat out Baltimore for the East Division title, but it should be a real dog fight.

Most fans who have watched the Sox in spring training were impressed with Juan Marichal, the 35-year old right-hander obtained from the Giants. Although many felt he was over the hill, after two under-par seasons, he showed in Winter Haven that, pitching every five or six days, he may help the Sox a good deal. He could repeat the fantastic success of the remarkable Luis Tiant, who has been unbelievable for the Sox after being thrown into the trash heap.

As the Sox get ready for their opener, the big question mark seems to be third base. Rich Petrocelli has been hitting well but his arm is still a question. If he doesn't make it, it could be that McAuliffe will see action there as well as second base.

The release last week of Luis Aparicio, 39-year old shortstop, one of the best of all time and a sure future Hall of Famer, left the job in the hands of Mario Guerrero, who looked so good last year, and rookie Rick Burleson. Each is expected to play a lot but we look for Guerrero, who covers ground like the amazing Aparicio did in past years, to be the starter.

Another bombshell last week was the release of Orlando Cepeda, the top designated hitter in the league a year ago. Although it surprised many, we thought it was coming. This, in our opinion, further points to Cooper playing some at first, Yaz in left and having Tommy Harper as the leading designated hitter.

Although Rick Miller, the best defensive outfielder on the squad, will be the starting center fielder, Juan Beniquez, who had his troubles at shortstop, may see action there this year. Johnson announced he will stay with the team and he is hitting as good as every but still needs work defensively.

One of the pleasant surprises of spring training has been the terrific hitting of Jim Rice, 20-year old outfielder who last year hit 27 home runs, batted .317 and drove in 93 runs for Bristol, then helped Pawtucket to the Little World Series title by batting .378 in 10 games, hitting four home runs and driving in 10 runs. His hitting has impressed everyone but he will be sent to Pawtucket for another year. But, watch him next year!

It should be a great year at Fenway Park.

And, don't forget, April 21 is Quincy Day at Fenway.

New Scoreboard For Adams Field

A year ago lights were finally installed at Adams Field at a cost of $81,000, making it possible for Legion and other city teams to play night games.

This year, thanks to the woodworking department at Quincy Voc-Tech, the city's first scoreboard will be ready for the opening of the Quincy and North Quincy baseball seasons.

Richard Koch, executive secretary to the Parks and Recreation Board, announced that the idea of the scoreboard originated with Robert Woodman, commissioner of Quincy Junior League Baseball. It was constructed by Voc-Tech students, under the direction of Warren Pagliere, head of the woodworking department.

Designed by Pat Trifone of Voc-Tech, the board is 20 feet long and eight feet high and needs only numbers which Koch said will be made by the city's sign department.

"Items of this nature would not be possible if the city had to pay labor costs," Koch said.

Adams Field, built in the late 1930's with the same dimensions of old Braves Field in Boston, now has a seating capacity of 1,200. Koch said it is hoped to increase the capacity to 2,000 and began last year with construction of new bleachers on the first base side seating 714. This year new bleachers on the third base side will be installed.

"With the recent renovations Adams Field has become one of the outstanding baseball fields in the state," Koch said.

A letter of thanks from the board was sent to Voc-Tech for its efforts in the scoreboard construction.

North Opens Season Friday On New All-Weather Track

North Quincy's track team, with Lou Tozzi making his debut as spring coach, opens its season Friday against Don Bosco in the first official meet on the new all-weather track at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Tozzi, who also bowed in last fall as the Raiders' cross country coach and later as the winter track skipper, has many headaches as he prepared his team for its final Greater Boston League season.

"We are small in numbers [32 candidates], lack experience with many sophomores and three of our top competitors have been out with injuries, and, if they face Don Bosco, they will be far from full strength," Tozzi said. "Also, we open our league season next Tuesday against a new entry, Haverhill, which has probably the top track team in the state."

Tozzi has a large number of returnees from the winter team but only a few from last year's spring team, the final one for Coach Bob Gentry.

In the sprints, Lou has Paul Doherty from the winter team, Paul O'Donnell, captain of hockey and football next year; Phil Robinson, Neil McGilvary, John Flynn and Brian Doherty. Flynn, making his spring track bow, was a standout in his first year of winter track.

Tozzi rates veteran Mark Canavan as his best middle distance runner but he is one of three standouts suffering injuries. If he is out of action, North will be hurting. Other middle distance runners are veterans Chris Cordeiro and Dixie Coughlin, Ken O'Brien, Steve Del Russo and Tom Butler, a promising sophomore.

When at full strength, North will be especially strong in the distance runs with veteran two-miler Artie Barrett, his sophomore brother, Ken; Bill Lapsley, one of the big surprises to date; three-year veteran Mark Jago, Bart Petracca, sensational sophomore who sparkled in winter track but is another nursing an injury; Craig Burke and Joe O'Connor.

Geoff Hennessey, undefeated in winter track, and Neil McPartlin are the high hurdlers but Hennessey is the third star sidelined by an injury.

Low hurdlers are Chris Morton, John Mackey, who excelled for the winter team, and Matt Mulvey.

Joe Marinelli is the best bet in the discus and he is joined by Robinson, Jim Cooney and sophomore Dave Lorman, another pleasant surprise.

Peter Hampill, who has fine potential, and O'Donnell are the javelin entries and Paul Doherty, who is doing better than 40 feet, and a strong sophomore, Matty Constantino, are the shot put hopes.

Tozzi expects McPartlin to break the school record in the triple jump in his first meet, while Hennessey and Morton are others in this event.

There is no experience in the long jump with Mackey, Jago and Butler trying out, while Canavan is the only high jumper.

Other candidates, whom Tozzi is trying to place, are Steve Maloney, Brian and Ken McMahon.

"The high jump, especially without Canavan, the long jump and the low hurdles look like our big problems," the new coach said.

Quincy Girls Softball Team In Suburban League

Quincy girls' softball coach Barbara Webster, with a turnout of nearly 30, has high hopes of improving on last year's record but expects stronger competition in the First Ladies' first season in the Suburban League.

"This league is a lot tougher than the Greater Boston League with the possible exception of Malden," Miss Webster said. "We will have an 18-game schedule and it should be an interesting season."

The coach has five returnees from last year and has only three seniors. The squad includes 12 juniors and 12 sophomores.

"We have good depth at every position except pitching," Barbara continued. "Cindy Tozzi is the only definite starting pitcher. She has a good arm and a little speed and if I can come up with another good pitcher we may do all right."

Miss Tozzi is one of the many sophomores and a junior, Cathy Doncaster, may pitch as well as play in the outfield.

Another soph, Rosemary Pistelli, will be the catcher. She has a good arm and works well behind the plate.

Three infield positions are set with Junior Terry Tucker at first, Senior Donna Brickly at second and Junior Patty Scorza at shortstop. Third base is wide open but another sophomore probably will play there.

Senior Laurie DeCoste will start in centerfield with Juniors Denise McGunagle and Valerie King probably earning the other two outfield spots.

Other candidates include Maureen Duggan, catcher; Terri Greenleaf, catcher-third base; Rosemary Maloney, outfield; Mary Tucker, third base; Joy

Bennett, second base; Debbie Walker, outfield; Claire Sullivan, outfield; Brenda Sullivan, outfield; Claire Collins, outfield; Karen Michalek, outfield; Cassia Gongolas, second base; Csan Perch, outfield; Kelley Sparks, third base; Sheila McDermott, outfield; Dianne Condon, outfield; Maureen Glennon, Joyce Doncaster and Anne Baccari.

QJC Meets Massasoit In Opener

The Quincy Junior College baseball team opens its season today [Thursday] against Massasoit Community College and Coach Dave Burke is not optimistic about winning the Mass. Junior College Conference playoffs for the third year in a row.

QJC the past two years finished second in regular season play but swept through the playoffs.

"We have only two veterans and there are some pretty strong teams in the league this year," Burke said. "Graham and Wentworth are strong again and Worcester Junior College, a new team in the league, usually has a good team."

The lone returnees are Skip

McAuliffe and Tom Roberts scored for the Golds with Joe Ryan having two assists and Roberts one. Charlie Duffy scored for the Reds with Ken Halloran assisting.

The playoffs start Sunday with the Blues meeting the Reds at 8:15 p.m. and the Golds facing the Greens at 9:30.

Haddix, a pitcher from Quincy, and Larry Spano, outfielder from Mattapan.

Haddix, a right-hander, had a 3-1 record and an earned run average under 2.00 last year and is also an outstanding hitter.

"He played some in the outfield last year and hit about .714 with a home run," added Burke, also a math teacher and assistant football coach at Quincy High.

Spano, starting left fielder, hit .250 and is a sure-handed outfielder, according to Burke.

The QJC coach doesn't feel the team's inexperience will be as apparent as it might be on most freshmen-stocked teams.

"Most of these guys are older and have been out of school two or three years working or in the service, so they are very mature freshmen," he explained.

Pitching looms as a problem with the only other pitchers Jimmy Rogers, tall southpaw from Hyde Park, and John Foley, a right-hander from Hingham. Rogers, who throws hard, looks like a good hitter and will probably see action in the outfield.

Ken Baumeister of Weymouth and Mark Gillespie of Hingham are the catchers. "Baumeister is a scrappy little guy with a good arm but Gillespie also has a very strong arm and we are thinking seriously of making him into a pitcher," Burke said.

Body Smith, S.S. Candy Tie For Women's Lead

The Body Smith Shop and South Shore Candy are tied for the lead in the Women Merchants' Bowling League.

The co-leaders have 136-96 records, followed by Chiminello Oil, 126-106; Venezia Insurance, 120-112; Pepe's Express, 90-142 and Merrymount Lanes, 88-144. Edna Walker has high average of 103.3, followed by Bev Putnam, 101.5; Ellie Iacobucci,

Veterans, Sophs, Make Mosher Optimistic

With nearly an entire starting team back plus the "finest sophomore group in years," Quincy baseball coach Bud Mosher is high on the Presidents' chances in their final Greater Boston League season.

Mosher, starting his second year as the Presidents' coach, saw his team in action against outside competition for the first time last weekend when they played at Harwich Saturday and Sunday.

"I can't help but feel optimistic," Mosher said. "Although we had only a 7-7 record last year, we lost some really tough games including two by one run [one in extra innings] to North Quincy and I honestly felt we and North Quincy were as good as any teams in the league."

Bud had a number of juniors a year ago and he will field a veteran team when the Presidents open their final GBL season April 15. The Presidents' first game will be at home against B.C. High, one of two non-league foes, April 8. Haverhill and Peabody join the league this year, giving Quincy 18 league games and two non-leaguers against B.C. High and Weymouth North.

Returning are starting catcher

Tom Perry, the two first basemen who shared the job in 1973, Mike Varrasso and Jim French; starting second baseman Mark Dwyer, shortstop Bob Benn, one of the best around a year ago, and third baseman Frank DiSalvo. Also, Mike DePaolo, a starting outfielder, Paul Craig, a southpaw who did some pitching for the varsity, and Roy Pettinelli, a fine utility infielder who played both varsity and jayvee ball a year ago.

"Dwyer will be our number one pitcher and Pettinelli will probably play second when he is pitching," Mosher explained. "Craig is a good pitcher who could be number two on the staff, and DiSalvo will also do some pitching and may see action in the outfield. One of the best things about this club is the versatility of the players, most of whom can play different positions."

Mark Austin and Joe Brill, up from the jayvees, will definitely play, Austin probably in center field and Brill at first or in the outfield.

Juniors who are expected to play a good deal are Mike MacKenzie, who looks like the backup catcher and will also play in the outfield; Rich Praetsch, a catcher-outfielder; Dave Gosselin, another good catcher, and John Riley, a pitcher with promise.

"I expect at least one of our excellent group of sophomores to start and more than one may stay with the varsity," Mosher said. "It is the finest group of sophomores I've seen here in some time."

Among them are Don Paluzzi, a left-handed hitting outfielder; Steve Infascelli and Paul Vespaziani, good looking pitchers [Vespaziani, who started several games at fullback for the football team, is also an excellent infielder]; Paul Todd, who has a good chance of making the varsity; pitchers Lou Fishman and Dave Raftery, Catcher Paul Ferris, Neil Dwyer, Eric Carrera, Bob Marcucci and Paul Sutherland.

"We should do all right this year and next year, with all these fine sophomores, we should have a good shot at the title in our first year in the Suburban League," Mosher continued.

Rich Hutchinson is back as the Presidents' junior varsity coach.

Connie keeps faith in 'The Sex Symbol'

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Though Barry Diller, the leader at ABC, has assured Connie Stevens that "The Sex Symbol," her controversial movie for television which was pulled just before its announced air date, March 5, will get an airing eventually, Connie's taking the pledge with a grain of salt.

"I'm keeping my fingers crossed," she says. "I think my only hope is the press and public."

In other words, she hopes you'll keep those cards and letters coming to Diller urging him to get that show on the air, because, in it, Connie does a fine acting job which deserves to be seen.

The show we're talking about, in case you haven't been following the continuing drama of "The Sex Symbol," recounts the sad adventures of a Monroe-ish, blonde actress romantically involved with a JFK-ish politician who kills herself.

Connie won't surmise as to why the tv-movie was pulled at the last minute, but she confirms that she's tried to buy it for theatrical distribution even though she doesn't yet have a distributor. She just has a lot of faith in the drama.

"They've told me it will have an air date," she says, "so maybe it will. I'm sorry it didn't get on in time for Emmy consideration, but it would be worse if it never got on at all."

When I tried to call Diller to give him a nudge, I was told he was out. But mail will almost certainly find him.

Connie, by the way, has moved into the house Sonja Henie once owned in Bel Air. It has tennis courts and eight bedrooms.

Modifications to the house Priscilla Presley just bought will cost $8,000. That's also going to be a nice place to live.

The diamond ring Cher was flashing at the Grammy Awards party was a gift from David Geffen, president of Electra-Asylum Records, as was the diamond bracelet she was wearing. Geffen also gave her a diamond necklace, but she left it at home.

Here's a story about a girl who cast her bread upon the waters and a publisher's contract came back.

To be more precise: Some time back a teenager from Woodland Hills, Calif., went out to the Motion Picture Home near Los Angeles to give cheer to its ill and elderly residents, and there she became friends with a lady named Blossom Rock whose wheel chair she sometimes pushed.

Blossom, sister of the late Jeanette MacDonald, was so taken with the girl that she gave her exclusive rights to her recollections of the great star and to all sorts of memorabilia which the teenager used in a book just out.

The book, imaginatively entitled "Jeanette MacDonald," is a nice addition to the Hollywood histories so much in vogue these days and it's a "must" for all MacDonald fans.

Meanwhile the kindhearted ex-teenager (she's now 20) is working on another book.

Norman Mailer, currently featured in "People," Time, Inc.'s new weekly, is rumored to be getting a million dollar advance from Little Brown for rights to his next books, but since Mailer estimates he'll write 350,000 words during the next six years, that comes to only about three cents a word.

Rick Nelson's been booked to perform at the Dutch UNICEF Gala in April at the Congress Centre at the Hague. His audience will include Her Majesty Princess Royal Beatrix, His Majesty Prince Claus and Princess Margriet. After that, Rick's next stop may be the Olympia Theater in Paris.

The leaded glass window in the Kent McCords' kitchen was a birthday gift to Mrs. McCord from Rick and Kris Nelson.

Latest addition to Hugh Hefner's household in Holmby Hills is a llama, currently strolling the grounds. The llama belongs to Barbi Benton who belongs to Hugh, and was a gift from one of her friends on "Hee Haw." Barbi, incidentally, has been booked for her first night club engagement, four weeks at the Hacienda in Las Vegas.

While the "Cannon" company was shooting in Catalina, series star Bill Conrad lived in his own boat, a 45-foot luxury ketch called "The Moonraker," and commuted to work each day in a dinghy.

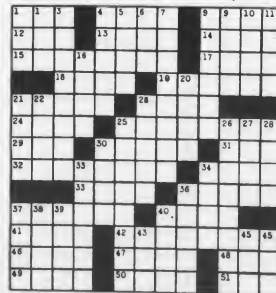

As a young man, Alex Trebek, host for the NBC-TV game show "The Wizard of Odds," was so serious about becoming a Catholic priest that he entered a Trappist monastery where he found the life too arduous to continue. "I was attracted to the Trappists," he thinks, "because I like to work with my hands which is something they do. Also, I believe that, if you are going to do something you should do it wholeheartedly."

So, to get a taste of the priesthood, I went into the strictest order I could find.

Quincy Churches To Observe Palm Sunday With Special Services

Quincy churches will observe Palm Sunday April 7, the anniversary of the day nearly 2,000 years ago when Jesus entered Jerusalem on a carpet of palm fronds.

The day holds a special place in the hearts of Christians as it opens Holy Week, which culminates in the sacrifice of Good Friday [April 12] and the joy of Easter Sunday [April 14].

On Palm Sunday at Quincy churches:

the theme, "What is This Day?" at 11 a.m. services. There will be special music by the choirs, baptismal service and infant dedication.

'Political Equivalent of War' UN Council Topic April 8

Gene Sharp, Professor of Sociology and Political Science, Southeastern Massachusetts University, will speak at the final meeting of the season of the United Nations Council of the South Shore, Thursday, April 11 at 8 p.m. in the Parish Hall of the Church of the Presidents, Quincy Sq.

He will discuss "The Political Equivalent of War."

Professor Sharp has made an intensive study of "The Politics of Non-Violent Action" which is the title of a book of 928 pages which he wrote when he was a Research Fellow at the Center for International Affairs, Harvard. Professor Sharp is British and has a Doctor of Philosophy degree from Oxford.

He says non-violent action should not be confused with pacifism. It is nothing new, for the Scandinavians in World War II used it; Gandhi used it in India, and the meat boycott of the U.S. housewives is a recent example.

Although most Americans are not aware of this, it was even used in the American Revolution. The Swedish Defense Department is considering non-violent action as one means of National Defense and has committed a small part of its budget to an investigation of it. Some American Army officers are interested, and Professor Sharp's book has been reviewed in military journals.

A question period follows the talk. The meeting is open to the public and admission is free, but there is a charge for a dinner at 7 p.m. For dinner reservations call before April 8, either Miss Eleanor Brown, 59 Andrews Road, Miss Vera Call, 1000 Southern Artery, or Mrs. Viola Ellis, 18 Terne Rd., all of Quincy. For students there are a few places reserved at a reduced price.

Mayor Asks Residents, Store Owners Join In Anti-Litter Cleanup

Mayor Walter Hannon urges residents and retail store owners to join a city-wide effort this Spring to control and prevent littering.

He stressed the responsibility of store owners with reference to sidewalk cleanliness and asked for their cooperation in this regard.

Sterling Parents To Decide On Chairmanship

The Parents' Advisory Council of Sterling Junior High held its first regular meeting recently at Sterling Media Center.

Wilfred Enders chaired a special committee report on a study of the Sterling Junior High Discipline Procedure. He made several observations and, after a question and answer period, expressed his committee's satisfaction with the procedure, offering no recommendations for revision.

Joseph Valante presided as chairman for his committee's report on a study of the Sterling Junior High position paper. While taking no issue with the Sterling position paper, Valante's paper established the appropriateness of interested parents keeping under direct scrutiny the educational environment of their children. The committee report raised several questions that suggested a need for continuing examination. The Council decided to provide copies of the Committee's paper to all the members of the council and make the paper a regular agenda placement item at each subsequent meeting, treating each issue separately to the Council's satisfaction. Valante further suggested that teachers with expertise on different issues might be invited to attend.

In a question and answer session Miss Caroline Stevens and Steve Joyce, faculty advisors, explained the scope and workings of the Sterling Student Council. Student Council members have been invited to attend the next council meeting.

Two parents have been nominated as candidates for chairmanship of the Parents' Advisory Council: Joseph Valante and Edison MacLeod. The Council will decide next meeting on a chairmanship or co-chairmanship arrangement.

Any interested parent may attend these council meetings. The next meeting is Wednesday, April 10, at 7:30 p.m.

$900 From QEA

Tammy Stuart Medical Fund Is Now At $8,793 Mark

By STEVE FERRARA

The Quincy Education Association (QEA) added $900 to the Tammy Stuart Medical Trust Fund collected from donations and ticket sales from educators and teachers in the Quincy School system.

This brings the fund, set up by the Quincy Police Patrolman's Association and Superior Officer's Association through the Quincy Municipal Credit Union, to $8,793.07. Money from cans distributed throughout Quincy five weeks ago has not been added to the total.

Robert Laing, president of QEA and a teacher at North Quincy High School, and Mary Lou Glaman, Tammy's kindergarten teacher at Snug Harbor School and chairman of the QEA Tammy Fund Committee, presented the sum to Trust Fund Treasurer Det. Paul Smith at the Quincy Sun offices.

Money for the fund has been raised from independent donations and a dinner dance at the Carlton House, 29 Hancock St., Quincy in March. Around 450 people attended.

Dan Eramian, manager of the Carlton House, donated the hall, entertainment and profits from liquor sales to the trust fund. Herb Fontaine of radio station WJDA was master of ceremonies.

Other large donations came from the Quincy Police Betterment Association, Quincy Elks Club and Quincy Police Relief Association.

Quincy Savings Bank, trustee of a separate fund, the "Tammy Stuart Fund", reports its balance at $11,612.51.

The Stuart family has moved from the Germantown Housing Project, where Tammy was disfigured by a dog attack in January, to a single-family house at 146 Willard St., West Quincy.

Members of the Tammy Stuart Medical Trust Fund include Quincy policemen John Smith, chairman; Paul Smith, treasurer; Robert Perchard, Thomas Casey and Lt. Neil MacDonald.

By TOM HENSHAW

City Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia, whose charges kept the investigation of irregularities in the Cemetery Department alive, was under attack from several directions this week.

Anthony M. Famigletti, whose resignation as cemetery superintendent touched off the controversy, took the first steps toward suing LaRaia for $200,000, charging "slander with malice".

Famigletti's attorney, Morris Goldings of Boston, said the suit would be filed in Norfolk Superior Court on May 6, it being his firm's procedure to file on the first Monday of the month.

And, an attorney for Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti said that his client may take some legal action in the cemetery matter.

LaRaia has charged Ricciuti with "the appearance of conflict of interest", because the Ricciuti family owns the Hancock Monument Co., which was mentioned several times during the investigation as having done business with the Cemetery department.

Ricciuti's attorney, Paul C. Kelly, former school committee vice-chairman, told The Quincy

Sun in a statement:

"Mr. Ricciuti, on my instructions as his legal counsel, in order to preserve whatever legal options are available to him, his family and the family business, has declined all along to make any public response to the reports published in the local media.

"It is surprising to me, as his counsel, especially during this holy season, that Mr. LaRaia would continue to viciously attack the Ricciuti family."

Kelly, who said he was speaking for himself and not for Ricciuti, was particularly angered by a story in Monday's local daily which said that Mayor Walter J. Hannon, LaRaia and Ricciuti "discussed the matter with other members of [Cont'd on Page 13]"

Shipyard Strike Talks Resume

Labor and management are talking to each other again in the 25-day-old strike at General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard - thanks largely to Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

Negotiators for the two sides sat down across the table at the Holiday Inn in Randolph Monday for the first time since the strike began on March 16.

"Hannon was instrumental in getting us started," said a spokesman for General Dynamics. "He talked to us and he talked to the union and we set up these sessions last Friday."

"We met from 1 to 5 p.m. Monday and we started again at 9 a.m. Tuesday morning. There's nothing substantial yet. But the talks are going on. That's the important thing."

A spokesman for Local 5 of the Shipbuilders Union said the early talks centered around "minor things".

The union is asking $1.16 hourly wage hike with a 25 cents an hour cost of living adjustment.

The company has offered 34 cents an hour to 90 cents an hour over a three year contract and has indicated there would be more if the union would agree to "production improvements" before bargaining on money.

Mediators tried to get the two sides together last week but their best efforts resulted only in getting them into different rooms at the Holiday Inn in Randolph with mediators as go-betweens.

Hannon said of his role in the negotiations:

"I saw Bob Smith [the company negotiator] at lunch last week and I asked him when they were going to get together. He said, 'We want to.' So I made about 12 phone calls on Thursday and they agreed to get together on Friday."

"The union was in one room and management was in another room and the mediator was running between them."

"Arthur Batson [president of Local 5] said, 'I don't want to do this. I want to meet them face to face.' That's when I made the calls."

2,200 North Quincy Area Customers To Get New Telephone Numbers

The New England Telephone is notifying some 2,200 North Quincy area residents that they'll be getting new telephone numbers in early fall.

Local telephone manager Donald C. Buron said, "We will be transferring these customers' service into our new Electronic Switching System [ESS] and the transfer-planned for late August--will necessitate number changes.

"The transfer is designed to provide more call-switching facilities for all customers and is aimed at keeping us ahead of the area's growing calling needs."

The 2,200 customers involved now have numbers prefixed by 471, 472, 479 and 773 and are served by switching equipment that is steadily approaching its call-handling capacity.

"By transferring some customers from this equipment into our electronic switching equipment," Buron said, "we will be freeing up equipment to serve the remaining customers in these four number groups and also providing the transferred customers with the fastest call-switching equipment we have."

Letters are being mailed to each customer involved in the transfer. Each will be assigned a new number with a 328 prefix prior to the change.

About 5,200 other North Quincy customers were transferred into the ESS equipment when it began operation in 1972, and their numbers were changed to the 328 number prefix to make them compatible with the new call-switching system.

"The same thing will be happening next fall," Buron said, "but a smaller group of customers will be involved."

"All new numbers will be listed in the new issue of the South Suburban directory that will be delivered at the time of the transfer and operators will assist during the transition period by referring those calling a customer's old number on to his new one."

QCAFA Proposes Municipal Power

A city-owned power company for Quincy?

That's what the Quincy Consumers Against Fuel Adjustment have suggested to Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

The QCAFA letter to Hannon and Council President Arthur H. Tobin said, in part:

"At our last meeting, it was mentioned that the town of Braintree has its own power system. Furthermore, the consumers of Braintree receive very small bills for this service in comparison to Mass Electric customers.

"Therefore, we ... would like to formally request that the city of Quincy investigate the possibility of alternative methods of providing electricity to its citizens.

"Among these possibilities would be to form its own source of power such as Braintree has done or to join in with Braintree or any other municipality in order to provide Quincy residents with electricity at lower rates than Mass Electric Co. presently charges."

The QCAFA's petition drive $244,775 In Plumbing

Permits for plumbing valued at $244,775 were issued by the Department of Plumbing and Gas Fitting Inspection during the month of March, announces Inspector James A. Erwin Jr.

The major projects were apartment complexes at 80 Clay St. [$185,000] and 500 Willard to lower electric bills is continuing, with April 30 as the target date for presentation to a public hearing before the State Department of Public Utilities.

The next meeting of the QCAFA will be held tomorrow [Friday] at 7 p.m. at the South-West Community Center. Co-chairmen of the group are Grace Pion and Evelyn Crews.

St. [$40,000].

The city received $1,170 in permit fees. Fifty-two applications were filed and 93 inspections were made.

Permits for gas fittings valued at $8,738 were issued, netting the city $48 in fees. A total of 33 applications were filed and 41 inspections were made.

'Quincy Is Not Dead - - But We Can Die'

Mayor Walter Hannon has put it on the line to downtown business and professional people.

Speaking at a breakfast meeting of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association last week, he declared:

"Quincy is not dead by a long shot—but we can die. But with the right leadership and cooperation we can prevent that."

The words were intended primarily for those who own or operate retail stores in the downtown area, but perhaps residents throughout the city might do well to pay attention also.

"We need a strong downtown merchants association," the mayor added. "We need your support."

The QCBPA, of course, is more than a merchants association. It has professional and other business members too.

But how strong is it? Is it strong enough to help keep Quincy healthy and to prevent it from dying of strangulation and loss of vitality?

The present members of the QCBPA have banded together to work together to make the downtown shopping-business area the best it can.

They have faced up to the bald fact that Quincy has got to fight to stay alive now that it is virtually surrounded by modern shopping centers.

But there are still some downtown who are not participating. Some of them are sitting back and letting the fellow next door work on promotions. They look for the spin-offs from the shoppers attracted to the downtown area by QCBPA members.

And there are others who criticize and grumble over things they think are wrong but do nothing to help change them.

But, as Mayor Hannon who is business-oriented says, "We can die". And if Quincy does, some of these people will be the first ones at the wake telling us what a shame it is.

We appeal to them and others who are not active members of the QCBPA, to join the team, roll up their sleeves and make Quincy the best shopping-business area we can.

Downtown Quincy has a lot to offer. It has more variety of merchandise at prices to meet everyone's budget. It has more banking and professional services.

But what it needs is more members in the QCBPA rowing together.

Some residents and groups, unfortunately, don't think a healthy downtown Quincy is that vital. But it is.

As downtown Quincy goes, so in a large sense, goes the rest of Quincy.

If downtown is allowed to deteriorate into a shabby area with boarded up store fronts or fly-by-night operators, it will spread like a cancer to the neighborhoods.

Good looking stores mean tax revenue. And they mean hundreds of jobs for Quincy residents.

And besides that, downtown is a convenience for residents to shop, bank and to seek professional services.

"Quincy is not dead by a long shot—but we can die," says the Mayor. "But with the right leadership and cooperation we can prevent that."

He means you.

● Nixon Feels Worst Is Over

● Tight Impeachment Probe Security

● Kissinger Scores On Hill, Too

(Copyright, 1974, by United Feature Syndicate.)

WASHINGTON — President Nixon not only is keeping a stiff upper lip through his Watergate ordeal, but he is now beaming with optimism. My White House sources say he is convinced the worst is over and he is now beginning the upward climb.

As he has explained it to aides, he believes the case against him has now been presented in the worst possible light. Hereafter, his side of the story will start receiving national attention.

The President is cheered by encouraging reports from local party leaders about his recent TV appearances. He is planning a whole series of speeches and question-answer sessions to lay his case before the nation.

He will combine these with other activities to dramatize that, despite Watergate, he is still governing the nation. As a climax, he hopes to hold a triumphant summit conference with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev in Moscow.

The President still believes the House may impeach him, but he is convinced the Senate won't convict him by the necessary two-thirds vote. My sources say he is positively enthusiastic over his prospects of remaining in office until the end of his term.

There is only one drawback. His optimism is matched by deepening pessimism inside the Republican hierarchy. An increasing number of party leaders simply disagree with his assessment.

Meanwhile, up and down the country, Republicans are running for cover from President Nixon. They don't want to get caught in the Watergate crossfire which, they believe, has mortally wounded him. The charge that he owes $476,431 in avoided taxes may be the final bomb-burst that will destroy him politically.

But the President is still fighting from his political bomb shelter in the White House. He is eager to prove to the party that he isn't a political liability. He has asked aides to try to persuade Republican congressional candidates to invite him to campaign for them.

At the President's prodding, White House counselor Dean Burch and Republican national chairman George Bush flew out to Michigan and put quiet pressure on the state chairman, William McLaughlin, to invite the President to Michigan to campaign for James Sparling in a special congressional election.

My sources say McLaughlin warned the White House representatives that a presidential visit would hurt more than it would help Sparling's chances. McLaughlin reportedly argued that the President, himself, would be better off staying away. Otherwise, he would be blamed in case Sparling was defeated.

But Burch and Bush were insistent, and Sparling finally agreed to invite Nixon to Michigan. The President's press spokesman, Gerald Warren, immediately announced that the initiative for the invitation had come from Michigan not Washington and that the President would seriously consider a Michigan visit.

But like so many other things the White House says, Warren's statement wasn't entirely true.

Probe Drags On: The House Judiciary Committee has imposed the tightest possible security on its impeachment inquiry. Guards with walkie-talkies guard all the approaches to the offices, where investigators are sifting through the impeachment evidence. The hallways and fire escapes are closed off. Visitors can reach the offices only by elevator, whose doors are closely guarded.

Yet behind all this secrecy, I can report that the 100 attorneys, investigators, clerks and secretaries still can't find useful work to occupy their time. Only a dozen hard-core lawyers are trusted, apparently, to go through the secret evidence. Some of the secretaries fill their spare time by clipping newspaper articles for their bosses' scrapbooks.

The investigators have gone ahead with informal interviews with some Watergate figures such as dirty trickster Donald Segretti and Nixon campaign aide Hugh Sloan. But the taking of sworn depositions has been suspended, while the committee tries to make up its mind whether to let the President's attorney, James St. Clair, cross-examine witnesses.

The slow progress behind the guarded doors almost certainly means that the impeachment inquiry will drag on into the summer.

Henry and the Hill: Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is famous for his diplomatic detentes in Peking, Moscow and the Middle East. What has gone largely unnoticed, however, is his political detente right here in Washington.

Kissinger has succeeded where President Nixon has failed in establishing good relations on Capitol Hill. He is constantly giving congressional leaders closed-door briefings. He has also gone out of his way to appease congressional potentates in other ways.

Kissinger has 25 employees who do nothing but handle congressional requests and complaints. Over the past 12 months, they have answered more than 19,000 letters and 200,000 phone calls from Capitol Hill. Each congressional letter is logged in and out, and the responsible bureaucrat is allowed no more than three days to prepare a reply.

The State Department is also burdened with the task of arranging overseas trips for junketing congressmen. One official complained that embassy personnel don't have time for their diplomatic duties because they are too busy carrying luggage and conducting sightseeing tours.

So many junketeers are tramping through Taiwan, for example, that the U.S. ambassador there felt compelled to protest to the home office. His classified cable read, "This influx of visitors...is straining Embassy resources to the full."

Brownell Busy In 4th Bid, Aaron And Photo Coincidence

By HENRY BOSWORTH

The boss's indecision as to whether he will retire his badge this year isn't slowing Deputy Sheriff John Brownell down in his fourth bid for Norfolk County sheriff.

Brownell, one of three announced Democratic contenders from Quincy, is busy gathering signatures on his nomination papers. He needs 1,000 certified names by filing deadline June 18.

Meanwhile, Republican incumbent Charles Hedges is still reported undecided on whether to seek one more term or to step down.

In the past half-year he has gone from being virtually certain he would not run again to "maybe I will".

He has until the 11th hour to come to a final decision but meanwhile some of his past campaign workers are reported drifting into the camps of Brownell, Rep.-Councilor Clifford Marshall and County Commissioner George McDonald.

Republican party leaders would like to have Hedges run again. He has done an outstanding job as sheriff and is one of the last - maybe the last - Republican in Norfolk County who could beat a Democrat. If the GOP put up the campaign money, he would probably go again.

Brownell is making his fourth bid for the badge. He's been over the course and knows it well, making him a serious contender.

In 1952 he won the Democratic nomination and polled over 73,000 votes against strong GOP incumbent Sam Wragg. In 1956, he again ran against Wragg - this time in the Republican primary - and lost by a little more than 7,000 votes.

In 1960 he ran again as a Republican against Hedges in the primary and lost to him by about 14,000 votes. Hedges later appointed him a deputy sheriff.

The pair have become good friends and the fact that Brownell is running has political observers predicting that Hedges will bow out this year.

VIN NOBILE, the West Quincy sporting goods company owner, has two photos he will now long cherish. One is a photo taken last year at a New York City sporting goods show, of himself, his son, Ross, 16, and - Hank Aaron. Nobile, incidentally, recalls Aaron as being shy. [Pitchers would find that hard to believe.]

And, if you like coincidences, Nobile has another photo taken in the same spot the year before, showing himself - and get this - Dodgers pitcher Al Downing.

Speaking of coincidences, Nobile wonders if you noticed that Aaron and Downing both wear No. 44?

JAMES PAPILE officially kicks off his campaign for the vacant First Norfolk District state representative seat at a reception Tuesday, April 16 from 7 p.m. to midnight at Fore River Clubhouse, Nevada Rd., Quincy Point. Peter Doucette is his campaign director.

WHICH REMINDS US: Both Jim Papile and Robert Cerasoli, who is also seeking the First Norfolk District seat, have joined the Montclair Men's Club. And that poses a slight problem: The Montclair Men's Club usually endorses members running for public office. What does it do in this case?

SPEAKING OF THE Montclair Men's Club members Joseph Gildea and Richard Post founded the Little Bowling Loop 20 years ago. Gildea is now its president. And this year, for the first time in 20 years, the Montclair Men's Club sponsored team has won the championship.

YOU PROBABLY KNOW that Laurence Curtin is a former Quincy City Council president. And that William Callahan was formerly chairman of the city assessors. But did you know the pair were business partners as young fellows back in 1928?

They ran the Callahan-Curtin Hot Dog stand at Wollaston Beach. And take pride in the fact that they had a business "first". They were the first to grill hot dog rolls in this area.

It was the coldest season in history.

QUINCY'S KATHY O'DONNELL is sporting a new button you may see a lot of this year. It reads: "WWW '74". Translation: Win With Women. Kathy is chairwoman of the South Shore Women's Caucus. The button is the theme of the National Women's Political Caucus supporting women seeking public office this year.

HERE'S ONE: Via the Quincy Rotary Club's Newsletter and Editor Donald Smith:

Due to the increased popularity of Streaking, it has become necessary to issue a policy concerning guide lines for Streaking by all Quincy Rotarians:

1 - Quincy Rotarians who wish to streak must do so based on seniority in our club. Contrary to rumors presently circulating, there will be no special award given for the "Best Performance".

2 - It must be further emphasized that safety glasses must be worn by streakers while in our dining room area.

3 - At no time will cameras or opera glasses be permitted by onlooking Rotarians.

4 - It is further requested that streakers refrain from streaking on days immediately following floor waxing as this presents a definite hazard.

5 - To keep the professional image intact, Quincy Rotarians must wear neckties while streaking.

Urges Support Of Arts In Quincy

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Quincy Arts Alliance encourages all residents of the South Shore area to take advantage of the superlative programs being presented at Quincy's Atlantic Junior High School this month.

Through the efforts of such community minded organizations as the Blanchard Foundation and Lechmere Sales, the Metropolitan Cultural Alliance has brought to Quincy several of the first rate Boston performing companies. All of those who attended the compelling performance of the Boston Repertory Theatre, a presentation of "Animal Farm" would convincingly assure you that major theatre works are available in Quincy all this month.

We still have an opportunity to see "The Boston Tea Party" by the Proposition on April 17th and two dance performances.

[1] Dance Company of the National Center of Afro American Artists on April 21, at 2 p.m. - a fine treat for the whole family. [2] Concert Dance Company presents a program of modern dance pieces, including "For Betty" choreographed by Bill Evans, whom we had an opportunity to meet with the Utah Repertory Dance troupe.

On May first is the last performance of Cambridge Ensemble, their Quincy premier of "Southern Route".

We are optimistic that many of our fellow citizens realizing they can see a quality performance by artists of distinction, will hurry to support this first in Quincy. Here is a chance to enjoy the theatre without the traffic and parking problem. Here is a chance to take the family to a Sunday afternoon performance. Lets make Quincy the cultural Center for the "South" by supporting the arts!

Living, Today

By Dr. William F. Knox

'I Wish I Hadn't Divorced'

There's nothing I can do about it now" ... Phyllis said ... "but I wish I hadn't divorced Ralph". "I think I could have taken what he was giving me then easier than I can take what I'm getting now."

Phyllis had divorced four years before. She had lost confidence in herself. Her mortgage was three months behind. Her children had been deprived of opportunities because of the inadequate support. Phyllis was lonely ... seldom went out. She was having second thoughts.

Many divorced people have second thoughts ... could I have made it? Did I do the right thing? ... if only he/she would have changed ... will I ever find another one to love and who will love me? Will I ever overcome this awful loneliness? You who have not been through a divorce ... don't judge your friend who has. It's a tough experience. You would do well to concentrate on resolving the little ... or big problems which jeopardize your own marriage.

Most separated, divorced and widowed people don't know how to start over. The loss of confidence is devastating to many ... especially if there is no one waiting in the wings to marry you. You feel rejected. You feel no one cares. You are lonely. You don't know how to act. You aren't a teenager any more ... you've forgotten how to act that way ... and you don't know how an adult single is supposed to act. You don't want to bore friends with your problem ... yet you do. And they are quick to give advice ... "what you ought to do is ..." Of course this person has no knowledge and no experience. His/her advice is probably poor.

One force in helping people who have become un-coupled in our area is S.A.G.E. Magazine. The letters stand for Single Adults Guild to Entertainment. Subscription $5.00, P.O. Box 39, Belmont, Mass. 02179. This magazine reports activities for single ... all ages ... modest cost ... varied interests ... dining ... dancing ... discussions ... wine and cheese parties ... cook-outs ... opportunities to meet people. No one need to spend a week-end alone. You may be depriving others of your company by depriving yourself of human companionship you most crave.

Get your divorce behind you. If it's over psychologically, then have the funeral and get on with your new life.

Q - I just bought a boat at the boat show and now am in the market for an engine. What is the maximum horsepower engine I can install on this boat?

A - The Boating Safety Division of the First Coast Guard District suggests you check your capacity plate. Regulations do not limit the size engine you can put on your vessel, however this plate usually found on the transom or near the steering wheel, will indicate the maximum safe horsepower for which the vessel was designed.

Q - A fellow who works with me tells me that aliens can collect the Supplemental Security Income that Social Security is now paying to people on welfare who are disabled, aged or blind.

A - Not so! Aliens who are here illegally or who are legally here as visitors or students are not eligible for SSI. Nationals of the United States who are not technically U.S. Citizens will be treated as citizens for SSI eligibility purposes.

Q - I read somewhere that some 150 to 200 die each year and some 50,000 others are injured seriously in accidents involving infant cribs. When is something going to be done to reduce the hazards of cribs?

A - Something has! U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission has developed a new regulation to insure that in the future cribs will be designed and built more safely. Some of the changes are: crib slats will be placed more closely together to prevent babies from slipping through; a prominent warning will be placed on crib headboards cautioning parents to use only a mattress of the proper size. If you already have a crib, purchase all-around bumper pads to protect the baby from the hazards of widely-spaced slats, install a properly-fitted mattress and thoroughly inspect the cribs general stability and condition.

Gifted girl hides anxieties

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON
Certified Master
Graphoanalyst

Dear Dorothy:

I hope to be a professional musician someday, but whenever I play before a group of people, I am so nervous that I can't play well. I know I have the talent and I really love to play. I just can't keep calm. Can you tell me why I'm like this?

K. L.

Dear K.L.:

It's exciting that you have already found yourself... at 16!

Ironically, you are bothered by the very thing that doesn't even show. Because you wear your feelings wrong-side out, others see you as a calm, dignified young lady, seen in the upright strokes of your writing.

Combined with the pressure you exert upon your pen, you feel inwardly, all the little anxieties which you experience all by yourself. Just by looking, no one would know that you were upset at all.

The high section of your m and n is a nuisance. It makes you wonder. You wonder what impression you are making, what people think, and what they are saying. Then, seen in the large lower loops, you enlarge all these little wonderments into a mountain, and, maybe, there's no cause for their existence at all.

You are a genuinely gifted girl, seen through the evaluation of the breaks in your words, lack of beginning upstrokes, reversed f loop, and other stroke combinations.

Not only can you perform, musically, but you can compose, too. Combine that delta d with the already mentioned strokes, and you have an unusual ability to write. Then, the printed s enhances everything you do by giving it the artistic touch.

That crescendo of your heart beat which brings that feeling of excitement just before you "go on" is a good thing. It means that you are challenged. It means your body is giving you "extra emotion" to grasp the challenge.

You'll have to make some demands upon your personality from time to time. Through such demands you provide the soil and climate in which your confidence roots and grows.

D. J.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

He just loves his old clothes

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

My husband is a saver of old clothes.

Out in the garage, hanging on nails, stuffed in cupboards and flung on the floor are enough old pants and shirts to open a boutique for slobs, because his old clothes are not the sort of faddishly faded jeans and wonderfully wrinkled shirts that make Steve McQueen look so devil-may-care. They just make a man look like the devil.

But he won't part with any of them no matter what I try — and I've tried plenty. "What do you want this stuff for?" I asked only last week, and held up a pile of rags only an arsonist would have any use for.

"Give me those!" cried my husband, and snatched the bundle out of my arms like a mother saving her babe from a kidnaper. "I'm going to wear those when I paint the inside of the shower."

I told him he was about as likely to wear those clothes again as he was to paint the inside of the shower. He said he might want to wear them to replant the lawn or take his car apart.

I reminded him that we don't have a lawn and that he cannot even find the hide-a-key under the hood of his car. He smiled sheepishly and tucked the whole wad of rags into a box marked "Christmas lights."

"Well then," he persisted, "maybe you'd like to wear them when you paint the inside of the shower."

"I'm not about to paint any shower wearing a moth-eaten ski sweater and a pair of 1943 Army fatigue pants with a 40-inch waist," I said. "I'd sooner streak than wear a stitch of your old clothes."

All in all, I think he would too. Because the last time he lifted a paint brush — six years ago — he didn't go near his wardrobe of crumby clothes. He painted our front door orange wearing his new topcoat.

"Hey," I said, "you've got undercoat on your overcoat." "Yeah," he answered, "guess I'll have to hang it in the garage in case I want to paint the shutters to match the door."

I'm still waiting.

STITCHING WITCHERY

Readers— on knit squares

By BETTY W. KINSER

How do you crochet around knit squares? All I had to do was ask my readers. They knew.

Dear Betty:

Use a large darning needle and thread it with yarn. Go around each knit square with the blanket stitch. I take a deeper stitch than for crocheting so it won't pull out. With a size H crochet hook, work the crochet pattern around the square using the blanket stitch as a base.

Mrs. D. Holt, Shelley, Ida.

Dear Betty:

Cut your knit squares all the same size, then use strong thread and the strongest needle that will go through the material easily. Make hand buttonhole stitches all around the square, then crochet in the buttonhole stitches. Add each completed square to the previous square, either crocheting or handwhipping together until you have the length strip you want. Then join all the strips together, matching the squares perfectly as you go along.

When the piece is finished, steam press. This makes a nice warm lap robe for sick people, a shoulder wrap, or a "nap robe." I love to make things with my hands and make many things for the Army, Navy and Red Cross during wartime.

Mrs. Hattie C. Leech,
Boca Raton, Fla.

Extreme old age called a 'myth'

The belief that people in some parts of the world live for as long as 150 years is a myth, according to gerontologists, who say it is unreasonable to expect to live much beyond the age of 90.

Accounts of very old but hale and hearty people living in such places as Georgia, Soviet Union; Hunza region in Asia and Vilcabamba in Ecuador are "... a matter of faith and not of fact," according to Dr. Leonard Hayflick of Stanford University. — CNS

PERSONAL

Your room isn't a hotel

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

Why does my mother constantly complain about the way I keep my room? She keeps the rest of the house the way she wants it, and I like my room the way it is — messy.

Mom complains about the ring around the tub. The makeup I leave out and the fact that my dirty clothes don't always end up in the hamper. Why can't she just shut the door and forget it?

Marty

Dear Marty:

To answer your question — because she knows what is behind the door! Home may be where you hang your hat, BUT it is not a hotel.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

Daylight savings time may be working out just great for most people but it is a disaster at our house. My husband is constantly late for work and the children haven't gotten to school on time yet.

Don't tell me to use an alarm clock. My husband just rolls over, shuts off the alarm, and goes back to sleep. Daylight savings time is for the birds and we aren't birds.

No Bird

Dear No Bird:

Why not put the alarm on your side of the bed — out of reach. If the rest of the country adjusts, I'm afraid you'll have to join the flock.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I generally agree with you but you really gave Sissy bad advice. She said that her mother-in-law had a heart of gold. Her one fault was that she insisted on knowing where Sissy and her husband were every moment. If they went on a weekend trip, Mother wanted to be informed. Sissy wanted to know how to handle this and you told her to tell her mother-in-law to stop meddling.

My mother-in-law hasn't seen us for over six months and she never calls. I was in the hospital two months ago and she still doesn't know about it. She acts like she doesn't care if we are dead or alive. Tell Sissy I'll trade her even.

Nancy

Dear Nancy:

Your mother-in-law is at the end of the tightrope. The trick is to walk in the middle. And this must be a difficult feat for all mothers-in-law.

FAMILY FIRE DRILLS

Fire drills are just as necessary at home as in schools. A person who knows what to do in case of fire is not so likely to panic and become trapped.

Sit down with your family and map out a fire escape route and alternate from every room, especially bedrooms. Don't count too heavily on using stairways for exits because they are usually the first to be flooded with smoke and heat.

A porch roof or garage deck are ideal havens while awaiting rescue. Where these are not available, a rope ladder can be stored in an upstairs bedroom and dropped out in a few seconds.

Teach everyone the "bedroom door heat test". Feel before opening. If it's hot or even warm, keep it closed and go out the window. Open it and you'll be felled by a blast of hot air and fumes.

Decide on a meeting point outside the house so no one will be tempted to return for someone who is already safe. Practice fire drills not once but often. They may, one day, save the lives of your family.

Calls For Cooperation At QCBPA Breakfast

'Quincy Is Not Dead - But We Can Die', Mayor Warns

"Quincy is not dead by a long-shot - but we can die. But with the right leadership and cooperation, we can prevent that."

The words were those of Mayor Walter Hannon as keynote speaker at a member-guest breakfast meeting of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

Some 60 business and professional leaders were on hand for the first such meeting held at the Carlton House, North Quincy.

Plans were also outlined by Promotions Chairman Philip Chase for a number of monthly downtown promotions for the remainder of this year and into 1975.

The Mayor predicted Quincy will see - among other things:

- A South Quincy MBTA station.

- Extension of Upland Rd to Capen's Bridge, Braintree.

- More apartment construction in the downtown area which should attract another major retailer to the area.

He warned that the proposed 10-story height limit on building would have "a terrible impact" on Quincy's future.

Hannon said cooperation from businessmen in the past "is a very encouraging sign" but he urged:

"We need a strong downtown merchants association. We need your support."

Hannon said that the Hilgenhurst plan calling for a multi-million dollar revitalization of the downtown area "makes a good deal of sense."

As an example, he cited the Hancock Parking area:

"A lot of exciting things can happen to it. It has a great deal of potential. We should spend money there.

Declaring that "every effort will be made regardless of political consequence to move ahead," the Mayor had these comments on matters, past and present:

- "The Parking garage - one of the best things we have ever done in downtown Quincy. It is not a white elephant.

- "One of Quincy's biggest blunders was letting Rtes. 3 and 128 by-pass Quincy. I don't intend to let it happen again.

- "We're going to have a South Quincy [MBTA] station and ramps, and extend Upland Rd to Capen's Bridge and have ramps at School and Water Sts.

- "Ample parking...rapid transit...apartment living. An additional 1,000 apartments are under construction now or on the drawing boards. A major retailer will look at the apartments and see that people will live in a downtown area and locate here.

"The 10-story height [limit] would have a terrible impact on future plans of the city."

Hannon said that the City Council is "inexperienced but intelligent" and urged the QCBPA to "sit down and talk with them."

"The pressure is on these young men," he declared. "They came into office under a cloud of suspicion because of the cemetery department."

Hannon urged the merchants to help keep the downtown area clean.

He said the Planning Department will ask the removal of protruding signs.

QCBPA Executive Director John Murray pledged the association's cooperation to the mayor.

Hanover Resident Wins Color TV In 'Freddie Days' Contest

How much did Freddie sell? In his 50 years as a home appliance salesman, Fred Poblentz of South Shore Television and Appliance, 1570 Hancock St., Quincy Center, sold an estimated $5,902,735.52.

And, Mary Cummings of 212 Brook Circle, Hanover, guessed the closest to that figure and has won herself a color Admiral television set.

Her estimate was $5,895,976.33-just $6,759.19 off.

The three top runnersup, each of whom will receive a transistor radio were:

Harry Roemer, executive secretary of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, whose figure was $23,085 off, Warren D. Ford, 481 Sumner St., Weymouth, $23,300 off and Dora DelVecchio, 45 Germaine Ave., Quincy Point, $38,488 off.

The contest climaxed a three-day "Freddie Days" promotion at South Shore Television and Appliance March 28, 29, 30 in honor of Poblentz' golden anniversary as a home appliance salesman.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon officially proclaimed "Freddie Days" in his honor.

Joseph H. Palumbo of Hancock Tire & Appliance Co., Quincy, recently took part in a merchandising seminar conducted by Amana Refrigeration Inc., at the firm's Iowa headquarters.

He joined a select national group of retailers and retail salesmen as a guest of Amana for sales and marketing training on the complete line of Amana refrigerator-freezers, freezers, Radarange [R] microwave ovens, room air conditioners, compactors and dehumidifiers.

Included were presentations of Amana's new 3 Door Ice 'N Water' side-by-side automatic refrigerator and two new compact Radarange ovens that will retail for $249 and $289 respectively. Amana's merchandising seminars are part of a continuing national program of assistance to Amana distributors and retailers.

In addition to meeting with company sales and marketing executives, the group toured the Amana Refrigeration, Inc. factory and the Amana Colonies, where they savored the old world foods and atmosphere that have made the Colonies famous.

They also had the opportunity to see first hand the century-old traditions that have won the Colonies world fame for quality craftsmanship in many fields.

Hancock Bank Approves Acquisition Plan

The stockholders of Hancock Bank at their annual meeting April 4 voted to approve a plan of acquisition under which The Hancock Group, Inc., a holding company, would acquire all outstanding shares of Hancock Bank in exchange for an equal number of holding company shares.

Elected as officers of the new holding company were William E. Kelley, Cohasset, president; Francis A. Hunt, Dedham, vice president and Harold H. Slate, Milton, clerk.

The stockholders' vote is subject to further approval by the Massachusetts Commission of Banks.

According to Kelley, the plan as approved calls for the authorization of 1,000,000 shares of common stock ($5. par value) of The Hancock Group, Inc. of which 720,052 shares will be issued.

A total of 279,948 shares of the new issue will be used to exchange for a like number of Hancock Bank shares outstanding, Kelley said.

"We have no immediate plans for a bank or bank-related acquisition. The new holding company concept does afford us an excellent opportunity to expand our horizons," Kelley explained.

In other action at the annual meeting, Hancock Bank stockholders re-elected William E. Kelley, president and chief executive officer of Hancock Bank. Also re-elected were Francis A. Hunt, secretary and William P. Smith, Braintree, assistant secretary.

Elected directors for the coming year were: Robert P. Greaves, Dedham; Henry Hoffman, South Weymouth; Francis A. Hunt, Dedham; Paul E. Hurley, Boston; William E. Kelley, Cohasset; Frank W. Famigletti To File, Ricciuti Considering Legal Action

the council Saturday morning at City Hall."

Kelly called the statement "totally inaccurate."

"Mr. Ricciuti asked an opportunity to confront him but LaRaia refused to state any grounds for his charge in Mr. Ricciuti's presence."

Mayor Hannon also denied the charge with Ricciuti.

The Mayor told The Sun in a statement:

"Before I reappointed Ricciuti I talked to the City Solicitor [Richard McCormick] about it and he said it was his opinion that there was no conflict of interest."

"On Friday, LaRaia called me and said he took issue with the reappointment. He said he would bring me information that would show it was an unwise decision."

The Mayor, LaRaia, Ricciuti and City Councillors Arthur H. Tobin and John J. Quinn met in the Mayor's office Saturday morning during a recess in the Council's budget hearings.

Said the Mayor:

"I gave him [LaRaia] a chance to confront Ricciuti with any new information he had as to why I should not reappoint him. He would not."

"I asked Ricciuti to leave and brought the City Council in to listen to Joe. He only repeated what had been in the papers."

"One of the councillors asked him if he had anything new. Joe said, 'No.' The City Council walked out."

"You can quote me as saying he didn't have the common decency to confront Mr. Ricciuti."

"He gave us nothing."

"I don't want him to get off the hook by saying he discussed it with Mr. Ricciuti."

"He didn't have the guts to do that."

"And that's all I'm going to say about it."

Council President Tobin gave this account of Saturday's confrontation at City Hall:

The Council was holding budget hearings in the Chamber. The budgets for the Fire Department, Fire Alarm and the Cemetery Department had been disposed of without LaRaia present.

The Public Works budget was up next. It was time for Ricciuti to testify. Chairman John J. Quinn recessed the meeting.

Mayor Hannon, Ricciuti and Councillors were standing in one of the rooms off the Council Chamber when LaRaia came in. Hannon told him:

"You called me yesterday about Commissioner Ricciuti. There is the commissioner. There is Ricciuti. Tell him to his face."

"I came here to talk about the budget," said LaRaia.

"No," said Hannon. "We'll talk about Ricciuti now. There he is. Tell him now."

LaRaia said, "I don't wish to discuss it. I want to talk with you."

"Wait a minute, Joe," Ricciuti said. "I am the commissioner. You have made these allegations. I have a right to confront my accuser. Aren't you man enough to confront me. You've been saying things about my family and my name. Now say them to me face to face."

LaRaia said he didn't want to discuss it.

"Well I do," said Ricciuti.

The argument went back and forth for about 15 minutes. Finally, LaRaia told Hannon he wanted to go into the mayor's office with him. Hannon agreed but added:

"I want the council president [Tobin] and the dean of the Council [Quinn] to be in the room with us."

Ricciuti went into the mayor's office with the other four.

Hannon asked LaRaia to tell him what he wanted. LaRaia refused to say anything until Ricciuti left the room. The dispute went on for 10 or 15 minutes more.

Ricciuti said to LaRaia, "I resent the cheap shots you've been taking at me in the papers. Why don't you have the decency to tell me first. I'm not going to take any more of this from you. I'm not going to stand by and see my name smeared."

The argument grew more heated and Ricciuti walked out.

The other Councillors came into the mayor's office. LaRaia repeated to them his charge of an appearance of conflict of interest in Ricciuti's job as commissioner and his holdings in the monument company.

Ward 6 Councillor Dennis E.

Harrington, a member of the staff of Dist. Atty. George Burke, told LaRaia that his evidence was insufficient to sustain a charge. The appearance, he said, has to be real, "not wishy washy."

The Councillors asked LaRaia if that was all the evidence he had. He told them it was. That was the end of the discussion.

LaRaia said of the incident:

"I sat down with him [Hannon] and the City Council to discuss an apparent conflict of interest. As far as I'm concerned, nothing has been resolved except that the apparent conflict has been brought to light."

"This time it is the mayor's decision. It's an administrative action. Whatever I suggested to him, it's his prerogative to act."

"I don't feel that the Mayor took any action on the matter after I brought it to his attention."

"A city councillor as an individual doesn't have much power. But if he makes it strong enough he can move others to action."

"My involvement in the cemetery matter created action on the part of others."

'The Boston Tea Party' At Atlantic Junior

"The Boston Tea Party's" gala cabaret performed by the cast of the Proposition, is on its way to Quincy.

The show will be part of the first season of "Performances South" for South Shore Communities and will be presented on Wednesday, April 17 at 8 p.m. at Atlantic Junior High School, North Quincy.

This eagle eyed view of Americana, conceived and directed by Allan Albert, also features material by Art Buchwald and Jules Feiffer, with original music by Andy Gaus and Diane Bulgarelli. It's a story theatre version of the historic Boston Tea Party.

Highlighted themes are "Lost in Rosemary Woods", "An Enlightened Explanation of the Famed 18 Minute Tape Erasure", "Serve Your Country", "A cooking Segment Decidedly Tongue in Cheek", "The Woman Behind The Lady Behind The Man", and "A Joycean Soliloquy". It's topical, it's historical, it's musical, it's a parody and it's full of the spirit of 1776 and 1976.

All this irreverent Tea Party fun is part of a theatre season, "Performances South", a Metropolitan Cultural Alliance project that brings professional theatre, music and dance to suburban communities. "Performances North" took place in Marblehead, "Performances West" was in Wellesley, and "Performances South" has come to Quincy.

Tickets can be obtained by calling 773-3290 or by contacting a member of the Quincy Arts Alliance.

Some Consumers Didn't Pay 8.5% More To Live In '73

By Philip J. Lawrence
President
COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Hottelbrook
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

Did your living costs go up 8.5 per cent last year?

So the newspapers reported in January with the release of the 1973 Consumer Price Index by the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

This may not be true in your case, since the Consumer Price Index naturally cannot measure the many and various factors which affect living expenses - including your own adjustment, if any, to rising costs.

What does the CPI measure and how does it work?

The index covers prices of everything people buy for living - "food, clothing, automobiles, homes, house furnishings, household supplies, fuel, drugs, and recreational goods; fees to doctors, lawyers, beauty shops; rent, repair costs, transportation fares, public utility rates, etc. It deals with prices actually charged to consumers, including sales and excise taxes. It also includes real estate taxes on owned homes, but does not include income or personal property taxes."

Interestingly enough, the index confines its study to a statistical measure of changes in prices of goods and services bought by urban wage earning and clerical workers. It excludes professional, technical, and kindred workers, such as engineers and teachers.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics, which has been calculating the Consumer Price Index for five decades, believes its present sampling methods provide a reasonably accurate picture of price changes. About 400 items, for example, compose the "market basket" to reflect food prices. Because food prices change frequently and because they are a significant part of total sampling of total spending on the lower economic levels, food pricing is conducted every month in each urban location studied by the Bureau.

The Consumer Price Index is receiving increasing attention in labor-management contracts to adjust wages. It is used as a measure of changes in the purchasing power of the dollar for such diverse purposes as adjusting royalties, pensions, welfare payments, and occasionally alimony payments. It is also widely referred to as reflecting the inflationary trends in the economy.

But for the average consumer it best serves as a warning signal that helps to counteract price trends by more prudent expenditures. Certainly not every American family spent 8.5 per cent more in 1973 than in 1972. Many were guided away from buying non-essentials by the awareness of cost and the knowledge that incurred and indiscriminate spending only boosts prices even higher.

The more aware we become of the CPI and its implications for our pocketbook, the more attention we will give to sound financial management of our financial resources. People are beginning to realize what a difference this makes between income and outgo.

EASTER - THE RESURRECTION

Luke 23:50, 55-56 & Luke 24:1-9

From The Living Bible

Then a man named Joseph, a member of the Jewish Supreme Court, from the city of Arimathea in Judea, went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. As the body was taken away, the women from Galilee followed and saw it carried into the tomb. Then they went home and prepared spices and ointments to embalm him; but by the time they were finished it was the Sabbath, so they rested all that day as required by the Jewish law. But very early on Sunday morning they took the ointments to the tomb - and found that the huge stone covering the entrance had been rolled aside. So they went in - but the Lord Jesus' body was gone. They stood there puzzled, trying to think what could have happened to it. Suddenly two men appeared before them, clothed in shining robes. Their eyes were dazzled. The men asked, "Why are you before them, tomb for someone who is alive? He isn't here! He has come back to life again! Don't you remember what he told you back in Galilee - that the Messiah must be betrayed into the power of evil men and be crucified and that he would rise again the third day?" Then they remembered, and rushed back to Jerusalem to tell his eleven disciples - and everyone else - what had happened.

Revival Meetings At Salvation Army

Lt. Col. B. Barton McIntyre is conducting a series of meetings at the Salvation Army Quincy Temple Corps through April 14. Lt. Col. McIntyre, Territorial Revivalist, has conducted campaigns throughout the eastern seaboard.

Commissioned as a Salvation Army Officer in 1931, his appointments included that of Corps Officer in Harlem and Brooklyn and he served as a counselor on minority relations in Washington, D.C., St. Louis, Chicago, Cleveland and Memphis, Tenn.

The services will begin at 7:30 p.m. with an old-fashion hymn sing, special music, and a timely message by the Colonel.

Quincy churches will observe the most solemn and the most joyous days on the Christian calendar this weekend.

The observances begin today, Maundy [Holy] Thursday, and continue through Good Friday and reach a climax on Easter Sunday.

For some, the high point of the weekend will be Sunrise Services at one of three locations on the Quincy shore.

Once again, the Way, a sanctuary for young people in Squantum, will conduct Sunrise Services at Mosswetuset Hummock starting at 5:20 a.m. and continuing through sunrise at 6:07 a.m.

The services will be mostly for young people, with rock and folk music featured, although the traditional "Christ, the Lord", will be sung.

The services will be followed by a cookout breakfast of bacon, eggs, potatoes, toast and juice for which the charge is $1.25 to cover the cost of the food.

Anyone who wishes may attend but Gene Langevin of the Way has suggested that they make their intentions known by calling 773-1360.

Usually, he said, some 20 to 30 "warmly dressed" people attend the service.

Wollaston Church of the Nazarene will hold Sunrise Services at 5:45 a.m. at Treasure Island, Merrymount, for youths of junior and senior high school age.

Both religious and folk rock music will be featured by the 316, the church band, and the Peacemakers, the church choir.

Life styles change. Traditions and customs change. So does funeral service. Today, no two funerals are alike, because no two families are alike. Today a competent funeral director must provide a broad spectrum of services than ever before.

It's a challenge. Funeral directors affiliated with National Selected Morticians meet this challenge with a wide selection in a broad range of prices so each family may choose what best meets its needs.

As members of NSM in this area, we helped bring it about. We believe in matching the service to the need. It helps make us someone to count on, every time.

GETTING CONTRAST --- This photo of two deer shows how proper development can produce contrast. A weak developer or under-development produces low contrast.

Good developing brings contrast

By GILBERT HILL

More time is spent by photographers in discussion of developers for film, perhaps, than with any other subject. But, unfortunately, most of the talk centers around the "grain," claimed to be produced by a particular developer, with little or no attention given to the quality of the image — which is, after all, a basic requirement for a good photograph.

Contrast in the final pictures is one of the functions of film development. But techniques in the use of any developer may be as important to results, as the type, or brand of solution used.

A weak developer, or underdevelopment — caused by too little time, insufficient agitation, or temperatures too low — produces low contrast, weak negatives. But they will be virtually grainless because there is little or no image.

A strong developer, or overdevelopment — caused by too much time, too much agitation, or too warm a solution — will produce an extremely contrasty negative, and even with very fine grain films may show the grain structure very strongly.

Most fine grain solutions are actually weak developers. They are designed for use with slow, and medium speed films, which are basically more contrasty films. Minimum development of these films which are exposed properly — which means at the rating suggested by the manufacturer — should produce good negatives with sufficient contrast for a good print.

But use of weak developers on faster but flat-contrast films, cannot be successful without giving these films far more development to build up the dark areas so they will produce stronger highlights and the shadow areas so they will show any detail at all.

The trick is to find a developer that will produce the best possible negative for use in your equipment, while, at the same time holding the grain level at the lowest possible level — and this means grain that probably can be seen when a photograph is examined very closely, but is not noticeable at the normal viewing distance for the size to which the final picture is made.

There can be no standard for comparison until a negative — and a print — have been produced which are of the best possible quality regardless of grain. This, normally, will be provided by a negative exposed at the speed suggested by the manufacturer, developed in a "normal" or medium speed developer, and printed on "normal," or about No. 2, contrast grade paper.

When the photographer has a picture of this type, probably an 8x10 from a 35mm negative, he has something with which to compare when he tries out the latest super developer, which will produce a fine grain negative when exposed at double the manufacturer's suggested speed ratings.

Then it is possible to see whether or not the picture has lost contrast or detail, in either highlights or shadows, in order to provide that much discussed but relatively unimportant "fine grain."

So, now the photographer who is doing his own work can establish his own control over his results in two more steps — the selection of the developer he wants to use and selection of how much he wants to underdevelop a high contrast negative to reduce contrast, or how much to overdevelop a flat negative material to get contrast.

And this is one step that can be taken with no more than a dark closet in which to work while loading the film into a developing tank, because actual development with most tanks can be done in room light by pouring solutions into, and out of, a light tight tank.

Market Report:

Guess What?
Beef Prices Are Down!

With beef production increasing sharply this month, and meat counters generally well-stocked, meat prices are actually coming down, reports the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture [MDA] this week.

At this time last year, the first of the revolts against high beef prices had begun, meat was in short supply, and prices were little short of astronomical. Today, wholesale prices are down some 20 percent, and retail prices have dropped 10 to 20 cents a pound...making beef one of the few food items that cost less today than a year ago. Because they have to move their cattle, most feed-lot operators are marketing their stock at a loss, it is reported.

This could be an excellent time to stock the freezer with beef, pork and poultry.

You'll find excellent stocks of Easter plants and flowers on hand right now...daffodils, Easter lilies, hydrangeas, mums, tulips and assorted mixed plants...most having been grown in Bay State greenhouses.

Some vegetable seeds can be planted as early as mid-April, says the MDA, provided the soil is not too wet to handle. Beets, carrots, peas, radishes and spinach generally do well with early planting. You could also plant lettuce about now, but both head lettuce and cabbage need lots of growing space, and constant care and protection.

For a backyard garden that will supply most of the fresh vegetable needs of a family of five or six from early summer to first frost, the MDA suggests the following: 1 doz. tomato plants; 1 doz. eggplant; two or three vines of Zucchini or yellow summer squash; one row pole [green] beans; two hills cucumbers; two hills butternut squash [mature in fall]; 1 doz. green peppers. If you want some fast action, and like them, plant a row of radishes as early as possible, and pick them in 35 to 40 days.

Lawn enthusiasts can still get the free pamphlet, "Steps to Building a Good Lawn", by sending your request, with a stamped, self-addressed envelope, to Division of Markets, MDA, 100 Cambridge St., Boston 02202.

Hall Sees Good Season But Slim Championship Chance

Quincy's track team has won 21 straight Greater Boston League meets, 27 of its last 28 and three straight league titles.

Coach Tom Hall, however, is not optimistic about a fourth straight title in the Presidents' final GBL season, with Haverhill entering the league this year as well as Peabody.

"I rate Haverhill as probably the outstanding team in the state and it is going to be awfully hard to beat them," Hall admitted. "However, we have a good looking squad with a lot of veterans and we should have another good year."

Quincy fans will get a chance to see the Haverhill powerhouse next Tuesday when it faces the Presidents at Veterans Memorial Stadium at 10:30 a.m. Although Quincy is scheduled for only two home meets, Hall is trying to arrange others at the new all-weather track. Today [Thursday] Quincy faces Everett at Medford. Last Tuesday's scheduled opener against Peabody was rained out.

Veteran Laine Watkins, Alan Vachon and Wayne Ponder will run the 100-yard dash, veterans John MacFarlane, Steve Oriola and Pete Ramponi the 220, veteran Dave DiBona and Brad Kimball the 440, returnees Gary Delorio and Steve Nolan and Steve's brother, Bob, the 880, veterans Arnie Vorosso and Steve Player the mile, and Kevin O'Brien and Sam Gravina, both newcomers to spring track, the two-mile.

Veteran Preston Carroll and Dan McDermott will compete in the low hurdles with a pair of veterans, Steve Burke and Art DiLoreto, in the high hurdles.

DiLoreto heads the high jumpers and is joined by Leo Barron and Gravina.

Paul Riggs, a veteran, Carroll and Watkins make up the long jump group and MacFarlane and DiBona will be in the triple jump, an event Quincy was especially strong in a year ago.

Veteran Mike Varraso and his younger brother, Bob, will be in the shot put, veterans Sten and Burke in the discus, veterans Jim Johnson and Charlie Djerf and Charlie Gaziano in the javelin.

"I haven't decided on the relay team but we have some fine runners to choose from," Hall said.

Tom is again being assisted by Joe Wessling.

Girls Bombardment Tourney Semi-Finals Underway

The semifinals of the first all-city bombardment tournament for girls, sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Dept., were scheduled yesterday [Wednesday] at the Wollaston School gym.

More than 120 girls participated in the first round of the tourney last week. Bombardment is a game similar to dodge ball and has been part of the Quincy Recreation after-school program for more than 20 years. This is the first year, however, for the all-city event.

Each team is made up of elementary school girls who have competed in a 22-week after-school program under recreation supervision. Fifteen girls are chosen to represent each center in the single elimination tournament. The 120 girls who make their way into the playoffs are only a part of the more than 400 girls who play bombardment each week.

Barry Welch, director of this year's tournament, believes Quincy is the first city to sponsor a city-wide bombardment playoffs.

The Recreation Dept. also sponsors post season city-wide tournaments in basketball [three age divisions], and street hockey on one day division. Basketball is in its 23rd year and street hockey in its fifth.

Consistency was the word in the first round as Parker, Atherton Hough, Beechwood Knoll and Quincy advanced to the semifinals by sweeping their series in two straight games.

Parker eliminated Montclair after some outstanding play by Patty Boyle, Nancy Pasquicade, Lisa Flynn, Peggy Comady, Maureen McCarthy and Tara Mahoney of Parker and by Judy Gordon and Patty Nee of Montclair.

Atherton Hough defeated Snug Harbor, despite the Harbor girls having the largest crowd of fans. Starring for Atherton Hough were Capt. Theresa Foregon, Janet Sines, Laura Riley and Debbie Cummings. Snug Harbor was led by Patty Murphy, Patty Craig, Cindy Smith, Karen O'Rourke, Lisa Ryan and Capt. Michele Cullen.

Beechwood Knoll ousted Wollaston Center with some fine performances by Marie Falcetty, Patti Micoli, Juliano Hurley and Nancy McDonald. Wollaston, unable to take advantage of its home court, was sparked by Theresa Doherty, Loretta Garison, Lisa Brick, Joanne O'Leary and Kathy Doherty.

In the most exciting game Quincy Center defeated Squantum and was led by Dottie Peterson, Faith Lindberg, Shirley Baker, Margie Marks and Diane Burke. Leading Squantum were Robin Jellison, Diana Tower, Susan Murray and Jill Sweeney.

Coaches this year are Denise Burke, Montclair; Mary Ellen Grazioso, Atherton Hough; Kathy Sheehan, Parker; Mary White, Beechwood Knoll; Kathy Bagley, Quincy; Andrea Quinn, Wollaston; Joanne Govoni, Squantum and Phyllis Petkun, Snug Harbor.

Red, Gold Teams Survive In St. Joseph's Loop

The Red team and Gold team are the survivors in the St. Joseph's Hockey League double elimination playoffs scheduled to meet Wednesday night.

A win for the Golds [2-0] would give them the title, while a win for the Reds [2-1] would necessitate another game for the crown next week.

Last week the Reds eliminated the Blues with a 3-2 sudden death overtime win. The Greens had been eliminated the previous week.

Last week's game was fast moving with plenty of body checking. The players were handicapped by poor ice conditions.

James Crowley and Ron Gattorna scored for the Reds in regulation time and Dennis Larkins scored both goals for the Blues to get them into overtime.

The winning goal was scored by Jim Steen on a rebound of a Gattorna shot after 15 minutes of play. Losing goalie Rick Della Barbara was outstanding as he turned aside 27 shots in only his second game in goal.

Brownell Would Require 'Truth' In Political Ads

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] says he thinks "the time has come to bring political advertising up to the standards we require in business ads."

Brownell appeared before the Committee on Election Laws last week in support of his bill to require "truth in political advertising".

"I file this measure not with any particular abuse in mind, but as an attempt to make campaign literature and rhetoric more credible," he said.

"We have made great strides in guaranteeing consumers truthful business advertising, yet little has been done to protect voters from false political advertising."

"After all, isn't it just as important that people not be misled in selecting their public officials as it is that they not be misled in buying a refrigerator?"

Under Brownell's bill, any material misrepresentation of fact in a political ad would be a crime and conviction would disqualify a candidate from holding public office for two years.

THE BEE THAT LOST IT'S STING

Once there was a bee. Like all bees, he was proud of his stinger. However, he was so proud of his stinger, that he showed off! [He was a very young bee, of course]. One day while the bee was showing off, a mosquito said to him, "You look stupid!" "Ha! Ha! Ha!" The bee got very mad. He said, "You want a fight?" The mosquito said, "Ohay!" So they started to fight. The bee poked the mosquito, so the mosquito poked the bee. Pretty soon, Mother Bee came out she had seen the whole fight. She spanked the bee so hard his stinger fell out!!!

IT'S FINE TO BE A KITE

One day I was made out of sticks and paper. Then I was sent to a store to be sold. I was sold for only $200. A little boy came in the store looking for a kite. He said he wanted a "bat" kite. The lady said there's one left over in the corner. The boy bought me and took me home.

The next day I found myself high in the sky. I saw birds, planes, I saw everything. Then one day I saw a storm. I got hit with wind I was blown over the sea. I landed in the water. The next day I was on shore then someone picked me up and threw me in the fire.

Curl Up With A Good Book

Tired of winter and the gasoline shortage? Why not spend a comfortable and economical evening at home with a good book. For pure enjoyment try any of these fictional routes to other places and other times:

HOT BLUE SEA by Richard Jessup [Doubleday, $5.95] is the taut story of Savannah run-runner Jack Messenger and his last chance for a lucrative deal before the Repeal of Prohibition. After cruising his customary sea route for days, he finally meets a French ship carrying brandy. Then the action quickens as the barometer starts to fall and the French ship develops engine trouble. Jessup, the author of THE CINCINNATI KID, knows how to write a compelling story.

THE EMERALD TRAP by Leonard St. Clair [Putnam, $6.95] begins in Paris where Bill Elders, a jewel dealer, buys an emerald necklace in an obscure auction house and finds himself caught-up in a tangle of murder and intrigue.

Another kind of treasure is the subject of Brian Garfield's novel KOLCHAK'S GOLD [McKay, $7.95] which is about the strange fate of the Czar's gold—all 500 tons of it. First it was taken by the White Russian army and hidden for years, then it was stolen by the Nazis during World War II. And naturally, it is coveted by present-day Soviets. The author may or may not be an accurate historian, but he certainly can evoke a realistic atmosphere for this exciting mystery.

BLACK DOUGAL by David Walker [Houghton, $6.95] is a light-hearted story about an impoverished young Scottish Laird who, to save his family estates from ruin, goes to Canada and takes to crime. He meets up with a beautiful young woman who is also an accomplished smuggler and a variety of high jinks follows.

Jellybean Vallentine is the quirky hero of an amusing Western yarn by Robert Carson entitled oddy enough, JELLYBEAN [Little, Brown, $6.95]. Raised by a fundamentalist Kansas preacher and sent East to study law, Jellybean is not exactly your average cowpoke. And the technique he uses to turn Fort Bravo, Texas into a law-abiding, God-fearing town is highly unorthodox. Lots of action along with humor as dry as sagebrush make this an especially entertaining evening's read.

HOLLYWOOD HOTLINE

Didn't imitate Clark, Crenna says

By NANCY ANDERSON

HOLLYWOOD — Though Richard Crenna played the rascally hero in the television version of "Honky Tonk," which just aired over NBC, he says he in no way tried to imitate Clark Gable who had the role in the feature film version.

"In fact, about all that's left of the movie version is the title," Crenna says. "The concept of a con man in the early West is appealing, so that's been retained."

"If you remember the movie, you recall the opening scene in which Gable's about to be run out of town for being a rogue, and that's been kept. But, from that point on, the whole thing changes."

And Crenna's mighty glad, because he says the old, original "Honky Tonk" hasn't held up as well as most of Gable's films.

"I saw the picture recently," he says. "And I was in shock for two days. It was so bad. It hasn't held up at all."

"Honky Tonk," purported to be the most expensive Western ever made for television, was filmed on five locations with a cast of 200, including "name" actors handling roles which, in most productions, would have been assigned to extras or bit players.

Though Crenna says he's avoided doing a television series since "Slattery's People" went under almost 10 years ago, he'd be delighted to continue his Candy Johnson role, the part he plays in "Honky Tonk," on a weekly basis.

"Candy has more than one color to his personality," Crenna explains. "He has all the attributes that are fun for an actor to play."

Crenna would be pleased with a "Honky Tonk" series for another reason, too. He wants to stay in Los Angeles.

He's so keen about traveling, he claims that, in the past, if he were offered a picture in an interesting place, he'd take it, no questions asked.

And, as a result, he and his family have visited such fascinating and out-of-the-way spots as The Lost City of the Incas and an aborigines village on Taiwan.

But now, Dick thinks, it's time to settle down.

"The children aren't as interested in traveling now as they were," he says. "My son's on a football team, so he doesn't want to leave home. If I said we were going somewhere, he'd go and wouldn't complain, but, in fairness to him, I shouldn't take him away."

"Yes, I'd like to do a series and stay at home now. I've been out of the country almost six months of each year since 1964."

Two streakers rushed across stage in New Orleans as Dorothy Lamour gave her curtain speech following her performance in "Fallen Angels." Dorothy says the first was such a well-endowed young lady she doubts that anybody noticed the second, a rather unexceptional young man.

Dottie apologized to her audience, saying that, while she adores young people and is in sympathy with many of their objectives, there's a time and place for everything.

Leigh Taylor-Young went to court in Santa Monica and wound up the dissolution of her marriage to Ryan O'Neal, so now she's free as a bird. She wore a purple muu-muu and looked very pretty. Leigh got custody of Patrick, her son by Ryan, but I'm not sure what else she got, since Ryan's lawyer asked that the file on the case be sealed. The judge has the matter under advisement.

Will or won't Michael Douglas and Brenda Vaccaro get married pretty soon?

Michael's answer to the question is, "Why try to improve upon success? Brenda and I have been happily together four years which is longer than many marriages last."

Cher isn't as interested in a new television series as she is in making movies. She's considering film offers now.

350th Homecoming Week

Circle April 11- 12- 13, 1975

On Your Social Calendar

The week-end of April 11-12-13, 1975 has been selected as "Homecoming Week-End", by the Social Events sub-committee of the Mayor's Commission planning the celebration of the 350th anniversary of the founding of Mount Wollaston next year.

Chairman, Leo F. Meady, announces a formal ball, probably combined with a dinner, will begin the festivities April 11 at the Chateau de Ville in Randolph. The committee is inviting former Quincy residents who have become nationally known in the entertainment field to be special guests at this affair. To date Ruth Gordon has definitely accepted an invitation, while Lee Remick has tentatively accepted pending her film plans for next year. Others invited include Bill Dana and Gene Wood.

It is expected that a public ceremony will be held on the following day at which time these celebrities, along with other famous sons and daughters of Quincy who have made good in other professions will be honored by the Mayor and City Council.

Meady has asked the friends and relatives of Quincy natives who perhaps should be recognized on such an occasion to submit their names to him for submission to the Committee.

During that week-end several organizations will be planning ceremonies of their own to honor former residents who plan to return to the city for the festivities. These programs will be coordinated by the committee to avoid conflicts in timing and location.

New members added to the committee at the recent meeting are J. Vincent Smyth, 14 Lansdown St., Mrs. Irving LeBeau, 6 Presidents Lane, William A. O'Connell, 109 Putnam St., and Mrs. Leslie Parrott, 35 West Elm Ave.

SAVE ENERGY, MONEY

COOKING: Don't use a high flame when a low one will do. Don't pre-heat the oven too long. Don't use the oven to warm the room. Cover saucepans while cooking.

WASHERS, DISHWASHERS: Save hot water (and the fuel that heats it) by running full loads only. (Same for clothes dryers.)

HOUSE HEATING: In cool weather turn the thermostat down when you go to bed. Draw the drapes at night; that cuts loss of heat through the glass. Close fireplace flues, air vents, etc., when not in use. Keep thermostat down to approximately 68° when you're away all day.

Make sure all appliances are operating efficiently. Don't overwork your furnace by making it struggle to blow air through an old, clogged filter.

Mom and Dad do-over a child's room on a budget

An increasing number of families are coping with cramped quarters by redecorating their present homes around space-saving tricks.

Cost-saving ideas are also a major remodeling consideration with the inflationary price and scarcity of skilled labor. So when a young, budget-minded couple opted to enliven their son's tiny bedroom, they decided to tackle the project on a do-it-yourself basis.

Easy to install, Sure-Stik adhesive-backed tiles covered the old wooden floor in less than half a day. The one-step brightening effect was professionally completed by nailing doorway saddles and "K" round molding around room edge.

Colorful pumpkin-striped sheets stapled to walls emphasize the dramatic height of the oddly-shaped room while injecting a splash of bright color.

While Mom sews up lamp shade covers with leftover sheets, the handyman of the house has built fun bunkbeds. Clothes and toys store underneath in built-in drawers. Topped by an upper bunk reached by a ladder with footholes repeating floor tile motif, bunks take full advantage of space provided by the high ceiling.

Painted bright yellow, the furniture-in-the-raw work desk and snappy twin bunks complement the rugged, boyish decor scheme. (Many a girl would like it, too.) All materials are washable, wipe-cleanable, durable and economical — a child-proof bedroom on a budget.

HOME SECURITY CHECK LIST

- Cancel all home deliveries.
- Arrange to have yard cared for.
- Notify trusted neighbors.
- Lock up all ladders and tools.
- Set light-timing devices.
- Double check locks on all doors and windows.
- Leave key with neighbor.
- Notify your local police division.
- Unless you normally do so, do not close draperies and shutters.
- If going for a short time, leave a radio playing.

Color Tells Secrets About You

Color tells "secrets" about your attitudes toward home-making — your personality.

Choice of color can tell a lot about your style of cooking, serving, and general housekeeping habits.

Before you discard any old drab items around the house, try bringing them back to life with color.

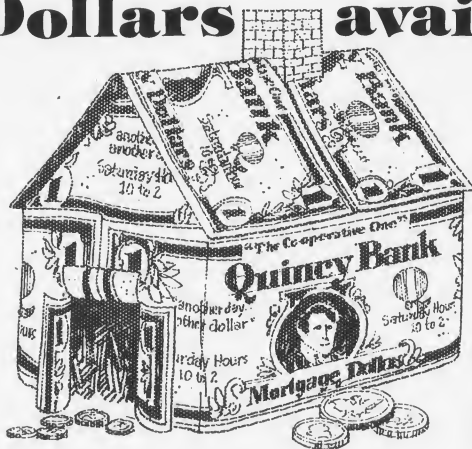

Prefinished plywood paneling is ideal for wall covering in room additions.

Building Codes

Building codes in most communities regulate room additions as well as new construction. Make certain you and your home improvement contractor are aware of local building codes.

New Roof Gives Rise To Admiring Glances

If your neighbors react to your roof with disapproving frowns instead of admiring glances, it's time to reroof.

A worn roof downgrades the appearance of your entire house exterior. And, it doesn't do much for the homes next door. On the other hand, remodeling your roof can have an uplifting effect on the whole block.

If you plan to reroof, the Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association suggests you take advantage of the visual and practical benefits available in modern roof shingles. Among them: a dramatic heavy-textured "rustic" look and an emphasis on natural "earthtone" colors.

In the new deep-textured asphalt shingles, visual heftiness is achieved by embossing, staggered buttlines or double or triple lamination. The new earth colors — reflecting today's "back-to-nature" movement — tend to deep browns, forest greens and slate grays. On the practical side, premium-quality shingles are classified by Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc., for fire and wind resistance, and are designed to provide up to 25 years' service with little or no maintenance.

For those who live in warm, humid climates like the eastern South where white shingles are popular for their heat-reflecting quality, there is a new asphalt shingle that retards the growth of fungi and algae. The results of such growth are discoloration and staining, which turns the roof into an unsightly shade of gray or even black. Chemically-treated mineral granules embedded in the new asphalt shingles retard the fungi and algae growth and keep the shingles white longer.

With installation labor costs about the same for standard or premium-quality shingles, it could be just as economical over the long term to reroof with longer-life top quality shingles.

Before rushing out to have the roof made over into the envy of the neighborhood, remember that reroofing is a job requiring expert craftsmanship. To ensure the man you hire for the job is reputable, check him out by asking around. Is he well recommended? How long has he been in business? Does he have a reputation for getting the work done on time and for delivering on his promises? Is he willing to furnish references? If in doubt, contact the local roofers' association or the Better Business Bureau.

Remodeling with New Windows Worthwhile

Just because mortgage money is as tight as Jack Benny's wallet, it doesn't mean you have to continue living in an old-fashioned or crowded home. You can still get the home you want by remodeling at your present address.

And there are advantages to choosing remodeling over the purchase of a new home — some of them unforeseen. Remodeling can result in higher resale value, lower maintenance costs, a more modern appearance and added comfort in the home you have... all this without uprooting the family.

One very popular and worthwhile home improvement these days involves the simple step of replacing old windows with new ones. Top-quality windows enhance a home's appearance and add to the home's resale value. Tight-fitting windows with insulating glass can also mean more comfort and lower heating costs, an important consideration in these times of energy shortages.

Windows for home improvement are available in a wide range of styles and sizes. Andersen Corporation of Bayport, Minn., a leading window manufacturer, reports low-maintenance Perma-Shield casement, gliding and double-hung windows are big favorites of remodelers.

Modern, good quality windows can put an end to those days when homeowners must pry open sticking windows to clean glass or install storm sash. The use of double-pane insulating glass does away with the need for separate storm windows and the bothersome task of storing, maintaining and hanging them. It also means there are fewer glass surfaces to wash. If you hire a window washer, windows with insulating glass can result in considerable savings in labor costs.

The current upsurge in home remodeling also has led to a greater increase in low-maintenance finishes, states the manufacturer. An example of this is the low-maintenance rigid vinyl sheath found on Perma-Shield windows. The rigid vinyl requires no painting.

Another remodeling project popular with homeowners is the installation of gliding doors with double-pane insulating safety glass. These doors, which are also available with low-maintenance rigid vinyl, are great for opening up backyards to informal outdoor living.

IF YOU NEED A FRESH VIEWPOINT AND EXTRA SPACE

INEXPENSIVE, HANDSOME, AND PRACTICAL. A bright colored bandana print used to cover a mattress and boxspring gives a small guest-room decorative character for minimum effort and investment. With the gay colors of the bed, no coverings are necessary.

Painting the ceiling is not one of the world's delights. Whether you're using a roller or brush, chances are you'll get a bit splattered.

PAINT GETS IN YOUR EYES?

So, when using a brush, stick the brush handle through a large paper cup to catch the drip, and protect your coiffure with a rain hat or shower cap. If eyes get irritated and fatigued, pick them up in 60 seconds with an application of decongestant eye drops.

NEED MORE STORAGE SPACE?

Young homemakers quickly learn that happiness is enough storage space. Whether you're starting married life in an apartment or in a small home, there is rarely enough space for all your belongings.

Fortunately, one of the easiest things to build is shelves. Drawers are more complicated. You may want to incorporate small chests and cupboards from the nearest unfinished furniture store into your decorating plans. Lumber plus imagination is all you need for any decorating scheme. Line shelves with prepastel wallpaper to match the room, or paint in brilliant assorted enamels for a "pop" touch.

Here are a few ideas about where to find additional storage space. If you're really overcrowded and every inch of drawer space counts, look over your furniture. See any end-tables perched on four legs, with empty air underneath? Replace them with small chests, and you gain drawer space good for storing games, cards, photos, cigarettes.

Is your coffee table a bench, by chance? Replace it with a blanket chest. For the same amount of floor space, you acquire several square feet of storage for bulky items. If there's a bench at the foot of your bed, put another chest there or a wicker hamper. The latter makes a great portable linen closet, allowing air to circulate inside and keep linens fresh and dry.

If you have a fireplace but no place to store the logs, build a combination bench and wood box for the entryway. A high-backed bench with seat hinged to lift gives you plenty of room for logs and kindling. Build one for the front entry, and another for the back. The second one makes super storage for galoshes and raingear, ski boots, skates and sports equipment not in use.

The beauty of all these storage ideas is that they're easy on the budget, an important consideration for all homemakers today. For a busy day of working around the house, start off with an instant breakfast mixed with fresh whole milk. Carnation Instant Breakfast is quick and nutritious, fits every budget — and takes up very little space in the kitchen cupboard!

Cure told for peeling housepaint

By GENE GARY
Copley News Service

Q. Our house is six years old. We are not the original owners. In 1971, we had the house painted because it was peeling so badly. Now we are having the same problem. We had the painters give it two coats of paint at the same time. They claim they used an oil-base paint. Someone suggested that next time we have the house painted, use just one coat of paint and then wait a year and give it another coat. Is this the solution? Do you have any other suggestions? Aluminum siding is too expensive for us at this time. — Mrs. Ted K.

A. Checking and wrinkling, also curling of the paint film, are often various stages of the same thing. Usually the initial cause is moisture penetrating the walls from the inside, but later, after the breaks have opened, moisture from the outside collects under the film and causes the curling or peeling you see at this stage. On the other hand, it may be the result of a too heavy application of paint, not properly reduced to brushing consistency, or application of a top coat over a first coat not completely dry. There can be other less common causes.

The remedy is not simple. Usually it is necessary to scrape off the loose paint, apply a prepared undercoater and a top coat properly thinned to brushing consistency. It is a case of refinishing, with proper preparation.

Cutting costs in playroom

By BARBARA HARTUNG
Copley News Service

Q. We are just completing a large playroom for our children who are preteens and teenagers. We thought we had budgeted for construction and furniture and decoration. But with the increases in costs we find we have almost no money for decorating and furnishing. Could you please suggest some inexpensive ways to finish the room? The children will use it as a gymnasium (they like tumbling), the older youngsters will probably dance there and everyone will entertain their friends. I don't think we need the traditional kinds of furniture but I don't want it to look like a barn. — M.W.

A. I recently saw an imaginative sofa for very mod living. It was merely a giant, long pillow filled with plastic pellets like a bean bag. You might sew up a six- or eight-foot-long section of fabric to make about a 24-inch wide pillow and fill with the pellets. If you choose an inexpensive but heavy fabric you wouldn't be involved in a great expense. But choose a wild print with lots of great bright colors. Take one bright color out of the fabric print and do three walls in that color paint.

On the other wall, repeat many of the fabric's colors in a super graphic on the wall that you and your children could design. If nothing else, draw on your wall first with a pencil great undulating lines. Then go over and fill in with the bright paints. Do just one color at a time and let it dry, of course. If you don't like your first attempt, repaint in the background color and start over again. You might take two other colors out of the fabric and use them for the floor — one color in the center for an area to dance on and the outer area in another color for the tumblers. Do the inner area in vinyl and the outer area in carpet.

6 times you need the money more than you need a friend.

1. A warm smile never heated a house.

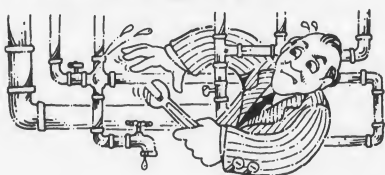

When you need a new heating system, you're less interested in the smile on your friendly banker's face than the money in his fist.

2. A slap on the back is no help when there's a hole in the roof.

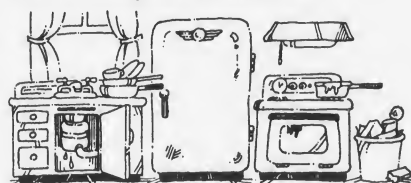

A new roof is a big item. We suspect you'd be more interested in cold cash than in pleasant conversation. Right?

3. When was the last time your friendly banker put in new plumbing for you?

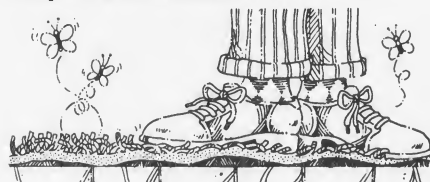

When your pipes are leaking and your family's complaining and your pockets are empty, that friendly banker's outstretched hand had better have something green in it, or you're going to wonder just how friendly he is after all.

4. Your refrigerator, stove, disposal unit and kitchen floor have conspired to strike.

You need a new kitchen. Not a new friend. Not a firm handshake. But a new kitchen, and that costs money. And that's why you need a home improvement loan from us.

5. Wall-to-wall friends don't solve your problem when your carpet is threadbare.

All the friendly bankers in the world aren't much help unless they're laying down money for you.

6. Do you want a big hello or a big house?

When your house is too small and you're adding a room, you need the chit-chat less than you need the check.

Consider Trimming School Requests, Too

Council Eyes 'Drastic' Budget Cuts To Keep Tax Rate Hike Down To $10

By TOM HENSHAW

Vol. 6 No. 31

Thursday, April 18, 1974

10¢

A revolt is brewing among newer members of the City Council against a city budget that could mean a tax rate as high as $192 — a $37.70 increase over last year.

City Hall sources said a move is underway for a 10 per cent across the board slash in all departments - including the school - under Mayor Walter J. Hannon's proposed $62.5 million budget.

"The City Council feels that unless drastic and dramatic cuts of $4 or $5 million are made the tax rate could soar to $192," the source said.

The City Council's Finance Committee, which is made up of all nine councillors, has already trimmed about $1 million out of the budget with the School Department's $25 million request due to come up Wednesday night.

The school request is up $3 million over last year, which is equal to a $12 hike in the tax rate calculated on the basis of $1 for every $250,000 in the budget.

By law, the Finance Committee has to submit the budget to the City Council by Friday and City Hall sources are predicting that the committee may be meeting right up to the deadline.

The rebel councillors are reported to be Dennis E. Harrington, Warren A. Powers, John J. Lydon Jr., and Leo J. Kelly.

They are said to be in favor of holding the tax increase down to $10 at all costs.

"The new councillors are not willing to pay last year's bills," said a City Hall source.

The tax rate was actually cut by $1.10 last year for only the third time in a quarter of a century.

If the School department budget is cut it would be the first time in the city's history that a City Council has taken such a drastic action.

The possibilities are boiled down to this:

- If the budget were permitted to stand as Mayor Hannon proposed, the tax rate could be as high as $192.

- If it were to stand as it is now after Finance Committee cuts, it would be about $180.

- If city employees get a $10 a week raise — equal to $5 on the tax rate — and the Council rebels succeed in holding the $10 line, the tax rate would be about $170.

Officials To Meet

Fear Firebug On Loose In Germantown Housing Facility

City officials will meet April 24 at 9:30 a.m. in the Oceanview housing project office amid mounting fears that a firebug is at large in the Germantown section.

The area has been struck by at least a half dozen fires of suspicious origin in the past four months, including three on the same night last week that drove 37 people from their apartment homes.

Capt. Francis Daly of the Fire Prevention Bureau said a burned sock was found under the wooden door in one cellar and a burned out rubbish barrel was discovered against a wood partition in another. Rubbish has been involved in the rash of fires.

"We feel a firebug is on the loose," Capt. Daly conceded.

Wednesday's meeting was set up by Ward 1 City Councillor Leo J. Kelly to discuss his proposals to alleviate the situation.

Tax Abatement Slips Available At City Hall

The Quincy assessor's office is issuing mimeographed slips in place of exemption and abatement certificates to help ease the crush brought on by the half-year real estate tax bills.

The slips indicate that the taxpayer has filed for and will receive an exemption or abatement on his January through June tax bill.

When presented to banks or the tax collector, the slips will enable the taxpayer to deduct the exemption or abatement and pay the balance.

The tax bills went out in late March and the payment is due May 1.

The half year payment was made necessary when the city, under state law, converted from the calendar year to the fiscal year budget and tax period.

The application for exemption or abatement of the half year tax will carry over into the new tax period [July, 1974 through June 1975] so that taxpayers will have to file only once for the two periods.

Superman's Girlfriend Doesn't Like Today's TV Violence

Lois Lane, Superman's girlfriend, is in Quincy this week to help keep his memory alive.

Actress Noel Neill, said the Superman TV series of the 1950's was "a lot of fun" compared to the violence in today's television.

She is making a cross-country tour of colleges where she shows one of the half-hour episodes from the 104 Superman films made between 1952 and 1959. Superman is now in re-runs weeknights at 5 p.m. on Channel 27.

Said Miss Neill of the response she has received from her college tour:

"The kids laugh and applaud—they love seeing one of the shows they grew up with. They think it's funny when Superman flies through a wall or something. The show is a half hour of fun—nothing serious or depressing.

"I don't like the violence on TV today. We were very careful of violence [while filming Superman]. We never showed blood or people actually being hurt. All the violence was off-camera."

Miss Neill is staying with the family of Mrs. Bernice Bennett, 5 Miles Drive, West Quincy this week while she visits area colleges and presents her "Superman Program".

Mrs. Bennett is a teacher in the English Department at Quincy High School and invited Miss Neill to present her nostalgia program to her "Play Production and Speech" class last week. She met Miss Neill while visiting her mother in California recently.

Miss Neill showed an episode from the series, answered a barrage of questions from the students, and spent the rest of the afternoon signing autographs.

IN THE 1950's, Noel Neill and the late George Reeves were a hit duo in the Superman TV series which is still seen today in re-runs.

Mass. Electric Representative To Speak At CAFA Meeting

Jeff Fleming, a public information officer for New England Electric System, of which Mass. Electric Company is a subsidiary, will speak Friday night at a meeting of the Quincy Consumers Against Fuel Adjustment.

The meeting will be at 7 p.m. at the South-West Community Center, 372 Granite St. It will be held in the community room with entry from Water St. The meeting will be open to the public. Fleming will be available to answer questions.

Atty. Nathan Paven was guest speaker at the last meeting. He has filed a suit with Congressman Michael Harrington to force Mass. Electric to refund $3.6 million in overcharges to about 750,000 customers. The overcharges, according to the suit, were made over the last two years through the controversial fuel adjustment clause, which allows an electric utility to charge the consumer monthly for the higher cost of fuel oil without a rate hearing. They claim the utility, which bills its customers bimonthly, has been using the higher price of oil in the second month to compute the fuel adjustment for the first month.

Robert Cerasoli, a candidate for State Representative also attended the meeting and announced his endorsement of the efforts of the Quincy Consumers Against Fuel Adjustment.

Adams Birthplaces Open Friday

The Adams Birthplaces in South Quincy will open for their 78th season Friday.

They will be open to visitors daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., until Sept. 30, except for Mondays that are not holidays.

Mrs. John B. Ames will again be hostess at the John Quincy Adams Birthplace. Miss Edith A. Cameron will be hostess at the John Adams Birthplace, replacing Mrs. Florence Gamins who will serve as one of the assisting hostesses.

The little red farmhouses are presented as the simple homes in which the future Presidents were born and grew up. They are the earliest presidential birthplaces in the country, and last year had 8,779 registered visitors from 49 states, 24 foreign countries, and seven provinces of Canada.

The historic houses have been owned since 1940 by the City of Quincy which maintains the buildings and the surrounding property. In that year they were deeded to the City by the Adams family that had owned them for about 200 years.

The Quincy Historical Society owns the contents of the houses and operates them for visitors. The Society has operated the John Quincy Adams Birthplace since 1897, and the John Adams Birthplace since 1950. Miss Maude F. Wheeler is Chairman of the Society's House Committee that is in direct charge of the operations.

20-Mile 'Walk For Life' Sunday

The South Shore Walk for Life Committee in conjunction with the Mass. Youth for Life Committee will sponsor a 20 mile "Walk for Life" Sunday, April 21, in protest of the 1973 Supreme Court abortion ruling.

Walkers acquire sponsors who pledge a certain amount of money for every mile the walker completes. All funds raised go to Mass. Youth for Life, Mass. Citizens for Life and Birthright for educational and counseling costs.

Walkers will begin at the Hanover Mall at 9:30 a.m. and continue up route 53 through Hanover, Norwell, Hingham, Weymouth and Braintree and return by the same route.

There will be rest stops along the way and cold drinks provided for walkers. Nurses and other adults will supervise the walkers and police in each town have been notified for safety reasons.

For information on sponsoring a walker or being a walker call Carol Cohoon at 843-7716 or Marie Sheehy at 659-7229.

NOW YOU SEE IT -- Cathedral ceiling at Adams Academy is seen for the first time in over 40 years as false ceiling is removed by the Quincy Historical Society which is converting the old academy into a museum. The false ceiling was installed to contain fuel heat when building was used for offices. Inspecting the work are member Paul Harold and President H. Hobart Holly.

She has had similar success in her visits to college campuses around the country.

After a recent visit to Monmouth College, which was attended by over 800 students, the dean commented "This is the biggest audience for any lecture, play, rock group or politician we've had here."

Lois Lane will bring her Superman program to students at Holy Cross and Emerson College and Suffolk University this week.

Warner Brothers, who owns the Superman series, is planning a Superman book and further promotion of the Lois Lane tour.

The successful Superman series ended production abruptly in 1959 when star George Reeves died. He was ruled a suicide. In 1956 John Hamilton, who played Perry White, Editor of "The Daily Planet", the newspaper that Lois Lane, Clark Kent and Jimmy Olsen worked for, died from a heart attack. The last 13 episodes were made without Hamilton.

Jack Larson, who played cub reporter Jimmy Olsen, received a Ford Grant and Rockefeller Grant while he authored short stories and short plays that were produced in the Music Center in California.

"There is no reason to make new Superman episodes. We can show the same ones because young kids watch them for three or four years and then grow out of it. Then the next bunch of kids begins watching and they grow out of it. So the audience turns over rather than the series."

Hearing Monday On Squantum Site For New High School

The City Council will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the North Quincy High School auditorium to hear pros and cons on a proposal to build a new high school on a section of the old Squantum Naval Air Station.

The 45-acre tract on the farthest point of the old air station land is owned by Boston Edison and valued at $1 million.

It is the only site currently before the council, which turned down proposals that would have built the new school on WMEX land on West Squantum St., or another site on Hunt St. Both were deemed too expensive.

The Squantum site was strongly favored by more than 900 parents and students who packed the high school auditorium March 26 for a joint City Council and School Committee hearing.

Another site considered at that hearing, one occupied by the Carlton House Motor Inn, 13 other business establishments and 16 homes, was frowned upon at the hearing.

A new high school built on the Squantum site would cost the city $8,200,000, including renovations to the old building as a junior high school, after a 65 per cent reimbursement by the state.

There are currently 1,932 students in North Quincy High School, which was built at the corner of Hancock and East Squantum Sts. in 1927 with a capacity of 1,650.

When the new high school is built, the old building would replace Central Junior High School, Atlantic Junior High School would be changed to an elementary and middle school and Massachusetts Field School would be closed.

Fire Dept. Testing Hydrants

The Quincy Fire Department is conducting its annual fire hydrant testing program under the direction of Capt. Roy K. MacDonald.

The hours of testing are 9:30 a.m. to noon and 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m.

During the testing of the hydrants residents may experience some discoloration in their water. This water is not harmful to drink or use but should be checked before using in washing machines. Persons experiencing discoloration of water are requested to flush their systems by opening their cold water faucet for a few minutes then wait approximately one hour. If water does not clear, repeat flushing procedure.

The Fire Department estimates the hydrant testing program will take approximately four weeks to complete.

Fear Firebug Loose In Germantown

"The residents of the projects are very much afraid," Kelly said. "I've been getting a lot of calls from concerned people."

Kelly said the meeting will include himself and representatives of the Quincy Housing Authority, the Quincy Police Department and the Harborview Residents Association.

Kelly's proposals include:

- Sealing of cellar doors to the buildings from the outside so that entry can be made only through the buildings.
- Inspection of the cellars by the Fire Department to make sure no combustible materials are stored there.
- Installation of a heavy mesh screening over cellar windows.
- Recommendations from Fire Chief Edward Barry on the possibility of installing smoke detector devices in the cellars.

All of the fires started in the cellars of the buildings.

Ward 6 Democrats To Elect Delegates May 4

The Ward 6 Democratic Committee will meet May 4 at 10 a.m. at the Montclair Men's Club to elect nine delegates to the 1974 Conference on Democratic Organization and Policy.

Any registered Democrat in Ward 6 who wishes to be a candidate for delegate should submit his or her written assent to Chairman Joseph N. Gildea

Kelly said he has been told that young people are using the cellars of the project buildings as clubhouses.

"I can see the cellars as places for little children to play," he said. "But it's no place for a clubhouse."

Cleanup of cellars in the projects has been complicated by a state regulation that says a resident must be given 48-hours notice in writing before a housing authority inspector can enter to inspect the premises.

Capt. Daly said Fire Department inspections are usually done at the invitation of the resident.

"If we have a good solid reason to think that hazardous material is being stored on the premises we can get a warrant," he said. "But that is seldom used."

He said rubbish in the cellars has been a factor in the fires.

Meanwhile, the investigation into the fires is continuing with no leads, Capt. Daly said.

Sr., personally before the meeting.

All registered Democrats in Ward 6 are eligible to vote for delegates.

The 1974 Conference on Democratic Organization and Policy will be held June 1 at an as yet undesignated location within the 11th Congressional District.

The Germantown Fires

Three fires in the Germantown public housing facility last week left five families temporarily homeless.

But for quick action by firefighters and police it could have been heartbreaking tragedy with the lives of children snuffed out.

The fires started in the cellar areas and evidence found points to the fact that they were set. Officials fear they have a fire bug on the loose.

Quincy Housing Authority Director Clement O'Brien says there have been reports of unauthorized persons using the basements to sleep in or for "partying". There have also been reports of youngsters turning the basement areas into clubhouses.

Weeks before the recent fires, members of the Harborview Residents Committee were planning a cellar cleanup campaign.

In each of the recent fires—and several before them—rubbish and matches have been a factor.

Rubbish and other hazardous materials in cellars could help fuel a holocaust in multi-family facilities if there is a fire bug at large. Or, even if someone accidentally drops a match or cigaret.

Sealing the cellar doors to prevent entrance from the outside, installing heavy mesh over cellar windows and inspections by the Fire Department as suggested by Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly would probably help considerably.

But checking cellars in public housing apparently isn't so easy to do despite the fact that the safety of many families could be at stake.

The State Department of Community Affairs has a guideline that says residents must be given a 48-hour notice before a housing authority representative can enter for an inspection.

A fire bug could torch the whole city in 48 hours.

O'Brien, meanwhile, says his department, because of that guideline, is making its inspections from the outside looking in—peering through windows.

That seems pretty darn ridiculous when the lives or safety of so many could be involved.

Frankly, we sometimes wonder about the State Department of Community Affairs. We get the feeling every once in a while that the people running the place are so busy drawing up guidelines, they lose touch with everyday reality.

We hope the residents of Germantown will "do it themselves". Clean up whatever rubbish there might be and invite the Fire Department in to look around for hazards they might not be aware of.

We also appeal to them to immediately notify police of anyone acting suspiciously in the area.

The last thing anyone wants is a fatal fire there. But it can happen. Residents can help prevent it.

- U.S.-Chinese Relations Still Good
- GOP Haunted By Douglas Memories
- Power Fever In Washington

(Copyright, 1974, by United Feature Syndicate.)

WASHINGTON — Newspapers have reported that the Chinese-American detente is in trouble. As evidence, they have cited the new cultural revolution sweeping through Communist China. This has sparked a campaign against all things foreign. Even Henry Kissinger's friend, Premier Chou En-lai, has spoken out against alleged U.S. "aggression." China also turned back U.S. wheat shipments contaminated with fungus.

Everything I have seen, however, indicates the reports of a deteriorating detente simply are not true. The secret cable traffic and intelligence reports indicate that Chinese-American relations not only remain friendly, but probably will improve.

The confidential cables from American diplomats in Peking, for example, reveal that daily contacts between Chinese and American officials are lengthy, candid and cordial. U.S. businessmen are pleased over their reception in China.

Intelligence reports, furthermore, indicate that the new cultural revolution is completely controlled by the Communist party; this was not true in the last political upheaval. Party officials have issued strict orders, for example, that propaganda posters are to be put up only after working hours.

The "revolution," in short, is not going to be conducted at the expense of production. Chou En-lai's critical comments can be attributed to the fact that he is a wily leader with a survival instinct which rivals Richard Nixon's. And as far as the wheat riot incident is concerned, the simple fact is that the Chinese refuse to pay good money for tainted grain.

The China-watching press tends to put too much emphasis on trivial incidents. They sometimes see a calamity in a simple sneeze. This time, it appears, they are reading the signs wrong.

Impeachment Debate: Republicans defending President Nixon from impeachment charges are haunted by their own partisan effort four years ago to impeach Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

At that time, Gerald Ford was in the forefront of the impeachment drive. An impeachable offense, Ford declared, was anything a majority of the House said it was. Now Ford, and the other Republicans who follow the White House line, are trying frantically to narrow that definition.

A key element of today's impeachment debate centers on the role of President Nixon's Watergate lawyer James St. Clair. The Republicans have ordered a special brief defending the right of St. Clair to participate. Yet four years ago Ford said "no such right existed."

In fact, Ford wrote to then Judiciary chairman Emanuel Celler that the participation of Justice Douglas' attorney would result "in a sweeping whitewash of every allegation as it appears."

The committee's senior Republican, Rep. Ed Hutchinson of Michigan, served on the special investigation of Douglas. At that time he insisted it should "include an investigation into improper conduct."

Now, Hutchinson is singing a different tune. He now tells me the President's offenses must be impeachable, not merely improper. But the past statements hang heavily over the Republican's head.

Power Fever: Energy czar William Simon and budget chief Roy Ash, like two rams locked in mortal combat, have been butting heads over who will control the nation's economic policies.

Their power struggle illustrates what's going on in government these days. President Nixon is so mired down in Watergate that decision making has been delegated, more and more, to others. This has caused a spring outbreak of power fever in Washington.

The Simon-Ash fight offers an excellent case study. As Watergate widened, Secretary of Treasury George Shultz assumed virtual control of the nation's economic policymaking. He became a sort of domestic Henry Kissinger. His resignation, therefore, created a power vacuum which Simon and Ash are scrambling to fill.

Insiders say Ash wanted the Treasury job, but Simon got it. Ash then sought to whittle down Simon's new responsibilities. On a flight back from Key Biscayne, Ash urged the President not to grant Simon the super-cabinet status that Shultz enjoyed. Ash argued that some of Shultz' power should be passed to his own budget office. Nixon reportedly agreed.

However, it was a hollow victory. My White House sources say Simon and Ash have been battling over status and power that neither of them will win. It will be distributed evenly among all economic aides.

Gas Rip-Off: The gas shortage should be eased, if not ended, this summer unless the Arabs renew their embargo. Federal authorities expect a seven per cent oil shortage, they tell me, but this can be overcome by conservation.

In other words, there should be plenty of gas for your summer vacations. But you should still hold down your speed and avoid side trips.

Senators, meanwhile, are investigating whether the oil companies contrived the gas shortage to prop up prices. During the worst of the shortage, I made spot checks at refineries and storage facilities. I spoke to the workers, not the oil company spokesmen. Almost everywhere I checked, I found the storage tanks brim full of gas. This led me to suspect there would be enough gas at the pumps as soon as the price was right.

Gasoline prices, of course, have now gone up, and the oil companies have defended the price rise by claiming their profits are no higher than those of other U.S. industries.

On paper, this is true enough. But most of the major oil companies report the bulk of their profits overseas, not in the United States. That way, they don't have to pay heavy U.S. taxes on them. In addition, these overseas profits are added to the cost of oil shipped to this country. The excess overseas profits, in other words, are treated as extra expense and are added to the price that the motorist must pay.

Simplified, this means the oil companies actually collect profits on their profits.

It cost only 12 cents to produce a barrel of Saudi Arabian oil. That's 42 gallons, which comes out to a quarter-cent a gallon. It doesn't take a mathematician to figure out that someone is getting a rip-off.

Tobin, LaRaia On Political Collision Course?

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Politician watchers are just about convinced that Arthur Tobin and Joseph LaRaia are on a head-on collision course.

But they really don't think the pair will politically collide this year though there have been indications that LaRaia might challenge Tobin for his senatorial seat.

They feel it will come in a mayor's race because the issues LaRaia has been involved in are primarily at the city level.

Observers think the big collision may come next year and it could leave incumbent Walter Hannon as the man in the middle.

If LaRaia decides to run for mayor next year, Tobin would get into it, according to sources close to him. They still insist that if LaRaia had decided to run last year, Tobin would have tossed his hat in, too.

Tobin and LaRaia are now so far apart in political philosophy and on local issues that they are natural opponents if not enemies.

This, of course, means that Mayor Hannon if he decides to seek a third term, will find both LaRaia and Tobin in there wrestling him for votes.

The three in the same race would be something to see. It would be a real hot one.

SPEAKING OF NEXT year's municipal election, don't be surprised to see a bonnet in the Ward 5 City Council ring.

Friends report Mrs. Joyce Baker, president of the Quincy GOP Women's Club and vice-chairman of the Ward 5 Republican City Committee, is seriously considering running.

Although she would be making her debut in a municipal election, she has been quite active politically as well as socially and civically. She is a member of the Downtown Steering Committee and the Quincy Women's Club.

ASSISTANT SUFFOLK COUNTY Asst. Atty. Paul Buckley, one of the intended victims of that bizarre alleged murder plot, will be one of Frank Bellotti's coordinators in his bid for Attorney General.

THAT CASE, incidentally, has a strong Quincy angle. Atty. Carl Smith, one of the defendants who has pleaded innocent to a plot to kill two judges, two assistant district attorneys and two police officers, is a Quincy resident. And he has retained the services of Quincy Atty. Nathaniel Sherman.

QUINCY'S George McDonald has opened his campaign headquarters at 1653 Hancock St., Quincy Center. And this should put to rest the rumors that McDonald would bow out of the race for Norfolk County Sheriff. The county commissioner and former Quincy city councillor had been rumored for an appointive post which probably in turn touched off the reports he would drop out of contention for sheriff.

THEY SAY YOU'RE as old as you feel. And if that's so, then Mrs. William Mitchell of Clement Terrace, Montclair, is still a young gal. She turned a spry 83 the other day but still bowls every week at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome where she maintains an 80 average in league competition. Her husband recently retired from the Quincy Park-Recreation Board after serving more than 30 years.

MEMBERS OF THE Quincy League of Women Voters honor Char-Lou Benedict, former president, at a farewell luncheon today at the Country Fare, Hingham. She and her husband, Michael will soon be moving to San Diego, Calif.

SUNDAY is "Quincy Day At Fenway Park". Nearly 300 from the area will be on hand to root for the Sox over Cleveland. The day is being sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association. Guests will include Mayor Hannon, Council President Arthur Tobin and winners of 150 reserved grandstand seats awarded by the QCBPA in a spring promotion.

THE GOOD OLD days were just that if you were feeding a family. While doing research for our recent 50th anniversary section on the Quincy Sons of Italy we came across these prices at Foy's Market in 1924: Roast pork, 20 cents a pound. Chicken 32 cents, face rump 30 cents, finnan haddie, 10 cents.

SMILE DEPT: Jack Silverstein, the North Quincy druggist, jogger, author, etc., says he hears Greenwich Village plans to have an entry in the Olympics. A skipping team.

Atty. L. Paul Marini of 25 Spear St., Quincy Center has been re-elected chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library. He is serving his 26th year as a library trustee.

Goudey, secretary and Olin A. Taylor, treasurer.

The other trustees for 1974-75 are Mrs. Edna Gilmore, Joseph T. Wood and Mrs. Kathleen Mitchell.

At its organizational meeting the six member board also re-elected Miss Muriel J.

All have been appointed to one year terms by Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

Republicans Plan Unity Walk April 28

Joyce I. Baker of 162 Warren Ave., Quincy, is area coordinator for the Sargent committee for Quincy, Weymouth and Cohasset.

Lord Clark travels from the Holland of Hals, Rembrandt and Vermeer to the London of Isaac Newton and Christopher Wren. The film will also be shown Thursday, April 25, 7:30 at the Adams Shore Branch Library, 519 Sea St., Adams Shore.

Two films "Down Under, In Search of Australia" and "The Red Balloon" will be shown Wednesday, April 24 at 2:30 p.m. at the North Quincy Branch Library and at the main library Thursday at 10:30 a.m.

The children's book showcar will be at the main library on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. with a slide presentation of children's books of outstanding graphic merit. This presentation is for adults and children.

'Our Loss Of Confidence'

The decade which we are living through right now with its many complex, yet unsolved problems may be written in history as "the period of lack of confidence." The assassinations of the last decade did much to "put us down." Writers and preachers laid heavily upon the general responsibility and guilt some calling it "judgment" upon us for whatever the speaker thought we did wrong.

The 70's we have seen our national GOVERNMENT in great disrepute ... failing to give leadership ... barely able to function. Whatever happens ... resignation ... impeachment ... or muddle through, every barometer shows a great loss of confidence in our government ... not only national but at every level. Every authority is now being questioned ... its human weakness spotlighted.

The loss of confidence in the CHURCH is evident by the lower attendance ... the ministers and priests who are leaving their posts in increasing numbers ... the loss of financial support. Worst of all the loss of confidence in the Church means the voice of the Church is uncertain or silent ... so the principles of our Judea-Christian heritage are too generally being ignored.

The loss of confidence strikes hard in the MARRIAGE RELATIONSHIP. Virginia sobbed as she said ... "I just don't feel the same toward Rod."

Back there 20 years ago I thought he could do no wrong ... he was my ideal ... he was just perfect ... Well ... Rod fell of his pedestal. He had an affair. She said ... "I can never have confidence in him again." Virginia wouldn't forgive ... wouldn't forget ... and wouldn't let him forget. In counseling this "loss of confidence" was bridged ... and Virginia emerged with a more realistic and healthy, less "little girl" attitude toward her husband. She learned that Rod was not a god ... not even a perfect man ... and that she herself was only human, too.

The loss of confidence which destroys most is the loss of confidence in ONESELF. It shows up in jealousy ... fear of meeting people ... withdrawing from one's usual program ... a negative attitude toward oneself and what one can do.

Whatever is happening in the White House ... in the stock market in the Church ... even in your marriage ... DON'T PUT YOURSELF DOWN. Believe in yourself ... love yourself ... be good to yourself. You who do will weather the storm of the 70's.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

What Are Divorce Grounds?

"What are the grounds for divorce in Massachusetts?" asked a distraught caller to the Voter Information Phone of the League of Women Voters.

The League volunteer told the caller that there are seven statutory grounds for divorce available to a woman and six to a man. These are adultery, impotency, desertion, gross and confirmed intoxication, cruel and abusive treatment, prison sentence of five years or more, non-support (available only to women).

The Legislature is currently considering more than 30 bills relating to changes in the divorce laws. No-fault divorce is one option that is under discussion.

In this case, it is not necessary to prove blame and irrespective of blame, a divorce may be granted if both parties agree to it.

This question is one of the many now being received by the League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone. Individuals with any questions on government may call the VIP phone Monday through Friday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The number in the Boston area is 357-5880.

A sex symbol? not Hot Lips

By DON FREEMAN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — In a smoky voice, touched with a sharp Jersey accent, Loretta Swit, who is Hot Lips Houlihan in the "MASH" series, was saying that it is no easy matter to cope with one's image.

"Sex symbol," she said, incredulously. "Somebody said to me the other day, 'Well, Loretta, how does it feel to be television's new sex symbol?' Me a sex symbol? I was dumbstruck. I fell apart. I mean, really, I've always thought of myself as a fat little Polish girl from New Jersey. Me, with this potty figure of mine and the way I talk and all. Some sex symbol."

As Hot Lips, more formally known as Maj. Margaret Houlihan of the Army's nursing corps, Miss Swit occupies a highly unusual role for television. In a sense, she is a villain of the piece, which is, of course, a wild and irreverent comedy set during the Korean War. She is the chief nurse and she goes by the book, occasionally crying out plaintively about those surgeons, Hawkeye and Trapper John: "Those two are ruining the war for us!"

It's a terrific part and Loretta Swit gives it full substance. "A few women's libbers have asked me if I'm at all concerned about the 'sexist' aspects of playing Hot Lips. Well, my only feeling as an actress is that it's just great working with all those men.

"Obviously, we're more aware of such things now and of course there was a more chauvinistic attitude then, during the 1950s. A lot of things peculiar to that era seem a bit strange to us today. But simply to have a woman in that role is a departure. I mean, here's a woman with an awful lot of power. Hot Lips is a major. She does have a higher rank. She could put all those guys in the clink, couldn't she?"

"Hot Lips," she went on, "as I see her is an Army brat, she's 125 per cent military. She's terribly righteous, a bit stuffy. Anyone that rigid tends to be that way. But I also see Hot Lips as a woman with a burning passion — unfortunately it's directed at someone who's just as stuffy, meaning Maj. Frank Burns, Mr. Straight Arrow, Mr. Strict Establishment.

"What she is, is hypocritical in an amusing way. That's the important thing, that the laughs be there. We try to be very real people in a very real situation even if sometimes we do behave ridiculously. And Frank and I always get our comeuppance — and Hot Lips knows that she's being used by Frank Burns. I mean, once the war breaks up they break up, too. That's the way it is."

She paused. "I suppose there are some people out there who are rooting for Hot Lips and Frank Burns against Hawkeye and Trapper John. But I don't get any adverse mail saying, 'Why don't you toss those terrible guys in the guard-house?' No, my real feeling as Hot Lips is to be a straight woman for the jokes, a catalyst for laughs."

Baked chicken gives gourmet flair to meal

By SUSAN DELIGHT

Chicken continues to offer one of the best meat buys. This most versatile of meats combines deliciously with a variety of flavorings and ingredients. It is one of the easiest, too, for giving a gourmet flair to company meals.

A headliner for any special event can be Crusty Baked Chicken which gets its exotic flavor from marinating in Worcestershire sauce. It is dipped in an egg mixture before being baked to a crusty goodness.

Deviled Chicken Legs are accented with a wine-laced tomato sauce. Buttered rice tossed with green peas makes a good accompaniment for the chicken.

CRUSTY BAKED CHICKEN

2½ pound chicken, cut into eighths

¼ cup original Worcestershire sauce

1 egg, lightly beaten

½ cup fine dry bread crumbs

2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

1 teaspoon salt

Place chicken in a snug fitting bowl. Add Worcestershire sauce; turn chicken pieces to coat. Cover and refrigerate for about four hours, turning chicken once if possible. Drain off but reserve Worcestershire sauce. Combine Worcestershire sauce with egg. Mix bread crumbs, cheese and salt. Dip chicken pieces into Worcestershire mixture then into bread crumb mixture. Place on rack in shallow open roasting pan. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 F.) for 50 minutes or Better not get married, at least if you're Chinese and believe in the customs of the old Chinese calendar. As of Jan. 23, this is officially the Year of the Tiger — a bad year for marriage, if you want to avoid a tigerish mate.

— Problems at home may reflect on job performance. You have several alternatives for action — investigate each thoroughly. Show respect for older, influential friend who can be important in your life.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Very favorable time for important changes — forge ahead in a positive manner. Don't be diverted from purposeful action by friends or family. Use intuition and creative ideas to guide career moves.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Delays, pressures and tensions appear eased now. Be alert for opportunities connected with home, real estate, investments and partnerships. Publicity or advertising favored now. Others are cooperative.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — You are particularly subject to deception now — fooling yourself! Be extremely realistic — if it seems "too good to be true," it probably is. Resist wishful thinking. Postpone important decisions where possible.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS

She's at war with herself

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON
Certified Master

Copley News Service

Dear Dorothy:

I am a desperate woman. I can't find one reason to live. I want to crawl in a hole somewhere. I am thinking seriously of running away. If there is joy in life, I have forgotten it. If there is laughter, I can no longer find it. If there is worth, I cannot prove it. What's it all about?

Unsigned

Dear Unsigned:

You're at war with yourself. All because your basic need of knowing and feeling the appreciation of others has been missing.

You want so much to be recognized for a job well done that you never hesitate taking on responsibilities, seen in the large loop on capital I. You have an emotional and physical energy, seen in the forward slant and long lower loops, which seems to go on forever. You like to be active and you get things done.

Through the years, people have watched you, they've recorded your number, and they've used you. They've taken you for granted, and forgot to appreciate you.

Now, seen in the rigid beginning upstrokes, you've had enough. You're hurt, seen in the large d loops, and you've lost your faith in the hearts of people. You're disappointed and the confidence you once had is ebbing, seen in the low t crossings. Your righteousness is in conflict with your desperation. The very long downstrokes tell you to run away where no one can hurt you again, while the upper loop on l says you have an obligation to life and to others.

A bit of praise is everyone's need, and you are just one of millions with that same desperate feeling. So don't crawl in a hole.

Your problem seeds will only produce more sprouts. Don't run away. People are the same everywhere.

Just hope that others will learn that a word of praise is magic. That it not only lights sparks in human hearts but could shorten the roll call in hospitals and institutions all over the world.

HOME FIRE FACTS

Here are some home fire facts which may save your life.

1 - Heat rises. Scaring, 1,000 degree temperatures can travel far ahead of the actual fire. Your hall and stairway can become filled with lung-scorching heat, poisonous fumes, and blinding, choking smoke. YOU MUST PLAN TWO EXITS FROM EVERY BEDROOM.

2 - Most home fires start between the hours of midnight and 6 a.m. - when you are asleep - and least prepared.

3 - Most home fires start in these areas: Living Room, 37 percent; Kitchen 22 percent; Basement 14 percent; Bedrooms 13 percent; all others 14 percent. You can see how they are likely to block your normal escape route via hall and stairway from bedrooms.

4 - Fire exit drills reduce panic and injury in fires. It has been proven that trained and informed people, especially children, have a much better chance to survive in home fires. Again - PLAN TWO EXITS FROM EVERY BEDROOM.

Harold Supports Bills For

MDC Police Station In Quincy

Paul D. Harold of Adams Shore, testified in favor of two bills recently, before the Urban Affairs Committee at the State House, which would provide for the establishment of an MDC police station in Quincy.

Harold testified in favor of H-757 which was introduced by Rep. Joseph Brett and H-4407 which was introduced by Harold and sponsored by Rep. Clifford Marshall.

Harold introduced his bill at the request of a number of residents who have been annoyed by speeding and commercial traffic on Quincy Shore Drive and Furnace Brook Parkway.

"Presently, this area is a part of the Old Colony MDC police district," said Harold, "and it is physically impossible for the MDC police to respond quickly to calls in the Merrymount and Wollaston Beach areas, with the headquarters in South Boston."

Brett is chairman of the Urban Affairs Committee.

Master Builders Assn. Protests New Dump Rates

The Quincy Master Builders Association has lodged a protest of the new dump rates scheduled for June 1 with Commissioner of Public Works James J. Ricciuti.

The Master Builders claim that the new rates are lower for commercial packers and trailer trucks and discriminate against smaller trucks, and that they will encourage large trucks to continue dumping in Quincy.

The new rates were designed to discourage illegal out-of-city dumpers.

Roger B. Lyons, president of the Master Builders Association said, "These rates will encourage large trucks to continue to dump in Quincy, as they are still the lowest rates in Eastern Mass., while they discriminate against the local small business people by charging them twice-the weight of the truck plus the total weight of the load carried.

Trailer trucks and rear-loaded commercial packers are charged a flat rate while all other trucks are charged according to weight, including the empty weight of the truck.

Lyons called the new rate schedule "grossly unfair and discriminating" and called for a new system of rates charging large and small trucks equal rates according to load weight.

Moves To Stem Oil Profits Could Worsen Energy Crisis

A Wollaston spokesman for the Massachusetts Petroleum Council warns that moves to stem record-high oil company profits could worsen the energy crisis.

In an address to be delivered before the Hingham Rotary Club, tonight [Thursday] Dennis J. Cipriani, of 27 Bishop Rd., said, "the contention that present profits of oil companies are excessive is just not true." He claimed that petroleum industry profits "as a percentage of net worth" hit a 10 year low in 1972.

"If we are to generate the kind of capital needed to bring about energy self-sufficiency for the United States," Cipriani stated, "we must have a petroleum industry that is healthy."

"Punitive actions by government to restrict the profitability of the petroleum industry would be exactly the wrong approach to easing the nation's energy shortfall," declared Cipriani, who is a sales representative for Texaco Inc. He said the oil industry is going to have to come up with $50 billion a year over the next 10 years "to find, develop and distribute new oil and natural gas supplies."

The money, he said, can come from either borrowing or profits. "Our industry will not attract investors' capital of the $50-billion-a-year magnitude if it does not appear profitable,"

Cipriani pointed out. "And for the past several years its profitability has been well below average."

"Any actions by federal and state governments that affect profit structure of oil companies and does not take into account 'plop back' of capital for exploration and development of new sources of energy would be foolhardy," Cipriani declared.

Cipriani said that spokesmen for the oil industry cautioned as far back as 1954 that the control

Candidate For Attorney General

Bellotti Platform Leans Strongly To Law, Order, Consumerism

Former Lt. Gov. Francis X. Bellotti of Quincy has announced his candidacy for Massachusetts attorney general on a platform that leans strongly toward law and order and consumerism.

Bellotti, 50, who sought the office unsuccessfully in 1966 against Republican Elliot Richardson, made his announcement Tuesday [April 16] at a news conference in the Colonnade Hotel.

He called for registration of firearms, mandatory jail terms for illegal possession of guns, war against organized crime and violence, and federal funds for more and better equipped police.

He also urged more rigid regulation of utility companies, a women's rights division in the attorney general's office and "protection for the battered consumer."

In his statement, Bellotti said: Today, I announce my candidacy for the office of Attorney General of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

This has not been an easy decision. It means giving up the active participation in a private law practice to which I have devoted a substantial part of my life; a practice which provides more than adequately for my family. It means giving up my personal freedom and privacy.

But this is a time for commitment. There has been an erosion of integrity in the marketplace and at every level of government. The things we have always accepted as truths, the institutions upon which we relied are crumbling, including the Presidency of the United States.

People are no longer happy. They greet each new day with frustration, with fear and with bitterness. A mass depression has settled upon us and hope is gone.

What was once a pleasurable walk in the evening has become a journey of terror.

Excessive utility rates and totally inadequate service have become predictable offspring of weak regulation.

People work more and enjoy life less. They cannot adequately provide for the future. They just barely survive.

Organized crime has infiltrated legitimate business and walks callously, almost open to public scrutiny, selling violence and fear.

I have watched all these things and many more bring about the utter destruction of what I believe a democracy to be.

It is in this context and because these things can be changed, that, at this precise moment in time, I announce my candidacy for the office of Attorney General, an office which is becoming ever more powerful and complex, an office within which many of the essential changes can be effected.

I will touch today on a very few of the solutions to the myriad problems that will face the next Attorney General:

- Mandatory prison sentences for the illegal possession of firearms.

- Registration of all firearms.
- More rigid regulations of utility companies and more meaningful representation of the people at rate setting hearings.

- An unrelenting war against organized crime and violence whenever they appear.

- Establishment of a Department of Women's Rights in the Attorney General's Office.

- Protection of the battered consumer.

- An investigation into the use of Federal and State funds that allow the tragedy of a nine year wait for housing for the elderly.

- The diversion of Federal funds from the voluminous studies of police departments to long overdue new equipment, increased salaries and more foot patrolmen.

The Attorney General must stand outside the political establishment. He must fight everything that is bad in government. His loyalties must run, not to politicians, but to the people. He must have become a good lawyer who has learned his government well enough to change it. He must stand against the world for what he believes to be right and make the hard decisions whatever the cost. He must be the strong voice of the people...the lawyer of the people.

I seek to be the lawyer for the people of my State and it is to the people that I now go for support.

I dream of a government that once again belongs to the people and I am willing to pay the price to make that dream come true.

Oil Profits

of natural gas at an artificially low price would discourage exploration. "No one listened!" he said, "we cautioned that we were becoming overly dependent on foreign sources for our petroleum supplies. No one would listen! We warned that the 1969 tax reform act would take away $500-million from the industry that could be used to drill 5,000 exploratory wells! No one would listen."

"It seems to boil down to this: people don't believe what they don't want to believe. Americans have always taken cheap abundant energy for granted. They are shocked, angry, resentful, when they sense the era of cheap, abundant energy is ending.

"In an atmosphere like this, there are reports that congress and legislatures will take punitive action. This might be popular politically, but the long-run harm would be great. The petroleum industry in Massachusetts urges that this time somebody listen."

Outburst mars party for Cagney

By NANCY ANDERSON
HOLLYWOOD — Jimmy Cagney almost got just what he deserved when the American Film Institute paid tribute to him with a jam-packed dinner at the Century Plaza Hotel.

Or to quote Chuck Woolery who made the observation as he waited for his car after the party, "It was the grace of the man himself that made the evening so wonderful."

Cagney, a fine gentleman as well as a fine performer, deserved every bit of the sincere praise he received during the festivities in his honor. However, he didn't deserve two episodes of the evening:

First, Sam Peckinpah's ill-mannered outburst during Jack Lemmon's turn on stage and, next, Shirley MacLaine's patently phony tribute to the star which he, at least, must have recognized as a put-on.

To explain: Peckinpah, the darling of Hollywood liberals who simply adore his blood-and-guts movies, arrived at the party looking something like Aunt Jemima with a rag tied around his head and so limp that the woman with him (his wife, I suppose) had to help him into the banquet room and drop him into a chair.

But he wouldn't stay in the chair, and, during Jack Lemmon's testimonial to Cagney (which, admittedly, was a trifle long) Peckinpah leaped up and stunned the assemblage by shouting that he was tired of hearing Lemmon talk.

Lemmon was naturally embarrassed but hardly more so than his audience.

Later Peckinpah tangled with a bartender who'd refused to serve him another drink and was helped from the scene by security men.

It's too bad somebody didn't lead him away when he first arrived. But, at least, his outrageous behavior was edited out of the tape of the party before it was shown on network television.

And now about Shirley MacLaine:

Shirley made a cutie-pie speech implying that she'd known Cagney and profited by his wisdom almost since the day she was born.

"He used to say to me, 'Kid,'" Miss MacLaine said, "never take your heart by surprise."

And, "Kid, get out of breath at last twice a day."

And, "Kid..."

Now all this sounded very warm and chummy and fine to most listeners but not to me and probably not to Cagney who knew as well as I did that he barely knows Miss MacLaine, and that the advice she said he'd given her was actually dispensed to a mob of reporters during a Cagney press conference held about a month ago.

I was at the press conference and heard Cagney drop the pearls Miss MacLaine appropriated, and he didn't precede a single one with the word "Kid."

Miss MacLaine, her brother, Warren Beatty, and a few other nonpress people slipped in during the question-and-answer period which Shirley taped. I was right beside her and saw the tape recorder.

She neither asked a question nor got a direct answer, but, after the conference, she did ask whether someone could introduce her to Cagney.

Perhaps someone did.

N.E. Electric Reports Earnings Down

New England Electric System reports consolidated net income of $5,197,000, equal to 30 cents per share for the first two months of 1974 compared to $8,399,000 and 53 cents per share last year, on 1,250,000 fewer shares.

The decline in earnings was attributable to the nationwide efforts to conserve energy, warmer than normal weather, spiraling inflationary costs and, most particularly, the one month lag in recovering fuel costs.

Crusaders Deep In Experience

A year ago the Eastern Nazarene College tennis team enjoyed its first winning season in history [5-4] but Coach Ray Benson feels the Crusaders did better than that record indicates. "Each college tennis match consists of four singles and two doubles matches and last year we won 54 individual matches and lost only 27," said Benson, who has served as a volunteer coach at ENC for the past five years.

"At the end of the season we placed fourth in the NAIA New England regional tournament and were only one point out of third and four points out of first."

Benson has high hopes for this year and well he should with last year's entire team back.

The Crusaders' number one player is Larry Collins, number two is Dale Wolf, number three former North Quincy High star Roger Parrott, number four Chuck Alley, number five Donovan Cole, number six Dana Davis, number seven Mike Cosson and number eight John Reilly of Norwell.

"We are a lot stronger than we were last year because we have been working out all fall and winter," Benson said. "Our new gym is laid out for two tennis courts and we have portable nets so we've been playing indoors all year."

"It would be nice to have an unbeaten season and I feel we have the personnel to win every match but an awful lot can happen during a tennis season."

St. Ann's Girls' Team Sparkles In CYO, YMCA Competition

St. Ann's girls' basketball team of Wollaston enjoyed its best season in CYO and Quincy YMCA competition.

The Y team, coached by Sue Smith and made up mainly of girls 12-14 years of age, finished first during the regular season in the 18 and under division with an 8-1 record.

The CYO team, coached by Paul Bregoli, competed in the 17 and under division and placed second with a 9-3 mark behind St. Francis of Weymouth.

Most girls were playing for the first time and saw action with both teams.

"The girls played amazingly well considering their ages and the competition," Bregoli said. "We entered them in the older leagues knowing they would be much younger and at a decided height disadvantage in many games. But Sue and I hoped they would benefit more by playing against the stronger competition."

"We explained this to the girls and they understood the situation. Some of the girls had played organized basketball but others had not. The girls were very coachable and adapted well to the situations. We taught them many offensive and defensive fundamentals and they learned to run a set offense against a zone, how to block out and even learned a full-court diamond zone press, which they ran very well."

Each girl contributed something to the team. Nancy

Smith, only 12 and the shortest girl at 4-6, was the sparkplug, being very quick, a good ball handler and floor leader. She played on both teams and also for Central Junior High's city champions and won the state foul shooting contest sponsored by the Elks.

Sarale Cobban was the number two scorer for the CYO team and, at 5-4, was an excellent rebounder and an aggressive defense player. Her 18 points against Immaculate Conception marked the season's high for the team.

Ellen Crandall at 5-6 was the tallest girl on either team. She played last year and was a good defensive player.

Joyce Flynn is the sister of North Quincy High standout John Flynn. A real clutch player, she was aggressive and a fine shooter. Her last second foul shots defeated Blessed Sacrament.

Denise Jay, 5-2 and only 13 years of age, led the scorers of both teams. A veteran, she was an excellent shooter and ball handler and a good rebounder. Her game high was 16 points against St. Mary's of Randolph.

Suane Jay started three games before injuring her knee skiing. She was a good shooter and a smart player.

Lauren Baker, a ninth grader at North, was the top rebounder for both teams. She was a steady player who was always hustling against bigger opponents.

Joanne Ruane, a seventh grader at Central, was another strong rebounder and played well for the Y team, especially against Blessed Sacrament.

Rory Nolan, daughter of North Quincy Coach Bob Nolan, was a much improved player over a year ago with good potential. She is an excellent rebounder.

Margaret Shea, an Atlantic eighth grader, played well in a reserve roll. Although not a scorer, she was a good rebounder.

Gera Foy of St. Ann's School played for both teams and was a fine defensive player.

Elaine Galvin, another Central seventh grader, was playing for the first year and was a fine ball handler.

Antoinette Alibrandi from North was another first year player who was excellent on defense and showed tremendous improvement.

Karen Mitchell from Central, was another aggressive defensive player.

Carol and Pam Erwin both played for the Y team and are active in the church CYO. Both were good rebounders.

Donna Schiarizzi, another first year player, showed hard work and determination in playing for the Y team.

"The whole season could not have been possible except for the support of Rev. John Foley, who is involved in all aspects of the CYO program for both the boys and girls of St. Ann's," Bregoli concluded.

●Baseball Quincy, North Open

The Quincy and North Quincy baseball teams had their scheduled Greater Boston League games postponed Monday due to wet grounds.

Friday Quincy will be home to newcomer Haverhill at 10:30 at Adams Field, will play at Peabody Monday and host Malden next Wednesday at 3:15 at Adams Field.

North will play at Medford Friday at 10:30, will host Malden at 3:15 Monday at Adams and will be at Revere next Wednesday.

North got off to a good start last week as Tim Clifford, 6-2 junior right-hander, pitched a two-hitter in sparking the Raiders to a 1-0 win over B.C. High.

Clifford, 6-1 as a sophomore last year, struck out 13 and walked only two in a sparkling season's debut.

Sharing the spotlight was Paul Rooney, whose pinch hit single to right field in the seventh inning gave Clifford and the Raiders the win.

In that seventh Bert McMahon reached on an error and moved on a bunt by Dan Minton. Rooney, a right-handed hitting outfielder, came off the bench and delivered his game-winning hit.

"Clifford did a superb job and he should have another fine season," Bunker said. "If we get our share of hits, we should do all right."

The Presidents got under way last week as they won and lost shutouts against non-league opponents.

In the opener Quincy blanked B.C. High, 4-0, behind the four-hit pitching of Paul Craig, senior southpaw who struck out nine and walked three.

Quincy also had only four hits, two by Tom Perry, who drove in two runs. Quincy scored single runs in the second, third, seventh and eighth innings.

The Presidents were strong defensively, as usual, with only one error.

In their second outing, however, the Presidents dropped a 3-0 decision to Weymouth North, which will be a Suburban League foe starting next year.

Mark Dwyer pitched good ball for Quincy, giving up five hits, but two of them and two walks gave North all three of its runs in the seventh inning. The capper was a long triple to left center by Rick Ries.

Mike MacKenzie had two of Quincy's five hits off Weymouth ace Fred Loud.

Mosquito Control Aerial Spray Scheduled To Start April 22

The South Shore Mosquito Control Project will soon begin an aerial spraying to abate the larva of the first spring hatch mosquitoes.

It will start on or about April 22, and is expected to be completed by May 13, in Quincy and nine towns.

The areas to be treated for this mosquito specie are the larger fresh water woodland swamps.

Two types of aircraft will be used - an A.P. 18 Piper type fixed wing aircraft and a Bell type helicopter.

In order to avoid off target drift, the early morning hours shall be used, from dawn until 9 a.m., when winds and thermals are at the least.

The operation will be supervised and conducted by project personnel who are properly licensed by the Massachusetts Pesticide Board.

The insecticide to be used is both registered and approved by the U.S.D.A. for mosquito control. In the areas where it is to be applied and the low limits of dosage, there should be no overdue concern of hazard. But to avoid the chance of spotting or contamination, it is suggested the following precautions be taken by people residing in, near, or abutting swamplands:

- Children's playthings be covered.
- Animals' or pets' eating and drinking utensils should be covered.

• Stocked ornamental ponds should be covered. If this is not feasible, notify the Project of its location.

• Automobiles ungargled should be parked so as to be seen by aircraft.

• Laundry drying should be located so as to be seen by aircraft.

The communities to be included in this spray operation, in addition to Quincy, are Braintree, Cohasset, Duxbury, Hingham, Hull, Marshfield, Norwell, Scituate and Weymouth.

All areas to be sprayed are locations treated in past years.

Persons having any areas or objects they desire to be avoided, are asked to contact the Project office at 1120 Hancock St., Quincy [773-9191]. If this notification has been made in past years, it will not be necessary to report it again as such areas to be avoided are recorded.

Computer Sniffs Out Traffic Violators Who Owe $12,000

Quincy police have a new warning for parking scofflaws.

You've only got one month instead of six months to drag your feet to the cashier's window.

The relentless computer of the Suburban Police Automated Information System is geared to draw a bead on you as soon as the deadline for paying your parking fine has expired.

Only last week the computer sniffed out in a matter of minutes some 3,800 overdue tickets worth about $12,000 to the city of Quincy. The tickets were issued from May through December, 1973.

In the past, Quincy Police would obtain periodically a list of unpaid tickets from the Quincy courthouse and send it to the Registry in Boston for names and addresses. It was a time consuming process.

Now, with the SPAIS computer, the list is collected, put on tape at the police station and run through the registry computer in a matter of minutes.

"We are thus able to shorten the cycle from six months to about a month," says Robert K. Mitchell, system director for the Quincy Police Department.

Bad news for parking violators in Quincy, who average 400 to 500 tickets a month.

Over 400 Attend

Proponents Outnumber Opponents At NQHS Hearing

By STEVE FERRARA

A near-capacity crowd of over 400 attended the City Council's public hearing at North Quincy High School auditorium Monday night to present their views on a proposal to build a new high school on a 45-acre tract of land at the old Squantum Naval Air Station.

Thirty-six proponents spoke out in favor of building the new facility there to alleviate overcrowded and run-down conditions at the high school, and to prevent loss of accreditation at the end of this school year. They called on the Council to take immediate action.

Major argument of opponents of the Squantum site was the cost of building a new facility, which is estimated at $8.2 million but which some think could run as high as $15 to $25 million.

The seven opponents who spoke favored renovating and expanding the present building and even moving the ninth grade out as an alternative to a new building.

Children Picket Homes Of Shipyard Bosses

Children of striking shipyard workers picketed the bosses' homes Sunday morning, the 36th day of the walkout at General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard.

The youngsters, about 10 of them, set up picket lines at the homes of three bosses who, the union said, have been doing struck work, one of them driving a truck, the other two painting. The kids carried signs which read:

"My father is on strike at Quincy shipyard."

"Do you crawl around here like you do for GD?"

"Do your neighbors know what you are?"

"Mr. is being used as a strikebreaker."

There was no reported reaction from the people being picketed.

Meanwhile, there was no progress reported in getting the two sides back to the bargaining table. Renewed negotiations broke off for the last time on April 9.

Tax Rate $163-$166

$300 Pay Hike Predicted For City Employees

By TOM HENSHAW

The new Quincy tax rate, it appears, will be $163.70—or $166.50 if expected $300 across the board wage increases are negotiated for approximately 2,000 city employees.

That's a rise of $9.40 without the wage hikes — and $12.20 with them — over the $154.30 current rate.

Although city officials decline to speculate publicly on the tax rate this early, the figures were compiled and confirmed by The Quincy Sun during lengthy interviews with several officials.

John J. Quinn, dean of the City Council and chairman of its Finance Committee, declined to predict the raise in pay for city employees, whose contracts expire Dec. 31.

"I would not like to be presumptuous to tell the negotiators what I expect them to do," he said.

But a consensus of other sources figured the raises to be from $300 to $500 across the board, with most of them leaning toward the $300 figure. This would prevent large increases at the top on a percentage basis.

Each $100 raise is calculated to be equal to .92 cents on the tax rate.

The fact that the tax rise will be much less than expected is the result of a $4.5 million City Council trimming job from Mayor Walter J. Hannon's $62.5 budget, including an unprecedented $208,000 "deferral" in the school budget.

The slashing job was led by the five new Councillors, Warren A. Powers, Dennis E. Harrington, John J. Lydon Jr.,

James A. Sheets and Leo J. Kelly.

A City Hall source explained: "When the City Council realized what the tax rate would be if an expected $1.75 million were trimmed from the original, the five new councillors were basically shocked."

"They knew there had to be an increase because bills had to be paid but they decided to base their votes not on how much should be spent but on how much of a rate increase the people could stand."

The City Council cut the budget like this:

The Fire Department has a program under which 10 per cent of its hose is replaced each year or a complete replacement in 10 years. The Council decided that program could be extended to 11 years without serious consequences.

A similar program to replace Police Department vehicles was also extended by a year.

All new jobs were eliminated, except those demonstrated by need, such as the assistant dog officer and the intravenous nurse at Quincy City Hospital.

But the Council decided that the City Hospital could function another year without a new central dictating system.

Voc-Tech Student Wins Beauty Title

A pretty and talented dental student at Quincy Vocational Technical School has taken the first step along a path that could end in the Miss America contest next September in Atlantic City, N.J.

Judith Ann Lavoie, 20-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Cole of Weymouth, was selected Miss Merrimack Valley Saturday at a pageant in Methuen.

The 5-9, reddish blonde receives a scholarship, a seven-day cruise in the Bahamas and a gift certificate for clothing but more important she is eligible to compete for the title Miss Massachusetts and entry into the Miss America Pageant.

Miss Lavoie, a graduate of Weymouth North High School and once a student at Eastern Nazarene College, was first runnerup in the Miss Weymouth contest last year and was one of the 10 finalists in the Miss Massachusetts Pageant.

She is studying at Voc-Tech to become a dental assistant with ambitions eventually to become a children's dentist working with "special" children.

$300 Raise Seen For City Employees

 Reducing the school department budget was a delicate matter. It had never been done before. School departments are, by law, fiscally autonomous.

"We were told we can't touch the school budget," said one freshmen councillor. "Legally that's true. But nothing says we couldn't ask the school committee to join us in cutting the budget for the good of all."

"We couldn't justify what we did to the budgets of other municipal departments if we let the school budget go by as is," said another councillor.

Indications were that if the School Committee had refused to cut or defer some items in its budget the Council would have refused to pass it, thus producing a court showdown on fiscal autonomy that would reach far beyond Quincy.

Meanwhile, Charles T. Sweeney, vice chairman of the School Committee, had critical words for city officials who "habitually" misrepresent the financial picture of the school system.

He called a Quincy Sun report last week that the school request was up $3 million over the previous year, and equal to a $12 hike in the tax rate "grossly inaccurate."

"The press reports of last week indicated that increased school costs would cause the tax rate to climb by $12," he said, "yet when the City Council finished its work on Thursday night they reported a total increase, including school costs, of $9.50."

"What happened to the $12 school cost?"

"He's wrong in that," said

Budget Director William Grindlay, explaining:

"The last time we calculated the tax was for the year 1973. The School Department sent a request for $21,022,104. The City Council passed the request with no cuts."

"On June 4, City Council Order 210 was passed granting teachers a pay raise for the school year Sept. 1, 1973 to June, 1974."

"I allocated 40 per cent of that, or $307,741 to the 1973 budget which gave us a budget of $21,329,845 for the calendar year 1973."

"The School Committee requested $24,155,509 for July, 1974, through June, 1975. That's roughly $3 million more."

"If each $250,000 is equal to $1 on the tax rate, then $3 million is equal to $12."

Bryan Post Plans Loyalty Day Observance

Loyalty Day will be observed Sunday, May 5, by the George F. Bryan VFW Post and the Massachusetts Veterans of Foreign Wars State Department.

The ceremonies will start at 1:30 p.m. on the steps of historic First Parish Church, Quincy Sq. They will be followed by a parade in which the Bryan Post, American Legion units and other veterans organizations will take part.

The parade will start at the church and proceed down Hancock St. to Elm St., onto Washington St. to McGrath Highway and end at the post home on Broad St. The reviewing stand will be in front of Woodward Spring Company.

There will be at least 20 bands, 2000 marchers, a float and other participants.

"Loyalty Day is the special occasion for the youths and adults of our land to stand up and speak out clearly on how lucky we are to be Americans," said Post Commander Robert G. Ahlstedt.

Frank Roberts is Loyalty Day chairman for the Bryan Post and A. Warren Steward is chairman for the State Department. Arthur McLean will be the master of ceremonies.

Grocers Meet On Food Stamps

The Food and Nutrition Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture is holding meetings in the Quincy Armory this week to instruct grocers in their roles in the service's food stamp program.

The meetings began Tuesday and continue through today

[Thursday] from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"The object of the meetings," said Joseph Killay, officer in charge of the Quincy office, "is to get grocers ready for the expanding food stamp program in Massachusetts."

3 Firefighters, 2 Policemen Commended For Rescues

A resolve commending three Quincy fire fighters and two policemen for rescuing five children from their burning home in Germantown will be introduced at the next Monday's meeting of the City Council by Ward 1 Councillor Leo J. Kelly.

The trio of fire fighters also were selected for board of merit awards which will be presented at the Firefighters Ball in May, 1975, since their act of heroism came too late for recognition at this year's ball.

The firefighters are Lt. Walter Claire, William Ellis and James Kelley, all of Engine Co. 8, Germantown.

The policemen are Patrolmen Robert Curtis and John McDonough.

They are to be cited for their rescue work during a smokey fire that ravaged an apartment house at 12 Yardarm Lane on April 10.

Ellis, Claire and Kelley brought Laurie Kneeland, 9, and her sister, Maria, 8, down ladders when they were trapped in their second floor apartment. Ellis also rescued Scott Kneeland, 1, from the burning building.

Meanwhile, officers Curtis and McDonough took an extension ladder to the rear of the house and rescued two more children from a porch roof where they were stranded by the fire.

Then they took one of the youngsters from a firefighter and rushed him to the hospital with McDonough administering artificial respiration en route.

Search For Missing Milton Youths Halted

A search of Quincy Bay for two missing Milton youths was called off late Monday.

Believed dead are Edward Leahy, 19, of 44 Gordon Rd., and Jay Brown, 20, of 36 Vinewood Rd., who were thrown into the water about 300 yards off Squantum when a 15-foot aluminum boat capsized Saturday.

A third youth, Frederick Cook, 20, of 23 Mechanic St., Milton, swam ashore and alerted Squantum residents who notified police. He suffered from exposure and was taken to Quincy City Hospital.

A Coast Guard helicopter, Quincy Police and Civil Defense scuba divers conducted the search.

Police Lt. Walter Lynch said the search was halted because the currents apparently had carried the bodies to sea.

Rabies Immunization Clinic May 4

The Quincy Health Department will sponsor a rabies immunization clinic for dogs and cats, three months and older, Saturday, May 4, at the Public Works Garage on Sea St.

The hours of the clinic are from 2 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.
Dr. Alfred V. Mahoney,

Health Commissioner, reminded Quincy residents that all dogs must be immunized against rabies before they can be licensed by the City Clerk's office, as required by State law.

"This clinic will be the only program for rabies immunization of dogs and cats held this year by the Department," Dr. Mahoney said. "Every animal owner should take advantage of this clinic, May 4."

Dr. Alan Morse, veterinarian, of 55 Hancock St., will give the rabies immunizations. A fee of $2 for each animal will be charged.

● Issue: North Quincy High School

Population Going Down, Do We Need New School?

IF SCHOOL POPULATION IS DECREASING WHY DO WE NEED A NEW NORTH QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL?

It is a fact that since 1971 the total enrollment of the Quincy Public Schools has been going down. Nevertheless, the expected enrollment at the high school level in the city, and for North Quincy High School in particular, is expected to change slightly for the next 10 years. The enrollment for grades 9-12 in the city is expected to go up or down in a range less than 400 students for the next decade. For North Quincy High School the 9-12 enrollment is expected to stay nearly constant at approximately 2,000 students for the next decade. [A projected high of 2,089 students in 1980, and a low of 1,950 students in 1983].

The number of births is one variable that must be considered in predicting future enrollment. With respect to birth rates, the nationally known educational consulting firm of Engelhardt & Engelhardt predicts that grade 1 enrollments on the national level will start to go up in 1979. The number of births is expected to increase because the number of women of child-bearing age is increasing. Our local enrollment projections show an increase in grade 2 enrollment in 1980.

In addition to birth rate, other variables are population shifts, effects of MBTA lines on population growth, possible closings of private and parochial schools, and other economic and social factors. While it does appear that the future enrollment in the school system is going down, we expect that the total high school enrollment, and therefore North Quincy High enrollment, will remain nearly constant for at least the next ten years. This means that current space inadequacies at North Quincy High School would continue to plague the school if the building is not replaced.

COULD THE SPACE PROBLEM AT NORTH QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL BE RELIEVED BY EXTENDING THE SCHOOL YEAR INTO THE SUMMER?

Yes, it is possible to re-schedule the school year and ease the space problem at North Quincy High. If this were to be done, the students would be divided into groups. Four groups would do. Three groups would be in school while the fourth group would be on vacation. This would charge every few weeks, year-round, so that a different group would be on vacation while the others would be in school. Seventy-five percent of the student body would be in school at any one time:

In order for this type of plan to ease the space problem the students in each group would be designated and the times for each group to be in school or on vacation would be mandated. If this were done for just North Quincy High School students, it would mean that families with children in elementary or junior highs and North could have the elementary or junior high student on a regular school year, with regular vacations, meanwhile their student at North could have nine weeks of school and three weeks vacation, for all 12 months of the year. This would be an inconvenience. An added burden would be placed on North students who elect to go to Quincy Vocational-Technical School.

To avoid this, mandated year-round schedules would be developed for all students in all grades, with the hope that families and neighborhoods could be given the same times for school and vacation periods if possible. While re-scheduling the school year would ease the actual overcrowding, it must be remembered that North Quincy High would still need to undergo a thorough modernization. Any buildings that would be used on a regular basis during July and August should be air-conditioned. It is estimated that air-conditioning costs would be between $3. and $8. per square foot, or $1.6 million for North Quincy High School, or $5.2 million for just the three senior high schools.

COULD THE SPACE PROBLEM AT NORTH QUINCY HIGH BE SOLVED BY CHANGING TO A FOUR-DAY SCHOOL WEEK?

Yes, if it were possible to get State Department approval. Two communities have been permitted to put their high schools on a four-day week as temporary measures. Reportedly townspeople in both communities refused new building proposals. One community hopes to buy time for planning if it can make the four-day week last long enough. They went on the four-day week after a difficult time with double sessions.

Accountability for students is very difficult. If students are stopped downtown they can answer that they are on their free day. Continuity of educational programs is difficult to maintain, and both schools offer night options. Extra-curricular programs suffer. There is a 20% loss of school time for each student. The State Department of Education sees both of the four-day week plans as experimental, and the Department of Education Curriculum Division indicates that the Department of

Does North Quincy really need a new high school?

If so, how critical is the need?

And where should a new high school be built?

All these questions are answered in a position paper called "Issues: North Quincy High School", prepared by the staff of School Superintendent Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon at the request of the Quincy School Committee.

Since the question of a new North Quincy High School concerns all the citizens of Quincy, The Quincy Sun, as a public service, is reprinting the position paper in its entirety.

Education would not consider the possibility of North Quincy High School or any other school functioning on a four-day week.

IF NORTH QUINCY HIGH'S TERM OF ACCREDITATION RUNS OUT, WILL THE GRADUATES FIND IT IMPOSSIBLE TO GET INTO COLLEGE?

Probably not. It could be more difficult. Many factors determine admission to college, and entrance requirements vary enormously from one college to another. S.A.T. scores, other scholarship tests, scholastic records, and entrance examinations figure in the admission picture. The stampede of high school graduates to college is increasingly competitive. If a high school operates without accreditation, good education may still go on, and this or that student may win admission to this or that college. But, the majority of college-bound graduates clearly stand at a disadvantage in the academic marketplace.

In June of 1974 North may lose its accreditation by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. Regrettable as this may be in itself, the situation worsens when one considers the resultant academic imbalance in the City of Quincy. Quincy High/Quincy Vocational-Technical School will maintain its accreditation for the rest of its ten-year term.

Parents who wish to make every honest effort to have their children secure a college education will, understandably, insist on having them attend an accredited high school. These parents are in for much frustration, for regulations of the Quincy Public Schools and School Committee policy prohibit random transferral. The renewing of North's accreditation unquestionably hinges upon the recommended planning and building of a new educational plant, because the NEASC made the following single recommendation concerning the North Quincy High School facilities:

"It views the present plant as totally inadequate and unacceptable for a modern high school program. Inadequacies of facilities throughout the school, both in academic and non-academic areas, are clearly illustrated in the many specific area reports that are the evaluation of this high school. Immediate action must be taken to relieve overcrowding and more importantly, to bring the facilities to a level of utility which will permit the implementation of the philosophy and objectives of the school. Reports containing solutions are many. Renovation or abandonment of the existing facilities and/or construction of new facilities should begin without further delay."

WHAT WOULD BE THE EFFECTS ON NORTH QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL IF HIGH SCHOOL BOUNDARY LINES WERE CHANGED?

The future enrollment of a new North Quincy High School could be increased well beyond the approximately 2,000 students anticipated if high school boundary lines were to be changed. If some or all of Merrymount School students were to be shifted to North, more than 60 students per grade could be added. If some or all of the students from Gridley Bryant and Willard Schools were shifted to North, approximately 100 students per grade could be added. Enrollment predictions based on present high school boundaries show the North Quincy High School enrollment at 2,029 in 1982.

If Merrymount, Willard, and Gridley Bryant were added, the enrollment at that year at North would be some 2,458, or an additional 429 students. On the other hand, if a new North is not built, seriously needed space can be provided by a northerly shift of the high school boundary line, sending more students to Quincy High School.

The enrollment of North can be reduced by a shift of the line from Furnace Brook Parkway up to Beale and Beach Streets, sending additional students to Quincy High School. This shift would send all but a very small percentage of Central students to Quincy High School. The Atlantic students living east of Willow Street between Beach and East Elm, would also go to Quincy High.

Bringing in an additional 200 or more students to Quincy High School would be a critical shift of locus of the space problem to Quincy High School and would add to the current need for additional space there. While such a shift of boundary would relieve the overcrowding at the present North Quincy High, extensive modernization of the building would be required if it were to continue as a high school facility.

WHY NOT A THIRD HIGH SCHOOL SOMEWHERE BETWEEN NORTH QUINCY HIGH AND QUINCY HIGH?

Some tracts of land midway between North and Quincy are existent as possible building sites for a third high school that would relieve enrollment pressures at both ends of the city. But a closer inspection of the most likely locations shows them to be, oddly enough, unfit. The 45 scenic and open acres of Furnace Brook Golf Club, for example, would require so many "mountains to be leveled and valley to be filled" that funds for a new building would be heavily drained in site preparation. Even more extensive and expensive landscaping would be necessary to provide acres of athletic fields, parking space for hundreds of cars, and access for buses.

These very same space demands make the filled-in land on Quarry Street similarly unsuitable. Apparently, there is considerable solid land at the quarries, but this good terrain is riddled with constantly settling, filled-in excavation holes. The School Committee gave serious consideration to a 16-acre quarry site; in common estimation, this land was inferior to land inspected by the firm of Haley and Aldrich who wanted to erect high-rise apartments on a nearby 53-acre site.

The firm found their area to contain merely 5% buildable land, and they were interested in building sites only 10,000 square feet in area, not the large square footage required by modern high schools. The Quarry Street high school would have to be a narrow skyscraper with athletic fields scattered between refuse-loaded craters,

Delahunt Looking Like Mayoralty Contender

By HENRY BOSWORTH

If you're keeping a list of potential mayoralty contenders for next year, jot the name of William Delahunt down—in capital letters.

The state representative and former Ward 5 City Councillor confided to very close friends months ago that he will run for mayor in 1975. That was back when he was deciding not to seek re-election to the council.

Delahunt right now is probably more determined to toss his hat in the ring. The tip-off is his current feud with Mayor Walter Hannon over the tax rate and the proposed Freedom Park.

Hannon had criticized Delahunt for supporting the Freedom Park proposal. And Delahunt zinged back, charging that if the City Council hadn't put the hatchet to Hannon's proposed municipal budget this year, the tax rate would have skyrocketed $33 or more.

Delahunt, most political observers seem to agree, would be a formidable mayoralty contender. And they haven't forgotten that as a political novice just a few short years ago, he came within a handful of votes of defeating Hannon for the Ward 5 seat.

QUINCY'S FRANK BELLOTTI has tapped Quincy's John [Butch] Mahoney, the former grid star, to serve as his Norfolk County coordinator in his campaign for attorney general.

Bellotti, incidentally, says his announcement for attorney general has brought "the best reaction" he has ever received. Better then when he ran for Norfolk County sheriff in 1958, lieutenant governor in 1962 and governor in 1964.

Plans are underway for a $100-per head cocktail fund-raising party at Pier 4, Boston, June 10.

ARTHUR TOBIN, vice-chairman of the Senate's Ways and Means Committee, got to preside over the Senate last week. They say he looked pretty much at home. But then, he's had plenty of experience wielding the gavel as long-time president of the City Council.

YOU'D HAVE TO say that when Rev. Joseph Connolly, popular St. John's Church curate, gets involved in worthwhile projects, he puts his heart, soul—and both feet—into it.

The 20-mile "Step For Life" Walkathon sponsored by the Quincy Deanery CYO will be held Sunday. Fr. Connolly is looking for people to sponsor him at 10 cents, 25 cents, 50 cents—or more—a mile. If you'd like to be his sponsor, call 773-1021. Proceeds go to Survival, Inc. and Birthright.

QUINCY NOW HAS four candidates for Norfolk County sheriff. Paul Barry, a Democrat from Quincy Point, is busy gathering names on nomination papers. He thus joins Deputy Sheriff John Brownell, Councillor-Rep. Clifford Marshall and County Commissioner George McDonald.

Observers are beginning to think the stage may be set for a non-Quincy contender to get in to take advantage of the Quincy boys splitting up the vote.

And one reportedly being tempted is state Senator John Backman [D-Brookline] whose senatorial position has been weakened by redistricting.

Another, who had been thinking of it is former Sheriff Peter McCormack of Brookline. A candidate out of a place like Brookline could make a lot of hay while four Quincy residents split up votes in their home town.

THE TRIM LOOK: Joe Fasci and Tom Tehan, owners of Ultrasonic Test Engineering of Quincy were at the Portsmouth, N.H. Naval Shipyard the other day checking crane rail welds. While there they bumped into Senator Edmund Muskie who was making a tour of the yard.

Joe and Tom got to chatting with him and mentioned that Muskie was looking nice and trim. Muskie thanked them but then confided that the tailor who makes his suits also makes his wife's maternity clothes. A streamline specialist.

NEWEST MEMBER OF the Quincy Historical Society is Roland [Pop] Josselyn of Houghs Neck who will be a young 90 June 25. Pop, who is still quite active, is an expert on Houghs Neck history and has a collection of nostalgic photos of the area. WHERE DOES THE time go dept.? The South Shore Chamber of Commerce is already making plans for its annual outing and clam bake. Will be held July 17 at Peter's Grove, Kingston.

FORMER QUINCY YMCA Director Gil Crofts, who now lives on the island of Gosnold off Cape Cod, has been re-elected constable by a landslide. Polled 49 out of 53 votes. The folks are pretty frugal there. The job pays $25-a-year.

Hannon Visits Atlanta

Mayor Walter J. Hannon visited Atlanta, Ga., this week to study the downtown development of that city in the hopes of using it as a basis of comparison with the development and rehabilitation of Quincy's Center.

Atlanta is one of the most progressive cities on the Eastern Coast in the area of downtown development and Hannon said he wants to see what they have accomplished along the lines of new building development and rehabilitation of existing buildings.

Hannon was to meet with Daniel Sweat, Executive Vice President of the Central Atlanta Progress to discuss Atlanta's progression in the areas of appropriate land use, density of development, and scheduling of development. The Mayor will also evaluate architects and developers used by Atlanta, as well as assistance given to them by federal and state funding.

Mayor Hannon is presently in the process of preparing developer's kits which will show what can be done to property in Quincy's center, and what the city would like to see built there.

Accompanying the Mayor were John Cheney, Development Coordinator for the city and Anne Minukas, administrative assistant to the Mayor. They were to return to Quincy Tuesday evening.

Living, Today

'Don't Give Up Your Essential Beliefs'

"What's the use?" ... James was saying ... "I work hard ... long hours ... paid my full income tax ... didn't cheat the government. And what do I get? Nixon squeals through on some technicality and pays less than I do. My wife has an affair with a gigolo. It seems that everything I believed in is blowing up in my face."

I could empathize with James ... tho' I try to avoid pity. Nobody wants to be pitied. But James did not re-assess and re-affirm what he believed in. He was threatening to give up on the things he really believed in ... because his principles were being put to the test. Principles that won't stand the test of pressure are of little value. Look at what James believed in.

James believed in LOVE and AFFECTION. He believed in loving one woman and he found great joy in many ways of expressing his love to Maureen, his wife. He sent her cards through the mail ... took her out weekly dancing and dining ... brought her gifts, some inexpensive little things she liked and some that he had to sacrifice to buy. He liked to touch Maureen ... was always courteous to her. These were the things he could and did do.

But the things in the relationship which required response from Maureen were missing. He wanted to COMMUNICATE ... to talk about things that had happened during the day ... plan ahead for trips ... vacations ... even college plans for the children. Maureen wouldn't talk. She remained silent ... as if uninterested except when she was criticizing him. This nearly drove James out of his mind. "What do I have to do to get this girl to talk with me?" he kept asking.

Another essential to James was personal discipline ... He kept his property in order ... his tools ... his clothes ... his office. He never over-drunk. He studied problems looking at the facts. He reasoned. He wanted to "reason together" with Maureen ... but she made light of his orderliness ... called him a prude ... "Mr. Perfect".

These essential beliefs were James' way of life ... and he didn't have any desire to change it. Maureen's script was the opposite ... she hadn't learned to love ... nor to communicate ... nor to discipline herself. He could tolerate her disorderliness ... but he couldn't tolerate her lack of love. This is his dilemma. How should he resolve it?

James decided that in his dilemma he must not give up what he believed to be essential to good relationship. If he threw over his principles this would leave him as well as Maureen with no anchor. In counseling they learned together what beliefs were essential to make a marriage work.

Their story had a happy ending. I hope yours does.

Suggests Foot Patrolman To Reduce Germantown Threat

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Various suggestions have been made to help protect the homes in the Germantown housing project from the threat of arson. The residents who have contacted me are suggesting, and demanding that a foot patrolman be assigned to the neighborhood as a necessary first step. I agree.

A foot patrolman, in combination with the securing of the cellars seems to be a common sense solution to this emergency situation.

In the short term, the Quincy Police Department should provide this patrol, with the Quincy Housing Authority taking over the responsibility, by funding positions for at least two security guards.

And unlike other neighborhoods where the foot patrolman has had a mobility problem, the foot patrolman [security guard] could effectively respond to most calls in this relatively compact area.

Women's Republican Club In 'Toys For Tots' Thank You

Editor, Quincy Sun:

The Quincy Women's Republican Club recently completed a very successful "Toys For Tots" drive for the benefit of the New England Home for Little Wanderers.

This was an Easter toy drive which was a great success due to the cooperation of the many people who so generously contributed. It was also due to the participation of Mr. Romulus DeNicola of Blackwood Pharmacy who allowed the use of his store, the news media and radio station WJDA.

It is indeed gratifying to observe how everyone works together without reservation for a worthy cause and the results because of this. As a consequence, we plan to make this an annual drive in the future.

We extend our sincere appreciation to all those who helped to make a joyous Easter for those children at the Home who are less fortunate than our own.

Don't let dog nip romance

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS
Dear Pat and Marilyn:
My fiancée has a dog and I can't stand the pest. He is one of those little yapping Chihuahuas. When I walk through the door, this bound runs up to me barking and nipping at my heels. I'd like to give it a good kick in the teeth but don't dare.
When we are married, I don't want that dog around. My girl says the dog goes where she goes. How can I get rid of this miserable cur?

No Dog Lover

Dear NDL:
Be big about the whole thing. Don't let your romance go to the dogs.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:
My hair has a dry, dead look. It is not tinted, but I do get permanents. Why do I have this problem?

Marion

Dear Marion:
Are you in good health? Do you eat a proper diet and get plenty of rest? There are two prime requisites for healthy hair. We'll assume that your answer is "yes."

The care of the hair is extremely important. Try giving yourself a scalp massage. Massage in rotary motions starting at base of neck. Shampoo hair when necessary. This varies from individual to individual. However often you shampoo use a good soap and rinse very very well.

Once a week try a homemade hot oil treatment. Massage baby oil or olive oil into scalp. Wrap hair in towel wrung out in hot water. Cover with dry towel to retain heat. Soap hair three times and rinse well.

If the hair does not respond, consult your family doctor.

Today's Women

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

What does one call one's mother-in-law?

By ANN RUDY

There's never been much question about what to call your mother-in-law if she wasn't around, but what do you call her to her face?

"Mother" has always seemed to me a word reserved for one's own. I mean, I might be crazy over my mother-in-law, but she could never compete with my childhood images of mama at the back door handing out hot buttermilk biscuits to me and my neighborhood pals. And it wasn't her hand that held my five-year-old hand so I could sleep after waking to the terrifying sounds of the local fire engine.

If one waits long enough, and mother-in-law stays in her corner long enough, the marriage may be blessed with children, and then the problem is partially solved by rolling out such benign words as Gaga, Nana and good old Grandma. But for the wife, the mother-in-law is still not her grandma.

And forget instructions to call her whatever makes you comfortable. I feel comfortable with first names, but when I tried it the feeling wasn't mutual. I have a mother-in-law who can smile with one eye and cry with the other, and when I said, "How about another helping of yams, Bertha?" her left eye filled.

So, over the years, I have managed by various methods.

"Ask your mother if she would like more yams," is a good one. Or catch her eye and hold up the yams while raising your eyebrows in question. Try pointing and saying "she" (But don't try this one unless you want to see both eyes fill).

Using names, after all, is simply a way of getting a person's attention, and I've found I can do that by hitting a pan with a spoon, blowing a police whistle or entering a room with my dress on backwards.

Of course it would be a lot easier to just say "Bertha," but life isn't always that simple.

So when my son marries I'll remember to tell his wife whatever she wants to call me is just fine as long as it isn't too formal, too flippant, too phoney or too impersonal. And I never would have known that if it wasn't for what's-her-name.

Stiff hands don't always mean arthritis

Many people mistakenly think they have arthritis because their hands are stiff when they wake up in the morning.

This is more likely to be fibrositis, which affects the structures around the joints, but not the joints themselves.

I'd like to do my own decorating, but it's all so confusing... where do I start?

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS Feelings need to be shared

Dear Dorothy:

I have a teacher who tells me I have a terrible attitude toward my school work. My parents say I have a split personality. What's making them say this about me? — B. G.

Dear B. G.:

Your teacher — together with teachers, everywhere — is being challenged more today than ever before. Her responsibilities are greater, her efforts are thankless, and her patience is being tried.

Try to understand the pressures which cause her to speak out without thinking. By the same measure, she must try to understand you. Your real feelings are locked deep inside, seen in your vertical to backward writing. So your outward image is one of indifference and unconcern.

You take pride in your accomplishments, seen in your moderately tall t's, and you do want to please your parents and teachers. Your greatest need is for praise and encouragement.

You are, inwardly, begging for attention and acceptance, but not even your parents suspect this. Your feelings are very deep, seen in the pressure of your writing. You share them with nobody. They are yours ... alone. You view life in relation to yourself, simply because you feel that YOU are the only one who cares about you.

You give up easily, seen in the very short downstrokes in g and y. You reason that, if you are not important to others, what's the use of trying? You have a fine mind, seen in the well-developed m's and n's, but your fear of not being accepted slows you down. You ARE important to your parents ... more important than life. They are desperate to know how to break through the cold veneer of your personality.

Try hard to blend more into your family circle. Go to your parents with your joys and sorrows. Let them share your laughter and tears.

What they don't know, they can't understand. So, you must break the barrier. — D. J.

ELECTRIC WINDOW HAZARD

Electric car windows can be a great convenience - but they also present a potential danger to small children. Cases are known where children, when left alone in a parked car, have been choked to death by playing with individually-operated switches. There is that overwhelming urge to experiment with the power windows when left alone, or a companion might accidentally close the window on the other youngster's neck.

Fortunately, this hazard can be childproofed [not to mention pet-proofed] at a relatively low cost. The solution is simply a matter of rerouting the power window wiring through the ignition switch. This way, when the switch is turned off, the windows become inoperative and harmless. But you must remember to take the keys with you when leaving children alone in a parked car.

This danger pertains only to older cars. This change has already been made in cars now being built.

William B. Rice Eventide Home Marks 50th Anniversary Sunday

The William B. Rice Eventide Home is 50 years old Sunday.

The Home, which received its charter April 28, 1924, is a residence for the elderly in a spacious neo-colonial brick building complex at 215 Adams St., a family community, not a rest home.

The half-century anniversary will be observed by ceremonies Sunday at 2 p.m., including remarks by Mayor Walter J. Hannon, former Mayor Thomas

S. Burgin, and Mrs. Donald Cunningham, president of the board of directors.

Awards will be presented for service to the Home and the following week there will be an open house to enable various senior citizens groups to tour the buildings and grounds.

The Home was founded as "The Eventide Home of Quincy, Massachusetts" by Dr. Elmon R. Johnson and funded originally by cash subscriptions and gifts from the estate of Inez L. Dunbar and from Richard D. Chase.

It was barely a year old when trustees of the estate of shoe manufacturer William B. Rice endowed it for $350,000 and the name was changed to the William B. Rice Eventide Home.

A year after that, Mrs. William B. Rice offered her home at 215 Adams St. as a "temporary" home and the first three residents of the home moved into the building in July 1926.

Currently about 50 residents live in the home, which includes a fully equipped infirmary and is financed by income from the endowment, private bequests and assets accepted from residents.

Money is raised and special programs are arranged by auxiliaries in Quincy and Braintree. Mrs. Isabel Edwards, president of the Quincy Auxiliary, will be one of the speakers at the Sunday program.

Summer Session At QJC Starts June 3

The third annual consecutive Summer Session at Quincy Junior College will begin Monday, June 3, announces Dean Richard Mula, Director.

In addition to the perennial courses in the humanities, natural sciences, and the social and behavioral sciences, the program this summer will offer studies in environmental science, photography, art, ceramics, pottery, secretarial workshop, witchcraft, Chinese philosophy, speed reading, pre-calculus, real estate, early childhood education, a workshop for women resuming their education, and numerous courses in business and secretarial studies.

With the lowest tuition and registration fees in this region, Quincy Junior College offers credit-free courses in skills and studies for enjoyment and provides college students an opportunity to accelerate their studies at their convenience.

Finding Silver Linings In The Energy Crisis

By Philip J. Lawrence
President
COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Haverhill
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

At the risk of sounding like a proponent of the silver-lining school of homespun philosophers, we would like to point out that some positive values are coming out of the energy crisis.

We should be forgiven for seeing the crisis in terms of what it is teaching people about more careful financial management and husbandry of resources. Preaching thrift, after all, is our business.

Look what is happening around the country:

- Some families are discovering that they can get along with two cars instead of three, or one instead of two. They are learning what it costs per mile to own and operate an automobile and are a bit shocked by their discovery.

- They are taking better care of their cars for better efficiency and lower cost - getting them tuned up, maintaining proper pressure in their tires, keeping them properly balanced and regularly rotated, checking batteries, and driving moderate speeds for less fuel consumption.

- They are learning how to get more for their food money and are creatively preparing nutritious meals at less cost than formerly required for accustomed eating patterns.

- They are shoring up their homes against winter cold, discovering sources of draft they formerly ignored, having their heating plants inspected for maximal efficiency, insulating attics and sealing them off for the cold months, installing storm windows, closing window draperies and lowering window shades at night to reduce radiative heat loss.

- They are turning off electric lights, TV and radio sets, and record players when not needed or used. Even the children are playing the game of conserving energy.

- Aware that heavy frost on refrigerators and freezers is an insulator that defeats their purposes, they are defrosting these appliances with greater regularity.

- They are conserving the energy required to supply hot water by taking showers instead of tubful baths and are repairing leaky water faucets. They have learned that a leak of one drop per second adds up to about 650 gallons per year.

In these and other ways, Americans are discovering how to cope with the energy crisis. By the same means, they are also taking the steps necessary to curb inflation. Confining spending and "making do" are the normal responses to rising prices in a free market. Consumers tend to economize, to cut the fat out of their budgets.

National reports indicate that Americans are cooperating in this better husbandry of the country's energy resources. They should. It's in their own self-interest to do so.

Hearing Today On Dredging Of Yacht Clubs Basin

The Division of Waterways of the State Department of Public Works will hold a hearing today [Thursday] in the State House on several local priority items, including the dredging of the basin around the Wollaston and Squantum Yacht Clubs.

Said Rep. William D. Delahunt [D-Quincy] in a letter urging local officials to attend the hearing:

"The channel between these two yacht clubs had become so filled that dredging is required if pleasure boats are to have access at other than high tide."

Delahunt pointed out that the project would be underwritten for 75 per cent of the total cost by the state and "if the city of Quincy does not take advantage of the state funding such monies will go elsewhere."

Performance South Series

'Southern Route', Aesop's Fables To Be Presented At Atlantic Junior

"The Southern Route", a play, and Aesop's Fables in dance are coming to Atlantic Junior High School next week as part of the Performance South series of the Metropolitan Cultural Alliance.

Aesop's Fables will highlight a program of family entertainment by the Concert Dance Company Sunday [April 28] at 2 p.m.

Several other works from the Company's repertory will be performed, including "For Betty", choreographed by Bill Evans of the Utah Repertory Dance Theatre. Bill Evans and Greg Lizenberry of the Utah Dance Theatre, have both served as artists-in-residence with the Concert Dance Company this fall, and Lizenberry will work with the Company again for the month of May.

The "Fables", enacted in mime and dance, will include "The Wind, the Moon, and the Stars", "The Lion and the Mouse", "The Fox with No Tail", "The Lion, the Fox, and the Donkey", "The Tortoise and the Hare" and several other favorites.

"The Southern Route", a play about a traffic jam that lasts a year is the final production of the 1973-74 season for the Cambridge Ensemble and the final production of the season at the Metropolitan Cultural Alliance series of performance events.

"The Southern Route" is based on "La Autopista del Sur", a short story by Julio Cortazar, author of the well-known movie, "Blow Up".

The original play is created through improvisation and modern theater techniques by the actors and Ensemble director, Joann Green.

Miss Green, considered by Boston critics to be one of the most innovative directors in Boston theater, is best known for her imaginative productions of Peter Handke's "Calling for Help" and "I Came Into The World", Mayakovsky's "A Tragedy" and the children's show "Tales of Chelm".

Tickets, for both performances, are $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for students and senior citizens. There is a 50-cent discount if parents and children attend together. Reservations may be made by calling 773-3290.

Code Of Ethics

A Realtor Is Much More Than A Real Estate Broker

"A Realtor is more than a real estate broker," says Realtor Virginia Crismond, President of the Quincy-South Shore Board of Realtors.

"The term is a registered trademark and an indicator of special qualifications because only a member of the National Association of Realtors can identify himself by that term."

Reviewing the code of ethics during Realtor Week, Mrs. Crismond points out that it was one of the first such codes adopted in the history of American business. "Under it's articles," she said, "Realtors pledge fair treatment and the benefit of their total real estate knowledge to both parties of a contract, the buyer and seller."

Mrs. Crismond also praised local Realtors leadership over the years in furthering the institution of private property ownership and speaking out on issues favorable to the ownership of property.

Realtor Week [April 21-26] is not only the time to honor the American Realtor, but also a time to point out the Realtors obligation to all clients - buyer and seller, Mrs. Crismond stressed.

"Realtors," she added, "contribute greatly to America's prosperity. Realtors promote property and home ownership, both by business in which they are engaged and by support of favorable legislation. This has made home ownership possible for millions of families who could not previously afford it."

AQUARIUS ESTATES on South St. will look like this when Phase II and III, two three-story buildings containing 56 luxury condominiums, is completed by the developer, Richard J. Buccheri of R.J.B. Builders and Developers Inc. The complex will include underground parking, a swimming pool, tennis courts and a clubhouse. Selling prices will range from $31,500 to $45,500 for 25 one-bedroom and 31 two-bedroom units. Aquarius I is a 20-unit condominium also developed by Buccheri.

'It's The Worst Way'

Selling Your House?

Don't 'Do It Yourself!'

If you want to sell your house in the worst way, sell it yourself — that's the worst way," says Realtor Virginia Crismond, President of the Quincy-South Shore Board of Realtors.

Mrs. Crismond explains that too often homeowners seek advice and opinions from unqualified "experts" in selling their homes.

"Free advice is worth what you pay for it, and in many cases a lot less. The real job of selling your home is one of strong salesmanship and merchandising," she added.

"Selling your home requires the advice of an expert, a Realtor," notes Joseph Doran of Quincy. He points out that the current 1974 Realtor Week theme is: "The Realtor — A Voice For America's Property Owners."

"By representing and working for all property owners, we insure buyers and sellers of real estate fair, ethical and professional advice," Mrs. Crismond concluded.

Realtor Week will continue through April 26. All area Realtors are participating.

ENGINEERING HONORS -- Dr. Harl P. Aldrich [center] of Haley & Aldrich, Cambridge engineering firm, receives congratulations from Paul G. Rucknam Jr., vice president of the Consulting Engineers Council of New England, on winning an award for Kanavos Enterprises of Dedham for its geotechnical study of the Quincy Quarries. Looking on is Frederick M. Ginsbern of Architectural Concepts and Planning Inc., of Boston.

Quarry Geotechnical Study Wins Engineering Honors

A geotechnical study of the Quincy quarries has won runnerup honors for the Cambridge engineering firm of Haley & Aldrich in the annual Engineering Excellence competition of the Consulting Engineers Council of New England.

The Haley & Aldrich entry, which will compete in a national contest in Washington in late May, was made for Kanavos Enterprises of Dedham, developer of a proposed planned unit development project in the area.

In the competition, each entrant was required to demonstrate how it solved a complex engineering problem through the use of unique or extremely skillful design.

The problem that confronted Haley & Aldrich involved the many, old granite quarries that had been filled with rubble on the 73-acre development site, the location of which had never been accurately mapped.

Since Kanavos planned to build a residential community on the site and the foundations had to be firmly placed on sound bedrock, it was necessary to locate and map the old quarries.

Kanavos asked the engineering firm to locate accurately the buried quarries, determine how close to the quarries heavy structures could be built and map the thickness of rubble fill over bedrock in the buildable areas.

Haley & Aldrich used acoustic sounding to find the depth of bedrock, setting a microphone in a drill hole to detect sound waves - produced by drilling from the ground surface.

The technique, used for the first time in the United States in large area exploration, enabled mapping of the quarries at a cost of less than a tenth that of the usual test boring method.

ARTHUR STIVALETTA [right] of Dedham examines plans for a $25 million, 100-acre development in Bellingham, which would have 850 apartments including condominiums, housing for the elderly and conventional apartments. Development also would include a nine-hole golf course, a shopping mall and preservation of a 10-acre, spring-fed lake for swimming, boating and skating. Looking over the plans with him is Peter T. True of True Associates, Dedham, who handled the sale of 70 acres of land to Stivaletta.

Early care conserves energy

By JAMES M. WOODARD

This is a good time to plan an expanded program of early spring housecleaning for your home. The "expanded" bit should include special measures to conserve energy and prevent needless depreciation.

Energy-conserving steps could include weather-stripping door frames and windows and adding needed insulation in inner walls and ceilings. When warmer days arrive, close the fireplace damper when your fireplace is not in use and install awnings or other sun-protectors to cut down air conditioning needs.

Also, as days and nights warm up, be sure to lower your thermostat setting. For every degree (F) lower your setting, you'll save 2 to 3 per cent on fuel. Such steps not only conserve energy but save money and reduce depreciation on furnaces and air conditioning units.

Other steps taken now to prevent future depreciation could save major repair costs and inconveniences. One housing expert who has recently conducted a study of effective depreciation — prevention measures suggests homeowners start by getting better acquainted with their property.

Campaign Kick-Off Reception Held For James Papile

The Committee-to-elect James Papile state representative recently sponsored a campaign kick-off reception for the candidate at the Fore River Club House. An estimated 500 people attended.

Chairman was Peter Doucette. Ticket chairman was the candidate's brother, Ralph Papile. Music was by the Paul Gordon Trio of Quincy with Alfred DeVincentis as master of ceremonies.

Others serving on the committee were Sadie Papile, Alfred Kelly, Patty O'Donnell, Leo Papile, Edward Faherty, James Moran and Barbara Wigmore.

Commenting on the new representative district, Papile said.

"I see the new district as a new opportunity, a chance to deal effectively with mass transportation, taxes, industrial growth, pollution and inadequate state services. The new district can bring a new unity of purpose between Quincy and North Weymouth by drawing upon the resources of these strong communities to bring this area's needs squarely before the state legislature.

Papile seeks the vacant First Norfolk District seat.

Town River Project Will Not Be Around-The-Clock

The Army Corps of Engineers has promised that dredging and dynamiting in the Town River will not begin until after Labor Day and it will not be a 24-hour a day project as it has been in the past.

A representative of the Corps of Engineers fielded questions Monday night from about 50 Germantown residents at a meeting in St. Boniface Church hall called by City Councillor Leo J. Kelly.

Most of the questions involved noise pollution, damage from blasting and land erosion possibly arising from the dredging and from dynamiting of a rock ledge deep in Town River.

The spokesman said work will be done between the hours of 7 a.m. and 5 p.m. although the Corps has asked the Quincy Police Department for an extension from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The meeting also was attended by Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] and Council President and Sen. Arthur H. Tobin [D-Quincy].

T. David Raftery Named To Planning Board

Mayor Walter J. Hannon announces the appointment of Atty. T. David Raftery, of 48 Norton Rd, Merrymount, to the Planning Board.

He replaces Alfred Helfrich who recently retired from the Board after serving for the past 14 years.

Raftery is a practicing trial attorney in Quincy and Professor of Law at Boston State College. He is also an assistant district attorney for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

In making the appointment, Hannon said: "Mr. Raftery has the necessary qualifications and community awareness to make decisions on physical development and land use in Quincy which would benefit the community."

He is presently Chairman of the Capital Improvements Committee, but is expected to resign from that position.

Raftery is married to the former Gail Owen and has three children.

Quincy, North In Fast Starts

The Quincy and North Quincy baseball teams are off to fast starts in their final Greater Boston League seasons with each boasting a 3-1 league record following wins Monday.

The intra-city rivals clash for the first time next Monday at 3:15 at Adams Field but each has some tough games before that meeting. Friday Quincy plays at Malden and North hosts Everett at Adams. Next Wednesday Quincy will be at Everett and North will host Somerville at Adams.

Last Monday North rebounded from its first loss at Medford and out-slugged Malden, 10-8, breaking an 8-8 tie with two runs in the eighth after Malden had rallied for three in the seventh to tie the count.

Tom Clifford won his third game in relief of John Lawlor. After a slow start, the rangy right-hander mowed Malden down in the final two innings.

Jack Rabel and Dennis McGuire had two hits each for the Raiders.

While Charlie Bunker's North team was making its overall record, 4-1, Bud Mosher's Quincy team won its third straight league game, 5-4, at Peabody, with starter Paul Craig winning with relief help from sophomore Steve Infascelli.

Mike Varrasso and Mike McKenzie had three hits each for the Presidents, who are 4-2 overall.

Last Saturday Quincy blanked Haverhill, 3-0, on Mark Dwyer's four-hitter, making three first inning runs stand up.

North suffered its first loss, 5-1, at Medford, despite a three-hitter by Clifford. His wildness and some costly overthrows cost North the game.

Last week North started its league season with wins over league newcomers, Haverhill and Peabody.

The Raiders, following a 1-0 non-league win over B.C. High, opened its league schedule with a 3-2 win over Haverhill as Tim Clifford pitched his second straight win. He struck out 16 to give him 29 for his two games. He pitched a five-hitter against Haverhill after a two-hitter against B.C. High.

He shut out Haverhill until the eighth when the losers scored both runs. North had scored one in the sixth and two in the seventh. Clifford also had two of his team's five hits.

Later in the week the Raiders exploded for 17 hits to wallop Peabody, 12-5, and capped their scoring with five runs in the eighth.

Bunker used three pitchers, John Lawlor, the starter and winner, Rich Marino and Rich Befara and all did well.

Frank Miceli exploded for five hits including a double, Jim McCabe had four including two doubles. Lawlor and Jack Rabel had three apiece.

Quincy, which had been 1-1 in non-league games, bounced back from a 6-0 opening league loss at Somerville to defeat Chelsea, 5-4, last week.

The Presidents scored three runs in the eighth to come from behind and nip Chelsea.

John Riley, Paul Craig and Frank DiSalvio pitched for Quincy with DiSalvio the winner in relief. Although touched up for 12 hits, they were strong in the clutch.

DiSalvio, Mike Varrasso, Roy Pettinelli and Mark Austin all had two hits for Quincy.

In the league opener Quincy was held to five hits at Somerville and the Highlanders scored four runs in the first inning.

Craig was the starting pitcher and he was relieved by Riley. Mark Dwyer had two of the Presidents' hits.

"We just have to start hitting," Mosher said. "We are batting only about .165 and need some punch to go with some fine defense and adequate pitching."

QJC Promising

The Quincy Junior College baseball team, winner of the Mass. Junior College Conference playoffs the last two years, is off to a promising start this spring with a 2-1 conference record.

With the addition of some strong new teams, Coach Dave Burke was not overly optimistic about the Colleagues repeating, but he was pleased with the performances of his players in the early games.

Following a 2-1 loss to Emerson, QJC came back to topple Graham Junior College, 4-1, and defeat Bryant & Stratton, 6-5.

In their latest outing against B & S, the Colleagues made four hits count as they took advantage of some key B & S errors.

Charles Genovese, making his first pitching start, went the route with a six-hitter, having only one bad inning, the sixth, when B & S scored three runs.

He struck out nine and walked six.

"I hadn't planned on him as a starter and this adds some punch to our staff," Burke said. "I felt we were a little weak in pitching and extra pitching is always welcome."

Skip Haddix drove in three Quincy runs and Lou Maggio drove in a pair.

In the win over Graham, QJC scored all four runs in the fourth and pitcher Jimmy Rogers hurled a two-hitter, striking out four and walking only one. Haddix had two of Quincy's six hits and Maggio hit a long triple.

In the tight loss to Emerson, John Sullivan hurled a three-hitter, struck out eight and walked four and blanked the strong Emerson team, which had won its previous game, 16-0, scoreless until the sixth inning. Quincy had taken a 1-0 lead in the second. Joe Daly had two of Quincy's four hits.

Bantam A's Eliminate Hull

Tommy Cahill scored two goals and goalie Jeff Nord chalked up his first playoff shutout, his 11th of the season, Saturday as the Quincy Bantam "A" team walloped Hull, 8-0, to sweep their Bay Colony Hockey Association playoff series in two straight games.

Quincy whipped Hull 4-1 Wednesday in the opening game of the best of three series.

The Bantams were scheduled to meet Columbia of South Boston Wednesday night at 9:30 p.m. in the opening game of the semi-final series. Columbia eliminated Brockton also in two straight, winning Saturday night 4-1.

The other Quincy goal scorers in the 8-0 rout of Hull were Brian Watts, Brian Bertoni, Mark Giordani, John Mitchell, Mike Smith and Jimmy Shea.

Assists were credited to Matt Schaeffer, Dave Previte (2), Richie Troy, Rick Dannar, Mitchell (2), Bertoni and Shea.

Watts, Cahill, Shea and Giordani were the goal getters in the opening game against Hull while Bertoni, Previte, Smith and Mike McGrath drew assists.

The Bantam "B" team drew a bye in its opening playoff round.

Quincy, North Lose To Strong Haverhill, Peabody

From all indications, newcomers Haverhill and Peabody, will be the powers of the Greater Boston Track League.

Peabody last week handed North Quincy its first loss in four meets, by a convincing 83-47 score. Haverhill earlier had ended Quincy's 21-league meet win streak with an easy 90-41 win. The Presidents had won 27 of their last 28 league meets and won three straight league titles.

North Coach Lou Tozzi, whose Raiders had defeated Chelsea, 71-60, in their league opener after two impressive non-league wins, didn't feel the loss to Peabody hurt their progress a bit. "This Peabody team is one of the best in the state and the times were tremendous for this time of the year," he said. "We have a lot of sophomores and our boys did really well in a losing cause."

Sophomore Bart Petracca and Junior Artie Barrett remained unbeaten in four meets with wins in the mile and two-mile respectively.

The only other individual winner for North was Joe Marinelli in the shot put, while Geoff Hennessey, coming off an injury, was second in the high hurdles with a fine 15.9 timing, the second fastest at North. The school record is 15.8 seconds.

North's relay team of Paul and Brian Doherty, Phil Robinson and Paul O'Donnell also won.

Quincy Coach Tom Hall was not too disappointed in his team's first loss in four years as he had predicted before the season started that Haverhill has probably the strongest team in the state.

"I can't be too disappointed because we showed well with some fine performances," he said. "They just have a number of really excellent athletes and they appeared in mid-season form already."

Quincy's only winners were Layne Watkins in the 100, John MacFarlane in the triple jump and Art DiLoreto in the high jump. Pres Carroll also did well with seconds in the low hurdles and long jump.

In North's league win over Chelsea Paul O'Donnell was a double winner, taking the 220 and javelin.

Paul Doherty won the 100, Petracca the mile, Artie Barrett the two-mile, Brian Doherty the long jump, Neil McPartlin the triple jump and Marinelli the discus.

The Raiders had opened their season with an easy 87-23 win over Don Bosco with McPartlin setting a school record in the triple jump as Tozzi had predicted he would. North swept four of the 12 events.

They followed up with a 74-55 win over Cambridge Latin in a meet which saw North's sophomores score 46 points.

Rep. Joseph Brett To Seek 9th Term

Rep. Joseph E. Brett announces he will seek a 9th term in the Third Norfolk District in this fall's state election.

In making his announcement he said:

"Now nearing the completion of my eighth term in the legislature, I feel that the citizens of Quincy will want to continue to keep a voice of experience on Beacon Hill to represent them during the next two years.

"During the past 16 years as a Representative and, before that, as a City Councillor, I have always done my best to represent the people of Quincy in a most honorable and upright manner. Perhaps I haven't been able to please all of the people all of the time but I have acted in accordance with my conscience and judgement after considering varied points of view.

"Because of the redistricting of the legislative districts which has been mandated by law, each legislative district will now have only one representative whereas, formerly, some of us served in double and triple districts which had two or three representatives.

"As a result of the redistricting, the Third Norfolk District will no longer contain Ward 4 in West Quincy and a large part of Ward 5, in Wollaston. The Third Norfolk District, as now constructed, will contain the formerly numbered Precincts 4, 5, and 9 of Ward 5; and Precincts 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7 of the former Ward 6.

"Unfortunately, it is expected that there will be some confusion in the minds of the voters this year as the ward and precinct numbers being used in the state election do not coincide in many instances with the new ward and precinct numbers adopted for the city election last fall.

"I wish to assure the citizens of Quincy that I shall continue to serve their interests to the best of my abilities and I will appreciate their support in the forthcoming primary and election."

More Backing Than Opposition For Squantum Site

City Councillor John J. Quinn, Chairman of the Council's Finance Committee, opened the three and one half hour hearing at 7:30 p.m. In all, 138 people recorded themselves in favor of the site and recorded themselves as opposed.

People who came forth to speak in favor of the Squantum site included former candidates for public office, an elementary school principal, North Quincy High School students and concerned parents and taxpayers.

J. Thomas Mullaney, former School Committee candidate and Chairman of the School Building Needs Committee appointed by Mayor Walter J. Hannon a year ago said that his committee voted 8-2 in favor of the Squantum site.

The Building Committee listed certain stipulations in its support of the site including that Central Junior High and the Mass Fields School be returned to the tax rolls, and Mullaney called for a "functional school—not an educational Taj Mahal."

School Committeeman Charles T. Sweeney said the Committee is unanimously in favor of the Squantum site because the school "will lose accreditation unless we have a viable working plan" for a new building.

He added, "Under no circumstances will we build a Taj Mahal—the Taj Mahal is a tomb. We will build a living, breathing vital part of the city—and we ought to get it damn quick."

Proponents of the site included the Atlantic Home-School Association, North Quincy High's Student Council President John Flynn of 36 Warren Ave., Wollaston; Mrs. Daniel J. Buckley, 75 Rawson

Rd., president of the Mass Fields School Parent Teachers Organization; Miss Wilma Shields, head of the Science Department at North; Audrey Cutler, 101 Willow Ave., Wollaston, associate member of the School Committee from North; Squantum School P.T.O.; Montclair School P.T.A.; Michael Moran of the Parker School Advisory Board; Eugene W. Creedon, 52 Kendall St., North Quincy and principal of Parker School; and Gail Hennessy, representing the Atlantic Junior High School Student Council.

Those opposing construction of a new high school objected to the additional $4 to next year's tax increase estimated at somewhere between $9 and $15.

Mrs. Grace E. Saphir, 921 East Squantum St., Squantum, candidate for mayor in last December's city election said, "We do not need a high school on the perimeter of the city unless we are going to share it with other cities. But charity begins at home...let's take care of our own first."

She called further for an upgrading of the existing building and a new addition to the gymnasium.

School Committeeman Frank Anselmo said, "I am not opposed to a new North Quincy High School, but we must put things where they belong. The School Committee deferred $208,000 from its budget to help the City Council. This means that crumbling walls at Snug Harbor School, floors that are dangerous to certain schools...we must postpone fixing those."

"I am for a new high school but not now. If we defer repairs on existing schools then we must defer construction of a new school, at least until the interest rate comes down."

Mrs. Dorothy Kelly, 108 Davis St., Wollaston and Secretary of the Wollaston Parks Association said, "If you add the $4 tax increase for the new school to last week's estimated $9 increase, that's $13 increased. How do we know that by the time the school is done the cost might have increased to $14 or even $25 million?"

"The plain homeowner can't afford all these increases. I say we should renovate."

Final decision on the Squantum site awaits decision by the City Council's Finance Committee, which will be made "as soon as possible," according to Chairman Quinn.

$113,245 In Wiring

A total of 126 permits for wiring estimated to cost $113,245 were issued by the Department of Wire Inspection during the month of March, it was reported by William H. Pitts, wire inspector, this week.

The department collected fees of $952.50, made 185 inspections and noted 16 defects.

Want 'Substantially More'

City Employees To Seek Pay Raises Much Bigger Than $300-To-$500

By TOM HENSHAW

Pay raises substantially more than the $300 to $500 being talked about around City Hall may be sought for at least 600 of the city's 2000 employees.

But the union that is proposing the higher figures may not represent those employees when their negotiations begin.

The $300 to $500 report was published for the first time last week in the Quincy Sun's story on the 1974 tax rate.

John Keefe, president of the Quincy City Employees Union, disagreed.

"In view of the tremendous rise in the cost of living, city employees would never accept a $300 to $500 pay raise," he said. "We will seek substantially more than that."

However, Keefe's union is in the midst of a struggle with the Service Employees International Union, Local 285, to see who will bargain for the 600 hospital, library and clerical workers.

There was a meeting Wednesday with the State Labor Relations Commission to discuss arrangements for an election to choose between the two.

There are some 11 bargaining units that represent Quincy city employees.

In addition to the disputing unions, which contain four of the bargaining units, there are:

The Police Betterment Association, the Superior Officers Association, the Laborers' International Union, the Massachusetts Nurses

Shipyards Strike 47 Days Old

Union Officials In Washington To 'Get Negotiations Going'

Shipyards workers union brass was in Washington Wednesday to meet with the Massachusetts congressional delegation in an effort to get negotiations underway again in the 47-day old strike at General Dynamics Quincy Shipyards.

The strike has been deadlocked since March 16 over a company demand for what it calls "productivity improvements" and what the union sees as the "shipyard mechanic concept," or jack of all trades.

Arthur Batson, president of Local 5, said the union was meeting with the congressmen "to see if they can bring pressure on the company to negotiate." Negotiations were broken off for the last time April 9.

Union officials who went to Washington included: Batson; George McCall, union trustee and president of the Norfolk Labor Council; Tony Svizzero, New England regional director of the union; Joe Sullivan, president of the Mass State Labor Council.

James Laughlin, secretary-treasurer of the Mass

State Labor Council; Eugene McCabe, president of the Shipbuilding Workers National Union; and Frank Derwin, vice president of the national union.

They were scheduled to meet at breakfast with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy [D-Mass] and Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton, Gerry Studds [D-Cohasset] and Thomas P. [Tip] O'Neill [D-Cambridge].

Also invited to the meeting were Sen. Edward W. Brooke [R-Mass], Congresswoman Margaret Heckler [R-Wellesley]

HERE COMES THE BRIDE - right down the street. Miss Claire Jermyn of 265 Franklin St., South Quincy, was married to Richard W. Testa of Elva Rd, Weymouth Saturday at First Presbyterian Church. Because the church is just across the street from her home, the bridal party decided to walk. From the left are the father of the bride, Clarence Jermyn, the bride, Deborah Brow, maid of honor, and bridesmaids, Lynn Jermyn, Joy Jermyn, Mrs. Penny Testa and Ann Testa. Following the wedding, the party went to the Morrisette Legion Post for the reception. This time, though, they travelled by limousine.

GOOD OLD DAYS - Quincy High School students observing nostalgic "50's Day", cram into telephone booth on Coddington St., recreating one of the fads of the 1950's. Students wore bobby sox, saddle shoes, bulky sweaters and motorcycle jackets to get into the appropriate mood. Those were the good old days?

Eligible For A Tax Exemption ?

Now that you've been clobbered in the bank account by the real estate tax man whose latest deadline was Wednesday [May 1] perhaps it's time to scout around and see if you can get a little of it back.

State law provides that certain classes of senior citizens, disabled persons, widows, minors, veterans and poor folks qualify for exemptions or abatements of several thousand dollars off their assessments.

As a general rule, the person qualifying must have owned and occupied the house on the previous Jan. 1; he or she must have been a legal resident of the state for a certain number of years; and the whole estate must be under a certain valuation.

In the case of veterans, discharges must be other than dishonorable.

Here is a brief general survey of the kind of people who qualify for exemptions and abatements. More specific details may be obtained from the City

Assessor's office in City Hall.

- Widows, persons over 70 years of age and minors whose fathers are deceased. Maximum exemption: $2,000 off the assessment or $175 off the tax, whichever is greater.

- "Persons who by reason of age, infirmity and poverty are in the judgement of the assessors unable to contribute fully toward the public charges." Maximum exemption: "Any portion of the estates," as decided by the assessors.

- Veterans of wars as specified by law and the wives, widows or parents of such veterans. Veterans must have 10 per cent or more war service-connected disability, or have served in the Spanish War, or hold the Purple Heart. Maximum exemption: $2,000 off the assessment or $175 off the tax, whichever is greater.

- Widows of World War I veterans. Maximum exemption: $2,000 or $175.

- Veterans who suffered

Montillio Bakes 3,000-Pound Kentucky Derby Cake

Quincy has been synonymous with shipbuilding for many years. Now it's known for "cakebuilding", too.

A 3,000-pound cake was scheduled to leave Quincy by refrigerated truck Wednesday at 11 a.m. for Louisville, Ky., where it will be the centerpiece at the 100th birthday dinner of the Kentucky Derby.

The cake, built in two sections of 1,500-pounds apiece, was prepared by Quincy baker Ernest J. Montillio at his place of business at 29 Chestnut St.

It will be cut and distributed Friday evening at a Louisville dinner attended by 2,000 persons, including Princess Margaret of Great Britain and her husband, Lord Snowden.

Work Starts On New Quincy Savings Bank Branch

With the demolition of the Fireplace Restaurant at the corner of Washington St. and Southern Artery, Quincy Point construction is now underway for a new branch office of the Quincy Savings Bank.

A December 1974 or January, 1975 opening is planned, according to bank President Charles A. Pearce.

The developers are Development Concepts Inc., and the architects are Kenneth F.

Parry Associates, Inc., both Quincy based firms.

Attending demolition ceremonies were Mayor Walter Hannon, Council President Arthur Tobin and Ward 2 Councillor Clifford Marshall.

The building will cover 3,600 square feet and include: six teller stations, safe deposit boxes, a drive-up window, a managers office and a new accounts area. Ample off street parking is also being provided.

Commenting on the decision to build this office Pearce said:

"Our confidence in Quincy's future growth is evidenced with the bank having two offices under construction at the same time. Of equal importance is that these new offices are integral parts of Quincy Savings continuing program to provide better and more convenient banking facilities for both present and future customers."

To Cut Burglaries Police Launch City -Wide 'Operation Neighborhood Watch'

The Police Department's Operation Neighborhood Watch has proven to be so successful in North Quincy and Wollaston that it's going citywide, starting today.

Neighborhood Watch is a program in which residents organize to keep an eye on each other's homes and eliminate those situations which are potential invitations to crime.

William Fetting, community education specialist for the Police Department, said that since the pilot Neighborhood Watch program went into effect Jan. 1, in North Quincy and Wollaston there has been a noticeable decline in burglaries there.

Some of the decline could also be attributed to Operation ID, the year-old program under which residents stamp their valuables with Social Security numbers to make them difficult to fence, Fetting said.

Twenty three Neighborhood Watch groups have been formed in North Quincy and Wollaston.

"The apprehension of offenders is still the responsibility of the police," said Police Chief Francis X. Finn.

"The program encourages citizens to aid the police by reporting not only actual crime, but also suspicious persons, noises or incidents which may indicate the presence of criminal activity in the neighborhood.

"Many of the crimes that do occur in the city might never happen if citizens take the time to report suspicious activity and participate in the Neighborhood Watch program.

"More criminals will be apprehended, more stolen goods recovered, and above all more crime will be prevented."

Information on how to start a Neighborhood Watch in your neighborhood is available by calling the Police Department's Planning and Research Division at 479-1212, extension 378.

McParland declined to comment on progress in negotiations.

Keefe's rival, Thomas Kennedy of the Service Employees International, was not available for comment.

the equivalent of a 92 cent hike in the tax rate.

Quincy Sun sources predicted last week that the 1974 Quincy tax rate would be $163.70 or $166.50 if an expected $300 wage increase for employees were added. The 1973 rate was $154.30.

Over 5,000 Quincy Families In Need Of Housing Assistance

More than 5,000 Quincy families need some form of housing, rental or mortgage assistance, according to the 1974 Report on Housing Needs and Programs, released by the State Department of Community Affairs.

The report, which is the result of a three year survey by the DCA's Office of Community Affairs, placed Quincy's need at 2,463 units of elderly housing and 2,984 units of family or mixed housing, a total of 5,447.

The report said about 400,000 Massachusetts households, nearly one of every four families, need help. About 71 per cent could be served by rent or mortgage supplement, the report said, and 29 per cent by rehabilitated or new units.

YOUNG PICKETS, children of striking workers at the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard, march outside the home of a yard supervisor who the union claims has been doing work formerly done by strikers. Shipyard officials filed a complaint of harassment with the National Labor Relations Board.

●Issue: North Quincy High School

What Effect Will New NQHS Have On Other Schools?

SHOULDN'T MORE TIME AND EFFORT BE EXPENDED ON LOCATING THE BEST BUILDING SITE FOR A NEW NORTH QUINCY HIGH?

Over the past three years, thousands of man-hours, on the part of the School Administration, the School Committee, the City Council, and, interested citizens have been devoted to researching possible and probable sites for a new high school at the north end of the city.

In the final analysis, only three areas proved acceptable: the site of WMEX radio towers, the Neponset River area, and the old Squantum Naval Air Station land tract.

In narrowing down the field of likely locations, the School Committee considered and rejected, for a variety of reasons, the following sites that were proposed.

Building a new North on or near [Cavanaugh Stadium] the campus of Atlantic Junior looked like a possibility at first glance, but it entailed a number of serious liabilities: piggy-backing of schools, too little acreage, taking of too many homes.

A Hobart Street site required no leveling of houses, but this tract, owned by the Park Department, did lay in the heart of residential territory; it contained unpromising ground [low-drainage retention and deep peat deposits]; and it offered minimal acreage [15 acres].

The Wollaston Golf course, provided it could be acquired from the Norfolk County Commissioners who have earmarked the territory for recreational and open space, would require huge rearrangement of its 35 hilly acres. It was rejected.

Of the three acceptable areas, only two are really in the running, so to speak, because the WMEX site was eventually discarded from consideration by the City Council. The merits of the two contending sites stand about equal, with the balance tipping toward expanses of the Naval Air Station site.

WHAT WILL THE EFFECTS OF A NEW NORTH QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL BE ON THE REST OF THE CITY'S SCHOOLS?

The prospect of erecting a multi-million dollar educational complex at one end of the city may sound extravagant in these financially anxious times. But the citizens of Quincy can hardly charge the School System or the City Council with perpetuating a building boom. The bulk of Quincy's schools — 22 of them — were constructed at well-spaced intervals from 1900 to 1960. Six schoolhouses dated back to the 1800's. Of these, two were phased out last year; two are still fairly operable; and two will have to be completely renovated in the near future [or phased out as school buildings].

At the other end of the time-line, two schools, inescapably needed, have been built in the last 15 years: Quincy Vocational-Technical School in 1967 and Lincoln-Hancock Community School in 1973 - the former serving the whole city, the latter variously servicing the southwest community but with services to be available to the entire city.

Merely from an historical perspective, it seems time for another school building. Granting, then, a new North Quincy High School, whose doors will probably not open until nearly the end of this decade, relief will be forthcoming for the rest of the school system, particularly for the schools built in the 1800's.

Ancient structures like the Massachusetts Fields and Central Junior High School [both built in the nineteenth century and both feeder schools to North] can be emptied of pupils and returned to tax rolls or converted to specialized uses [just as the old Lincoln has become a food commissary and a library services center].

According to one plan of alteration, Atlantic Junior will become, with minor adjustments, a large elementary school; and the old North will fulfill its destiny as a junior high school. In short, a new North will eventually prove to be a boon to the whole system, with space and service facilities, and recreational and athletic facilities that can enhance the entire city.

WHAT WOULD BE THE EFFECTS OF MUNICIPAL FUNDING IF CENTRAL JUNIOR HIGH AND MASSACHUSETTS FIELDS SITES WERE RETURNED TO THE TAX ROLLS?

Central Junior High is situated on 85,348 square feet of land in a Residence B zone on Hancock St. The adjacent land on Hancock St. is zoned Residence C. It appears that the area would have a primary potential for land use as an apartment and/or condominium site. It is estimated that the land would be worth $10, per square foot or approximately $850,000. Between 150 and 180 units of apartments or condominiums could be constructed with a tax realization to the city as follows: 150 units - apartments @ $800 per unit, $120,000 / year.

Does North Quincy really need a new high school?

If so, how critical is the need?

And where should a new high school be built?

All these questions are answered in a position paper called "Issues: North Quincy High School", prepared by the staff of School Superintendent Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon at the request of the Quincy School Committee.

Since the question of a new North Quincy High School concerns all the citizens of Quincy, The Quincy Sun, as a public service, is reprinting the position paper in its entirety.

This is the final of two articles.

150 units - condominiums @ $1,000 per unit, $150,000 / year.

The Hugenhurst Plan for Downtown Development concurs in the above stated land use in that it expresses the need for residential development on the periphery of the downtown area and not in downtown itself.

In summary, returning the site of Central Junior High School to the tax rolls would be equal to a $3.30 reduction on the tax rate initially and a reduction of $.53 per year after the property was developed.

Massachusetts Fields School is situated on 56,953 square feet of land in a Residence A zone on Beach Street. There is approximately 46,000 square feet of land across Willet Street which is owned by the School System. This land is zoned Residence B. It would appear that the primary potential land use for the area would be open space/recreational. The site is completely surrounded by 99% one and two family homes and wherein the 46,000 square feet of land has always been the play area for the neighborhood it is not conceivable that the existing site would revert to a use other than open space.

By closing off Willet Street which separates the two open areas, approximately two and one-half acres of land could be assembled to create a green open area in this highly residential and compacted neighborhood.

WHY NOT A THOROUGH RENOVATION AND EXPANSION OF THE PRESENT NORTH QUINCY HIGH?

This approach to North's critical space problems seems a simple, obvious, and least expensive approach. The School Committee has explored this option from every avenue, or better, from every street - Hunt St., Hancock St., Oliver St., as well as the front lawn at North Quincy High School.

The School Committee has studied these areas adjacent to North Quincy High School as offering potential room for expansion, but it has rejected them for two reasons. All of them entail gouging land out of residential or business areas, not only for building enlargement but also for clear and safe access.

Furthermore, if the present North site were not expanded to at least 14 or 15 acres, which is a bare minimum, there would be no anticipated reimbursement to the city from the State. The SBAB will not approve reimbursement for development on the present site. As for merely renovating the existing building, perhaps even adding levels if possible, expenditures for such a time and money consuming venture would have to be borne entirely by the city.

Chapter 754 of the General Laws stipulates that aid is available for the building of new schools or only if a reconstruction project so transforms a school that it is equivalently a new edifice. Annexes cannot easily be added to, or integrated with, a structure that is already prolonged by two extensive wings. This is not to say that the present North could not be refurbished to qualify as a junior high.

First, North was built to be a junior high. Second, the junior high enrollment figure would be 25-30 percent lower than the high school enrollment. And third, junior high curriculum and athletic requirements are less specialized and elaborate, so that no complete overhaul of classrooms or wholesale replacement of equipment would be called for. The School Building and Assistance Bureau has urged that any plan to add to and renovate North Quincy High School, as a high school, be set aside as impractical and unapprovable.

AREN'T THE PHYSICAL EDUCATION/ATHLETIC FACILITIES AT NORTH ADEQUATE?

No. There are at least three major deficiencies in these facilities at North: they are practically non-existent for girls, they are shoddy or in short measure for all; and they are completely missing in the case of some important sports.

Since the girls do not have their own gymnasium at North, gymnastics for the young ladies are scheduled at Atlantic Junior, thereby cutting into gym time for the Atlantic enrollment. Girls' basketball practice has to be transferred to the Montclair School or Salvation Army gymnasiums. Body-building equipment for the girls is also conspicuous by its absence.

Actually, the exercise facilities for the whole school are woefully inadequate or badly outgrown. The antiquated shower room, for example, is obviously undersized and inefficient. Outdoor fields for track and calisthenics are not to be found. Indoor track is practiced in the corridors. Missing are not only such popular health rooms such as saunas and steam baths, but also training areas for wrestling, boxing, karate, tumbling, squash, handball, fencing - commonplace adjuncts to any modern gym.

Brett Favors New H.S. In Southwest Quincy

Rep. Joseph E. Brett (D-Quincy) suggests that Quincy consider building a third high school somewhere in southwest Quincy instead of constructing a new North Quincy High.

Said Brett in a letter to the City Council:

"Location of a new school in that part of the city would be of great benefit to the students and

As for extra-curricular activities, nearly all the secondary sports [except basketball] must be practiced at considerable distances from the North campus: soccer at Montclair School, rifle at the range in the basement of Atlantic Junior, hockey and tennis at the Boston Harbor Arena, track at Veterans Memorial Stadium, and baseball at Montclair Field.

Transportation from North to other sites for exercise and practice is costly in time and money. New physical education/athletics facilities for North Quincy High School will relieve these transportation problems and provide adequate physical education and athletics facilities on the high school campus, rather than all over the city.

IS THE CONCERN FOR SPACE AT NORTH REALISTIC - HOW DOES SPACE AT NORTH QUINCY HIGH COMPARE WITH HIGH SCHOOLS IN NEIGHBORING COMMUNITIES?

As an educational facility North is not unlike some inner-city schools. But compared to schools in neighboring communities such as Weymouth, Braintree, and Brockton, North does not compare favorably.

Space available to students in newly constructed high schools is on the order of 130 to 150 square feet based on State guidelines. At North we offer our students approximately one-half that space for their learning experiences. The shortage of space at North places serious constraint on the kinds of national experiences that can be offered.

For example, needed but practically non-existent at North are spaces [some highly specialized] for: large group instruction, medium size group instruction, and small group learning experiences in virtually all departments; a career-related capability in all departments; expanded and modern laboratory spaces for industrial arts, home economics, child care, arts and humanities, music; physical education, athletics; guidance space; administration space; faculty offices and conference rooms; resource centers; and library. In short, North is an egg-crate design, with the minimal specialized and service spaces carved out of regular classrooms. Spaces at North are either makeshift, outgrown, or missing.

residents of that area and would eliminate the need and expense of busing hundreds of students to and from school daily.

"While I do not at this time have a specific location in mind for a high school in southwest Quincy, I feel sure a suitable location can easily be found by a survey of the area."

●Editorial

His Own Man

If the above title sounds familiar, it should. It headed an editorial here last January shortly after the new City Council had taken office.

We noted then that the five new councillors represented the biggest turnover in that body in many years and addressed this observation to them:

"...we hope each of you is going to be his own man."

We also observed there had been criticism that recent councils sometimes looked like a "rubber stamp council".

We expressed hope that the new council members would ask questions when appropriation orders were sent to them and would speak out on other matters. And we also stressed:

"Our city government has both an executive branch and a legislative branch. The mayor should not become the 10th member of the City Council nor should city councillors become assistant mayors.

"The executive and legislative branches should remain separate and be a check on each other. Quincy will be a better city for it."

Well, we must say that each of the five new councillors — Dennis Harrington, Leo Kelly, John Lydon, Warren Powers and James Sheets — certainly is acting like his own man.

The five, getting their municipal budget baptism, made little noise during the early Finance Committee pruning sessions. They seemed to be willing to rely on the judgement of the older, more experienced, and wiser councillors.

It has been almost traditional that before the mayor sends the budget to the council, he puts it through the wringer leaving very little fat to lop off.

The best a council could expect to cut would be about $1 million. That was how it used to be, anyway.

But when the five new councillors learned that with a $1.75 million cut, the tax rate hike might be between $28 and $37, that did it.

The five, in a sense rebelled. They joined forces, sharpened the pruning shears and really went to work on the $62.5 million budget submitted by Mayor Walter Hannon.

Before they got through some $4.5 million had been slashed including an unprecedented $208,000 "deferment" in the school budget.

Out went the non-essentials — and a few essentials, too. If they thought the city could get by another year without something or without a new job, out it came.

They realized they had no control over the rise in some costs. But they believed the taxpayer, long round-shouldered from carrying a financial burden the equivalent weight of a piano, just couldn't stand a $28 to $37 hike.

According to reliable sources who know their arithmetic, the council has kept the tax hike down to $9.40. That would make the new rate $163.70—a lot better than $182 or $192.

Of course, the $9.40 is without pay raises for city employees, which are now being negotiated. What the raises—and the tax rate—will finally be remains to be seen.

A tax rate increase of any amount is not good news. But thanks to our five freshmen councillors, this year's tax rate is going to be a lot better than it seemed there for awhile.

We hope Mr. Harrington, Mr. Kelly, Mr. Lydon, Mr. Powers and Mr. Sheets goes right on being his own man.

As we said before: Quincy will be a better city for it.

Hedges Has Nomination Papers In Circulation

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Sheriff Charles Hedges has nomination papers in circulation in Quincy and elsewhere around Norfolk County—with a "but".

"But that's as far as it goes," the Republican incumbent insists. "I'm just protecting myself."

He says it does not mean he is a definite candidate for re-election. It's just that he has given the go-ahead to supporters to gather the necessary 1,000 voter signatures that must be filed by the June 18 deadline.

"In other words," he explains, "I'm getting the papers ready just in case. I cannot wait until the last minute."

Well, is he going to run?

"I'm really still undecided," he says. "I'm right on dead center. I could go either way."

The papers went into circulation as a result of "so many nice people urging me to seek re-election," he says. "These are people who are not politically inclined but those who are interested in doing what they can to help us in our programs at the jail."

Hedges has been sheriff since Dec. 27, 1960 — taking office after he defeated Peter McCormack of Brookline to fill the unexpired term of the late Samuel Wragg.

Hedges may insist he's still undecided about seeking another six-year term, but some of the people circulating those nomination papers for him are convinced he'll be filing them by June 14.

MEANWHILE, the local Speculation Corps is still wondering if Norfolk County Commissioner George McDonald of Quincy is in the sheriff's race to stay.

He has opened a headquarters on Hancock St. and Hancock Ct. but there has been little or no activity noticeable there. That, plus the fact he doesn't seem to be doing much campaigning, are the reasons for the speculation.

INCIDENTALLY, did you know that Rep-Councillor Clifford Marshall, one of the declared Democratic candidates for sheriff served as a court officer for Sheriff Hedges back in the 1960's?

Which means he could be running against his old boss this year.

A COUPLE OF weeks back we reported that Joyce Baker, president of the Quincy Women's Republican Club was thinking of sailing her bonnet into the Ward 5 City Council ring next year.

But she may be in the political arena before then. Latest report is that she will seek the state representative seat now occupied by Democrat William Delahunt.

AND, speaking of the GOP gals, they are donating two flowering dogwood trees to the city. The trees will be planted on the front lawn of the Thomas Crane Library, Quincy Center, Sunday at 12:45 p.m. ceremonies. Forestry department personnel will set them in.

WELL, in case you've been wondering, Rev. Joseph Connolly really put his best foot forward Sunday in the "Step For Life" Walkathon. He stepped off 12½ of the 22-mile course and would have finished except he had to return to the church on other matters. But he had enough sponsors ranging from 10 cents to $2 a mile to ring up over $300 for this worthy cause. [One of them was this writer who surrenders $12.50].

TED HARRINGTON, the Fall River attorney who headed the federal New England Task Force on Organized Crime dropped into The Quincy Sun the other day for a visit.

Harrington, seeking the Democratic nomination for attorney general, said he thinks it's a two-way race between himself and Quincy's Frank Bellotti.

"I think it's a year for a fresh political face," he said. "If I'm right, I'll be the next attorney general. If the public is looking for a familiar face, then it will be Bellotti. But I don't think they want a familiar face this year."

WHICH REMINDS US: Former Ward 3 Councillor Ted McLelland who got redistricted into Ward 2, confides he will not get into the First Norfolk District state representative race this year. He'll spend his politicizing time campaigning for Braintree's Barry T. Hannon, who is a candidate for attorney general.

There has been some speculation that Hannon, who is Norfolk County Register of Deeds, might bow out of the AG race now that Bellotti is a candidate. But McLelland nixes that. "He's in to stay," says McLelland.

Judge Prince To Speak At Survival Dinner

Judge Robert Prince, presiding Justice of Quincy District Court, will be the guest speaker at the fourth anniversary dinner of Survival Inc., May 13 at 7 p.m. at United First Parish Church, Quincy Sq.

Announcement was made by Rev. John R. Graham, president of the multi-faceted drug and youth program.

John W. McCormack, former Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives, will be among the distinguished guests attending the anniversary.

Because of its past U.S. Department of Justice funding, Survival has made a number of inroads within the courts, often times being given custody of an offender and placing him in a rehabilitation program rather than sentencing him to a prison term.

This arrangement has allowed for treatment of drug offenders in the local community and has been a very satisfactory program, according to Survival officials. Judge Prince will speak on the relation of Survival in the criminal justice system.

Mom obsessed by tea leaves

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I'll bet you haven't heard this one. My mother drinks tea, which is fine, but she also reads the leaves. She'll ask someone to have a cup of tea and then read the leaves.

My boyfriend was over a couple of days ago and out came the tea. He drank a cup to be polite and then Mom told him that he was going to get a traffic ticket. On his way home, he did. He called me and said, "What kind of a nut is your mother? I just got a ticket." What can I do about Mom and this obsession with tea leaves?

Sally

Dear Sally:

Suggest she switch to coffee.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

When I come home from work all my wife does is complain about the kids or dive headlong into some boring monologue on a subject which is of interest only to her. I'm bored and want a little spark put back into our marriage. My wife reads your column so give her a few suggestions.

Tom

Dear Tom:

Keep in mind that it takes two to spark! A good marriage doesn't just happen. You have to work at it.

After the kids are in bed, have a talk with your wife and tell her exactly how you feel. Constructive, honest communication is essential. By the way, how long has it been since you took your wife on a weekend vacation?

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I'm a senior in high school and have been dating Carl for six months. At first we had a lot of fun. We went places and did things but lately Carl has only one thing on his mind. How do I handle this and how can we get back into our good, old relationship?

Peggy

Dear Peggy:

This is one reason I am against going steady. It is human nature to go a little further as you spend more and more time together. But if you insist on dating only one person, set a few guidelines for yourself. Don't just sit around. Plan a definite activity for each date.

Don't allow necking and petting to be your favorite indoor sport. Bowl, swim, play tennis, participate in group activities and continue saying "NO" like you really mean it.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I have a friend and considered her to be one of the most genuine people I had ever known. We are both married, work in the same office, and have many common interests.

A couple of weeks ago she showed up with a new diamond ring which is at least a couple of karats. Everyone in the office was impressed, and we all wondered how she could afford such a large diamond. Well, her husband told my husband it was a phony which cost about $200. I feel my friend is cheating. What do you think?

Martha

Dear Martha:

I think it is none of your business. Wearing a counterfeit diamond does not indicate a lack of sincerity.

COOKING CORNER

Bananas and oranges make cakes delicious

By SUSAN DELIGHT

Fruit can accent most any item on a menu, from entree to dessert. It delightfully flavors many baked foods. In most any recipe where a liquid is called for, citrus juices can be substituted for that liquid.

The two fruits featured in today's cakes are bananas and oranges.

ORANGE BREAKFAST CAKE

2 to 3 large Florida oranges
¾ cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 cup finely chopped dates
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt

Ream juice from oranges to make one cup; reserve. Grind rind to make one cup; reserve. Cream butter; gradually add sugar and cream until light and fluffy. Blend in eggs. Stir in dates and orange rind. Sift together flour, soda and salt. Add alternately to creamed mixture with orange juice. Turn into a greased 13- x 9-inch baking pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 40 minutes. Cool; cut into squares. Yield: 12 servings.

BANANA LAMB CAKE

1 cup mashed ripe bananas (3 medium)
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup butter or margarine, softened
1 cup sugar
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
3 egg whites

Slice bananas into a bowl and mash with a fork until smooth. Mix with lemon juice. In large bowl, cream butter and sugar. Sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and cinnamon. Blend dry ingredients into creamed butter and sugar alternately with banana mixture. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form; turn into bowl on top of batter. Gently fold in by cutting down through center of batter with a spatula and up against side of bowl, turning bowl frequently, until egg whites have been incorporated. Brush inside of both halves of lamb cake mold with shortening, then dust with flour. Turn batter into front half of mold. Cover with back half of mold. Bake in preheated 375 degrees F. oven one hour. Remove from oven; place on wire cake rack and cool 10 minutes. Remove cake from pan; place on cake rack and cool completely. Place on serving platter.

FLAVORFUL — Orange Breakfast Cake gets flavor accent from orange rind and juice and richness from chopped dates.

Frost with Fluffy White Frosting and sprinkle entire cake with flaked coconut. Use raisins for eyes and nose, and add a small red or pink bow at the neck. Yield: One Banana Lamb Cake.

FLUFFY WHITE FROSTING

2 egg whites
¾ cup sugar
¼ cup corn syrup
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
¼ teaspoon salt
Flaked coconut

In top of double boiler mix together all ingredients except coconut. Place over boiling water. Beat with electric mixer until frosting stands in stiff peaks, about seven minutes.

BEWARE OF STAIRS

Of the 20,000 persons killed in accidental home falls last year, all too common was the incidence of falling down stairs. Fortunately, this is a hazard that can be greatly reduced with very little effort.

All stairs should have hand rails - and open stairways should have one on each side.

Surprisingly, rubber mats, used to prevent slipping, often do more harm than good, especially if they are worn skid-smooth or fastened poorly. Varnished steps also prove more likely to send people flying. Considerably safer is just plain paint or bare wood stairs.

Advice ... Add a little time sand to paint before applying to steps to make an abrasive surface. Make the bottom and top steps more visible with a bright colored paint or strip of reflective tape. Be sure stairways have adequate light that can be operated from both top and bottom.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS Circle i dots seek limelight

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON
Certified Master
Graphoanalyst

Copley News Service

Dear Dorothy:

My husband and I have been married five years. Lately, we are constantly fighting. He says I'm too bossy and that I'm always trying to impress him. He has a pretty young secretary who has been working for him for a year now. Do you think she is trying to break up our marriage? I'm not very attractive, and I feel some competition.

working overtime to help you gain the limelight, and the upswing endings on words are giving you that extra push.

What's more, you have some pretty good ideas, all your own, as to how to display your unusual self, seen in the evaluation of the large lower loops. If these attention getters fail, you can nag a little, whine a little, and even resort to tears a little, seen in the drooping y endings, evaluated with the forward slant. You are trying so hard that you are fabricating your image.

Competing with Miss Secretary is no way to go. A pretty face comes by "pure accident" from birth but beauty comes from the soul. You have to win the battle over yourself and see yourself as you really are, in order to experience the trust of a rich inner life. From such confidence, then, comes personality and charm. And this is what wins the man.

P.H.

Dear P.H.:

A young pretty face cannot endanger a well-adjusted marriage. But when a marriage is "chipped" or "cracked," an older, homelier woman can break it just as effectively — if she has even a few of the convincing prerequisites.

When your husband says you are bossy, he has more than a little ground to stand on. Those slated t crossings are trying to defend your hungry ego, and you have to admit that you are quite demanding. The circle i dots are we are constantly fighting

Women once had higher church role

Women's lib has encouraged women to try for ordination to the priesthood and other high office, but in the abbey and convents of Western Europe, down to the 15th Century, monks and nuns pledged their obedience to abbesses who wore the mitre.

The Renaissance and Reformation, drawing inspiration from the Greeks, Romans and Hebrews, toppled women from their lofty position in the church and John Knox argued it was against nature and against God for a man to be in obedience to a woman. — CNS

Half-Century Of Dedication

Kiwanis Club Of Quincy Serving Community, Children For 50 Years

By GUSTAF E. WESTHRIN
Quincy Kiwanis Club Historian

A half-century ago, a group of local business and professional men were brought together by an ideal—dedication of unselfish service to their neighbor and community.

The Kiwanis Club of Quincy was organized by members of the Y's Men's Club, an affiliate of the Quincy YMCA who sought an opportunity to expand their activities for greater service to the community and especially to underprivileged children.

The friendly spirit of Kiwanis appealed to this group of young men and the objectives of Kiwanis International—whose roots go back to Detroit where the first club was founded in 1914—was the challenge that appealed to them.

It is noteworthy to mention that this group of men sought membership in Kiwanis, rather than Kiwanis seeking them.

In the latter part of 1923 and early in 1924 the Kiwanis idea was explained to other young men of Quincy with the result that a formal application for a Kiwanis Club Charter was signed by 53 men.

Kiwanis International accepted the Quincy Club on March 10, 1924 and the Charter was presented on April 23, 1924. The first President of the Club was Arthur I. Burgess and the first Secretary was William H. Dennison.

From the very beginning the club members were imbued with the spirit of Kiwanis, its objectives of unselfish service to the Community and especially to the unfortunate children who needed assistance. Activities to raise money for charity and welfare work began immediately, first by contributions from the members supplemented by running band concerts, etc.

In 1929 the Club held its first Kiwanis Kapers show and this was repeated each year until 1932 when it was necessary to discontinue these productions during the serious depression years. In 1937 the Thousand Dollar Committee was organized, charged with responsibility of raising a minimum of $1,000 for charitable work.

The Kiwanis Kapers were resumed that year and the Thousand Dollar Committee has produced the Kapers Show every year since and it has never failed to raise the money necessary to do effective charitable work for boys and girls.

The Club has also arranged many other money raising activities during the years such as Yacht Club parties, game dinners, and smorgasbord dinners.

The first sizeable project of the new club was to purchase uniforms for the Quincy High School Band. The Club organized a Boy Scout troop, composed of boys with Juvenile Court records, bought their uniforms and trained them to become law abiding youths. This project was very successful.

The Club erected a cabin at Boy Scout Camp and also

Down Fond Memory Lane With The Annual Kiwanis Kapers

MINSTREL SHOW in 1926 was a forerunner of the Kiwanis Kapers. The cast included some well known names. In front is F. Warren Crane. Behind him, from left, Thomas Burgin, R. R. Stoddard, Arthur Burgess, Everett Robbie and Roy Westland.

CAN CAN GIRLS were one of the hits of the 1958 Kiwanis Kapers entitled "Restless Gunsmoke" or "Why The Indians Didn't Want It Back". Just in case you can't identify the legs, the "girls" are [we think], from the left: Roger Kent, Don DeWare, Brooks Robbie, Ron Marden, Brig Pemberton, Leo O'Brien, Charles Randall and Robert Macomber. [Any resemblance between them and the Rocketts is really purely coincidental.]

FASTEST GUNS IN the north, south, east and west belonged to George Reardon, Donald Keene, William Smith, Walter Schmitz and Wally Carson in this scene from Kiwanis Kapers of 1958. Behind the bartender's mustache is Gus Westrin.

WHAT THE WELL dressed golfer will wear was demonstrated at Kiwanis Kapers of 1968 by models, from the left, Alex Warmington, Charles Peterson, Marjorie Woodbury, and Frank McNally.

Quincy Club In 50 Years Of Dedicated Community Service

donated a flag and flagpole for the camp. For several years the Club paid for tonsil and adenoid operations for needy children. Providing campships for needy children has been a project of the Club since its early days and this project has grown greatly through the years. The biggest project was the pledge of $40,000 to the new YMCA building. This pledge was paid in full within a reasonably short time.

We have given annual scholarships to students from Quincy High School, North Quincy High School and the Nurses Fund at Quincy City Hospital for several years. We have also given scholarships to Quincy Junior College and Quincy Vocational School. For several years we had two Key Clubs, one at Quincy High School and one at North Quincy High School.

Circle K Clubs were also organized in Quincy Junior College and Eastern Nazarene College. Because of lack of leadership these Clubs are dormant at present but efforts are now being taken to make them active again.

The Quincy Club has through the years been a very active Club taking a leading part in community activities serving on the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce, cooperating with the school department, Family Welfare Society, Community Fund, Massachusetts Bay Fund, Quincy Junior Baseball, YMCA, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Campfire Girls, South Mental Health, Cerebral Palsy and other worthwhile charities.

Since its inception in 1924, the Quincy Kiwanis Club has expended for charitable projects over $200,000. The present administrative year 1973-1974 has been a very busy one with the Quincy Club participating with the Weymouth Club in sponsoring a Youth Hockey Tournament at the Quincy Youth Hockey Rink and the Weymouth Hockey Rink.

The Quincy Club will raise over $7,000 which will be used in our charitable activities for Quincy Youth. The Hockey Tournament was very successful, both in financial endeavors and in bringing the youth of Canada and Eastern United States together in friendly competitive sports.

The Hockey Tournament will long be remembered by the members of the Quincy Club who were brought together as never before, everyone taking an active part in the many activities connected with the four day tournament. The Hockey Tournament will also be run next year so many details are already being worked on by the Club membership.

In addition to working for the boys and girls who need our assistance we have taken the leadership in several city-wide projects.

Our beloved Club Chaplain, the late Rev. Victor V. Sawyer was the originator of the "Go To Church" drive that we sponsored in Quincy. We obtained the use of the Strand Theatre each Wednesday noon for a service where the speakers were alternating Protestant, Catholic and Laymen. These services were well attended. Our slogan was "You go to your church, I'll go to mine but let's walk together."

A dinner and reception to honor Rev. Sawyer was held in the Armory which was filled to the last place with his many admirers May 4, 1950. Philip

Barker was chairman and Mayor Thomas S. Burgin, honorary chairman. Rev. and Mrs. Sawyer were presented a gift to travel around the world if they wished by their many friends including the members of Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions, Probus and B'nai B'rith.

On Nov. 16, 1952, the Club presented Rev. Sawyer furniture for his office at Wollaston Methodist Church, consisting of a large sofa, two wing chairs, two arm chairs, a Duxbury chair, a kneehole desk, two end tables, two lamps and a hooked rug.

The furniture was solid rock maple in Colonial styling. Rev. Sawyer was a most beloved and respected member of our Club and all of us who were in the Club with him regarded him as a personal friend and advisor.

In 1965, Mrs. Edwin S. White, widow of the late Edwin S. White a very active member of our Club, turned over to the Club a sum of $5,000 to be set up as a Scholarship Fund in memory of her husband. This kind and thoughtful act of Mrs. White has helped a number of students from the North Quincy High School and will continue to help students from North Quincy.

We are justly proud of our Quincy Kiwanis Club and its devoted members who are always willing to serve the community with time, talent and resources to make Quincy a better place to live, with the emphasis on aid to underprivileged children, support of churches and Brotherhood of man.

Meetings Set In Hopes Of Solving Traffic Lights SNAFU

Meetings were scheduled Wednesday in Quincy and Boston in an effort to resolve the traffic problems that have arisen from new traffic lights that do not work properly at three intersections in Wollaston Center.

Supervisor Edward Lynch of the Police Traffic Signs Division scheduled one meeting at the corner of Newport and Beale Sts. with representatives of the Singer Co. of California and the Rittenberg Co. of Newton.

Singer manufactured the lights and Rittenberg installed them.

After the Quincy meeting, the group was scheduled to go to the State Department of Public Works building on Nashua St., Boston, to meet with representatives of T.A.M.S. Co. of Newton, designers of the lights, and the DPW.

The lights, at the intersections of Newport Ave. and Beale St., Greenwood Ave. and Beale, and Old Colony Ave. and Beale, were put into operation a month ago but have not worked properly, causing severe problems at peak traffic hours.

Lynch said it is not possible to set the controlling mechanisms of the lights due to the malfunctioning. People from Singer worked on the lights last week but were unable to correct the problem.

In a letter to the DPW, Lynch said he wants the unacceptable equipment replaced.

Right now, the lights are set on flashing with police officers assigned to the intersections at peak traffic time, 7-9 a.m. and 4:30-8 p.m. Rittenberg is billed for the police detail.

Lynch said he hopes to have his men pull out the new control devices and install the old ones again until the situation is cleared up.

Powers Supports New County Tax Formula To Save Quincy $400,000

Ward 5 Councillor Warren Powers has thrown his support to a proposal by Rep. James Segal [D-Brookline] to change the county tax formula so that affluent suburban communities would pay a fair share of county costs.

The change could save Quincy more than $400,000 a year.

Said Powers:

"The taxpayers of Quincy, because of an outdated and unreasonable tax formula are paying a larger share in county taxes than many other communities in Norfolk County and are in effect helping to support other communities such as Sharon, Canton and Cohasset."

"The affluent suburban communities should not expect us to continue to bear the burden of paying a portion of their county costs as well as our own."

Segal announced last week that he plans to file suit in the name of the town of Brookline challenging the constitutionality of the use of the 1945 land valuations as a base for assessing the tax.

This is to be a special second anniversary performance commemorating the publication of the music by the former Minister of Music at the Wollaston Congregational Church.

The public is invited to attend. A coffee hour will be held in the social hall following the cantata.

LaLeche League To Meet May 7 In Wollaston

LaLeche League of Quincy will hold its fourth meeting of a four-part series May 7 at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Eugene Steeves of 91 Farrington St., Wollaston.

The discussions will entail nutrition for the breastfed baby, the nursing mother, and for the entire family. Weaning will also be discussed. Interested women, nurses, and mothers are encouraged to participate, as are babies.

In conjunction with Hospital Week, May 14-18, [Tues.-Sat.] from 11 a.m. - 5 p.m., the South Shore Hospital is sponsoring a

Brett Asks Cost For S. Quincy, Braintree MBTA Stations

Rep. Joseph E. Brett [D-Quincy] has asked for a comparison of costs between the proposed South Quincy MBTA station and one a mile further down the line in the Braintree dump.

"A comparison of the estimated costs of providing station facilities at the two locations will be very helpful to many in resolving their opinions on the matter," Brett said in a letter to Transportation Secretary Alan A. Altshuler.

Brett said he wanted the following information included in the estimates regarding the proposed South Quincy station:

"The costs of acquiring the needed area, demolishing and relocating the business properties which are located there; the estimated costs of constructing the several on and off ramps to Route 3 and the Southeast Expressway; and the estimated costs of constructing the station and related parking facilities.

"It would also be helpful if you could provide the estimated costs of land acquisition and construction of the necessary facilities at the so-called dump site."

He said he made his request for figures "in view of some differences in opinion as to the advisability of locating a Red Line rapid transit station in South Quincy, or simply moving a mile further to the 'dump site' in Braintree."

The President: His Own Neck

Richard M. Nixon

Until now we have refrained from speaking out on the Watergate scandal because The Quincy Sun is a Quincy oriented newspaper covering Quincy news and editorializing on Quincy issues only.

We have let Watergate to the big fellows--the New York Times, Washington Post, Time, the television networks, etc.

But we cannot, in good conscience, sit by any longer without comment even if our words have no more effect on the White House than a pea shooter on a battleship.

Watergate is a Quincy issue and it is an issue in every single community in these United States--or should be. It will affect us, our children, grandchildren and generations to come.

And what will be done about it now is most important to the future of our country.

For months now we have been willing to give President Nixon the benefit of the doubt when he insisted he knew nothing in advance about the Watergate break-in or the initial coverup attempts.

At times we even admired him for what looked like good old American "guts" when he refused to release the Watergate tapes claiming he wanted to preserve executive privilege for future Presidents and that national security would be harmed.

And besides that we cling to that cherished right that a man is presumed innocent until proven guilty.

His forced release of the much edited transcripts of those tapes convince us now however, that Mr. Nixon was stalling not because of executive loyalty to future Presidents or because of national security--but to save his own political neck. And, perhaps, the necks of those around him.

The heavily edited transcripts are hard to stomach reading excerpts from newspapers.

But the NBC-TV presentation last Saturday night really made you wonder what kind of men are President Nixon, John Dean, H. R. Haldeman, John Erlichman and some of the others.

Professional readers recited excerpts of various conversations--sort of recreating the conversation but without dramatics.

As you listened you could not help but think of a gang of hoods trying to cover up a bank heist.

This is the President of the United States and his hand-picked aides talking about raising $1 million or so to pay somebody off to keep quiet and wondering who will take the rap.

This is the man we elected and who took the solemn oath of office to uphold and protect the Constitution and laws of the United States and these are the men he selected to help him perform those duties.

And remember, these are heavily edited transcripts. The conversations are suddenly stopped at a key point--deleted. You can imagine what the remainder of some of those conversations were.

And you wonder more about the now famed 18½-minute gap on that key tape of a conversation between President Nixon and Haldeman on June 20, 1972--just three days after the break-in at the Democratic headquarters at Watergate. That's the tape that Rose Mary

Libertine Declines Appointment

Grand Jury Action On Cemetery Investigation Hung Up Indefinitely

By TOM HENSHAW

The Quincy cemetery investigation apparently will not come before the May sitting of the Grand Jury.

Attorney Edward Libertine of Braintree, who was nominated by the Norfolk County Bar Association for the job of special prosecutor, turned down the job Tuesday.

"I just didn't want it," the 67-year-old Libertine told The Quincy Sun.

Dist. Atty. George G. Burke said he plans to request another nomination from the bar association.

"I hope it will be shortly," he told The Sun. "But I don't know when they'll have their next meeting."

Charles George of Holbrook, president of the Norfolk County Bar Association, said he had just learned of Libertine's refusal and had no suggestions for a new nominee.

The May sitting of the Grand Jury is scheduled to begin May 28. "If no recommendation is made to me immediately it will be tough to put a case together to make the Grand Jury sitting," said Burke.

"I would have to ask for a [Cont'd on Page 20]

GD Denies Plans To Shift Quincy Operations To R.I.

A spokesman for General Dynamics squelched rumors that the company is planning to move its Quincy operation to the old Quonset Point Naval Air Station which was recently decommissioned in Rhode Island.

General Dynamics chairman David S. Lewis told the annual meeting last week the company has been working with the state of Rhode Island to lease portions of the base "for use as a production support facility" for its Electric Boat Division in Groton, Conn.

"It has absolutely nothing to do with us," said a spokesman for the Quincy Division. "They're simply negotiating for space to expand the Groton operation."

Reports had circulated in South Shore business circles that General Dynamics was considering moving from Quincy to Rhode Island.

The reports started even before Lewis mentioned Groton in his annual message to stockholders.

Meanwhile the strike of production workers at the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard moved into its eighth week with most of the action taking place behind the scenes in far off Washington.

A large part of the Massachusetts Congressional delegation met with General Dynamics officials from Quincy and St. Louis Tuesday in the office of Sen. Edward W. Brooke [R-Mass].

And a further meeting between the Congressmen and representatives of the striking Shipbuilding Workers Union Local 5 was scheduled for 11 a.m. today [Thursday], also in Washington.

Meanwhile, representatives of the 225-member Shipbuilding Workers Local 90 opened negotiations Tuesday with General Dynamics. Their contract expires June 15.

And Mayor Walter J. Hannon notified the company Monday that only one Quincy police officer per shift will be assigned to the shipyard for the duration of the strike.

If the company feels it needs extra police to supervise picket lines at the gates, Hannon said, "General Dynamics will be financially responsible for any additional police officers requested."

Hannon said the assignment of officers has already cost Quincy "many thousands of dollars . . . the city cannot afford, at this time, to continue supplying police officers for the shipyard."

Out at General Dynamics headquarters in St. Louis, Lewis told the annual shareholders meeting that net earnings for the first quarter of 1974 were up to $8,629,000 on sales of $414,772,000.

"Our company is healthy, we have excellent prospects for the future, and we look for 1974 to be a better year than 1973," he said. "It should not be too long before we are again in the $2

Quincy Community Coop Fights Rising Food Costs

By BOB HOOKWAY

While the price of food continues to skyrocket in 1974, there is an organization in Quincy which provides much needed relief to the consumer.

Formed in the spring of 1973, The Quincy Community Food Coop will celebrate its first year of operation this summer, and the venture has proven quite successful thus far.

Based on the premise that food can be purchased at wholesale prices by combining individual household orders into one large order, the Coop continues to deliver weekly savings and quality food to its members. Operating out of the Southwest Quincy Center in West Quincy, the cooperative comprises an average of 35 households per week and is always seeking new members. Membership fee is $1 per household, and regardless of income or geographic location, the Coop is open to everyone.

A random poll of Coop members revealed that they are quite pleased with the manner in which the operation is run, the quality of the food, and naturally the savings. A comparison test this weekend disclosed that a $40 order purchased at two of the larger chain food stores in Quincy, would cost $33 if

4 Firefighters To Be Honored For Wollaston Rescue

Four Quincy firefighters will be honored Friday night at the 88th annual Firemen's Ball for their acts of heroism during a Wollaston fire nearly 11 months ago.

They are Richard Salvaggio, Richard Cooke, Anthony Innello and John Demaggio.

They are being cited for their rescue of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hagen of 122 Piermont St. who were overcome by smoke when fire swept their home shortly after 2 a.m. on June 10, 1973.

Salvaggio, unable to see in the dense smoke, discovered the Hagens by touch in their bedroom and, with the help of Cooke, Demaggio and Innello, carried them downstairs to safety.

The ball, sponsored by the Quincy Firemen's Relief Association, will be held at the Neighborhood Club with entertainment from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. and dancing to the music of Jimmy McHale's Orchestra from 9 p.m. to midnight.

Mayor Walter J. Hannan and members of the City Council are expected to attend.

The ticket committee is headed by Joseph Malvesti, with the assistance of Patrick Clare, Thomas Connors, Robert Curtin, Richard DiCesare, Angelo DelGreco, Richard Fennelly, James Kelley III, William Lowry and John Bille.

The advertising committee is headed by Joseph Lemieux, with help from Robert Curtin and Albert Schatzl.

The reception committee includes Chief Edward F. Barry, Association President Americo Speranzo, Vice-President Joseph Lemieux, Treasurer Joseph Malvesti, Secretary John Bille, and Fire Department Chaplains the Revs. Chester Porteus and David Delaney.

Remembering Linda's Dad

They'll Put Their Heart Into 65-Mile Bike Ride

By STEVE FERRARA

Springtime is the time when a young man's fancy turns to affairs of the heart, and for Linda Weeks, 26, of Houghs Neck, the saying also applies.

On Saturday, Linda and family and friends will take a 65-mile bike ride to benefit the Massachusetts Heart Fund for the third year in a row.

Linda, brother-in-law Richard Weeks of New Hampshire and friend Jeanne Considine, 25, of Manomet are knocking door-to-door in Houghs Neck asking people to sponsor each mile they ride with a specific contribution.

Those three took the first ride to Sandwich, Cape Cod two years ago. Last year Linda's brothers William and Jay joined the ride and the group collected $500 for the Heart Fund.

This year Linda's husband Richard, brother Michael Berry and Donna Berry and friend Joan Watson will make the 65-mile trip. There's no telling how much they will raise this year.

The group will leave

Saturday at 6:30 a.m. They expect the ride from Houghs Neck to the Shawnee Crowell State Forest in Sandwich to take eight hours, barring any unexpected difficulties. Last year the group got lost, adding 15 miles and two hours to the trip, but still managed to finish.

Linda said when they finally settled down in their camping site in Sandwich, "It felt as if we were still pedaling."

The group will find very little comfort at the end of their hilly ride along Rtes. 53 and 3A. When they arrive at Sandwich a car will be awaiting them containing food and a tent for an overnight camping trip -- no nice hot bath or soft bed to soothe their aching muscles.

Linda's father, Edward J. Berry, died five years ago of a heart attack. Since then she has supported activities of the Heart Fund. And for three years now Linda and friends have found that once a year a little pain and discomfort can provide a nice feeling in the heart.

The Meanest Mother

Editor's Note: The following anonymous article first appeared in the Quincy Sun three years ago and from time to time since then we have had requests from readers to reprint it.

Because Sunday is Mother's Day we feel it is quite appropriate this week to pay this tribute to all the "mean" mothers everywhere.

I had the meanest Mother in the whole world.

While other kids ate candy for breakfast, I had to have cereal, eggs or toast. When others had cokes and candy for lunch, I had to eat a sandwich. As you guessed, my supper was different from the other kids too.

But at least I wasn't alone in my suffering. My sisters and two brothers had the same mean Mother as I did.

My Mother insisted upon knowing where we were at all times. You'd think we were on a chain gang. She had to know who our friends were and what we were doing. She insisted if we said we'd be gone one hour that we be gone one hour or less—not one hour and one minute.

I am really ashamed to admit it, but she actually struck us. Not once but each time we did as we pleased. Can you imagine someone actually hitting a child just because he disobeyed. Now you can begin to see how mean she really was.

The worst is yet to come. We had to be in bed by nine each night and up early the next morning. We couldn't sleep till noon like our friends. So while they slept my Mother actually had the nerve to break the child labor law. She made us work. We had to wash dishes, make beds, learn to cook and all sorts of cruel things. I believe she laid awake at night thinking up mean things to do to us.

She always insisted upon our telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, even if it killed us—it nearly did.

By the time we were teenagers, she was much wiser and our life became even more unbearable. None of this tooting the horn of a car for us to come running. She embarrassed us to no end by making our dates and friends come to the door to get us.

I forgot to mention, while my friends were dating at the mature age of 12 and 13, my old fashioned Mother refused to let me date until the age of 15 and 18. Fifteen that is, if you dated only to go to a school function, and that was only once or twice a year.

My Mother was a complete failure as a Mother. None of us has ever been arrested, divorced or beaten by his mate. Each of my brothers served his time in the service of this country.

And whom do we have to blame for this terrible way we turned out? You're right. Our mean Mother.

Look at all the things that we missed. We never got to march in a protest parade, nor to take part in a riot, burn draft cards, and a million and one things that our friends did. She forced us to grow into God-fearing, educated, honest adults.

Using this as a background, I am trying to raise my three children. I stand a little taller and I am filled with pride when my children call me mean.

Because, you see, I thank God. He gave me the meanest Mother in the whole world.

The Senior Citizens City Council will meet at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Question Of The Week:

How Much Did City Council Actually Cut From Budget?

How much did the City Council really cut from Mayor Walter J. Hannon's budget for 1974-75?

Councillors John J. Quinn and Dennis E. Harrington have set the figure at $4.5 million. Other councillors have concurred. The figure has been generally accepted around the city.

Not so, says Mayor Hannon. "The City Council did not cut $4.5 million as has been reported by many sources," the Mayor told The Quincy Sun this week. "The City Council cut $1.9 million."

And the Mayor indicated he didn't feel that they should have cut even that much, although

"we agreed basically with the cuts once the cherry sheets were out and we knew where we stood."

"What they did," Hannon continued, "was cut some services. The police department's 'five-minute response' time was badly hit. The hot lunch program for the city's senior citizens was almost taken out."

"It's easy to cut a budget but it's my responsibility to run the city for a year and still provide services people need and are accustomed to."

Budget Director William S. Grindlay produced figures to back up the Mayor's $1.9 million contention.

"The original order that went to the Council was $62.5 million," he said. "Additional debt interest brought it to $63.9 million. The budget passed by the City Council was $62 million. That's a difference of $1.9 million."

Said Council President Arthur H. Tobin:

"He's playing with semantics. We cut over $4 million from the budget."

Meanwhile, the budget apparently went up by $41,741 when the Council approved that sum for the Quincy Bicentennial Committee to start spending after July 1.

Democrats Pick 47

Cardwell Challenges Ward 1 Election

Quincy Democrats chose 47 delegates to the party's Congressional District Conference Saturday but the 11 delegates chosen from Ward 1 were immediately challenged as in violation of the rules set down by the Democratic State Committee.

Timothy P. Cardwell, a Ward 1 Democrat and chairman of the Quincy Taxpayer's Revolt, charged that the delegates "were all part of an official slate of the ward committee" and slate making is not permitted at the ward level.

Cardwell said the 11 were listed in order, a motion to list alphabetically was ruled out of order, word was passed through the crowd to vote only for the first 11, and the 11 members of the alleged slate all received about the same number of votes.

He said in a letter to Charles Flaherty, chairman of the Democratic State Committee:

"I am requesting that the Review Committee rule that the delegates from Ward 1 were part of a slate and in violation of the rules, and that the ward chairman be instructed to call for a new caucus to elect delegates."

The delegates will meet with others from the 11th District

June 1 at the Sheraton Tara in Braintree.

QCA Ready For Legal Action On 10-Story Limit

The Quincy Citizens Association is ready to take legal steps to force the City Council to act on its proposed 10-story height limitations on buildings in the city.

And, if the Council turns down the proposal, the association is prepared to push for a referendum on the issue.

Pasquale S. DeStefano, president of the QCA, told its monthly meeting that the group "is looking to the City Council to act upon this measure within the next 25 days," the 90 day deadline after the Feb. 25 hearing on the proposal.

"I must make it crystal clear," he said, "that we are not attempting to intimidate the Council by our threatening actions but instead we have fully investigated our options and this is our proper course of action."

The President: His Own Neck

[Cont'd from Page 1]

Woods, the President's personal secretary was blamed for causing the gap. What a coincidence that there should be such a gap on that tape.

We believe the House Judiciary Committee should insist on getting every single tape pertaining to Watergate.

And now is the hour for Democrats and Republicans to put themselves above politics and work together as Americans for America.

Watergate cannot be blamed on the Republican party. The blame belongs with a handful of men who apparently don't give a damn about the Constitution.

But the American people are likely to know the whole story—as sickening and as rotten as it may be. Watergate is a septic tank that a few men must not be allowed to sprinkle with such high-sounding words as executive privilege and national security in hopes of making the odor evaporate.

Republicans and Democrats should join together and put the pressure on the President to get all of those tapes.

As far as impeachment is concerned there is speculation in political circles that the Democrats really don't want to see Mr. Nixon impeached. They would prefer to see him squirm some more—maybe right into election year.

The theory is that the longer he is made to squirm, the better the chances are for the next President to be a Democrat. If he is forced out too early, someone like Vice-President Gerry Ford might have time enough to mount a white charger and still gallop to victory.

Mr. Ford, however, sometimes seems to be a little trigger happy in his eagerness to defend Mr. Nixon. Like his statement in North Carolina the other day that the published transcripts "exonerate" the President. He later admitted he had not had time to read the actual documents.

It is sad and almost unbelievable that in a few short months Mr. Nixon could slide from such popular heights to such a low.

He brought the boys home from Vietnam and reopened the door to China. He seemed headed for a place in history as one of our great Presidents.

One of Mr. Nixon's faults is that he seems to have a talent for surrounding himself with questionable people. Like Spiro Agnew, Dean, Haldeman, Erlichman, etc. And in the case of Haldeman, Erlichman, Dean, he seems to be dependent upon them. But he picked them and must assume responsibility for them.

Many Democrats and Republicans will tell you that the ordeal of impeachment and trial by the Senate will be too much for our country to bear. It will tear us apart, they say. It will weaken us, etc.

We don't think so. We feel that those who say that are talking like politicians looking for an easy way out. Some of them are Democrats who want to keep Mr. Nixon squirming. Some are Republicans who are more interested in spending their time trying to get re-elected.

Frankly, from what we have seen of the published transcripts we believe there are ample grounds on which to impeach Mr. Nixon.

Granted, the impeachment procedure and trial would be a difficult period for all of us to endure. There would be months of hanging out our dirty wash for the rest of the world to see and sneer, ring around the collar.

Mr. Nixon would not be able to function properly as President during this period. In fact we do not think he is functioning properly now.

How can he concentrate on our shaky economy, inflation, the energy crisis which has only been swept under a rug, the skyrocketing cost of living, and the many other problems of today, with Watergate haunting him like a ghost rattling through the White House every night. We wonder how he manages to sleep.

The vast majority of Americans have lost confidence in their President. The transcripts he promised them on television just a few nights ago would prove his innocence have turned out to be self incriminating instead.

Mr. Nixon could spare himself and the nation the agony of seeing him impeached and tried by resigning. And by resigning, he would restore some needed confidence in the White House.

If he is tried he might possibly not be convicted of Watergate involvement — advance knowledge of the break-in and cover-up efforts.

But in the minds of most people who can read, the President has already convicted himself of being a man trying to save his own political neck at almost any cost.

Mr. President, we ask you to resign for the good of the country.

Fighting Food Prices purchased through the Coop.

Bread and produce are items which yield the highest savings on the Coop purchase list. The first list, published in June, 1973 featured 34 items, largely fruit and vegetables. This weeks list contains 111 items and includes meats, dairy products, canned foods, paper goods, pet food and cigarettes as well as produce. Some items from this weeks list:

Iceberg lettuce - 38 cents per head.

Tomatoes - 29 cents per lb. Light and dark bread 25 cents per loaf.

A 28-ounce jar of peanut butter $1.16.

The programs coordinator, Jeffrey Isaacson, says that increased membership would lead to even more substantial savings, especially in the area of meat which is generally the most expensive item for the food buyer.

Isaacson also revealed plans for election of Coop officers, and the purchase of a van for transportation of food.

The Quincy Community Food Coop presently deals with the Boston Food Coop, bakeries in Dorchester and Quincy Point as well as a Boston meat distributor.

Members are required to spend a small amount of time packing food for distribution, collecting money and order forms from members, accompanying the Coop van to Boston for the food or other tasks necessary to the maintaining of the program.

Isaacson expressed his pleasure with the cooperation of the members and said he hoped the food cooperative system would become more widespread throughout Massachusetts. Several communities already have programs similar to Quincy's.

If the Quincy Coop reaches an active membership of 200 households it would then be feasible to rent a storefront, probably in the Brewers Corner area, from which members could purchase food directly.

A year of survival in Quincy has proven that the coop system does work, and that consumers are willing to band together to combat runaway food costs.

billion a year sales category."

But, he said, the Quincy shipyard, even with its backlog of $650 million in orders, cannot become a profitable operation unless "terribly inefficient jurisdictional arrangements ... and other time-wasting practices" are eliminated.

The company is seeking what it calls "production improvements" in a new contract before it gets down to bargaining on money issues with Local 5, which is seeking a $1.50 hourly pay raise plus a 25 cent cost of living adjustment.

"They just won't talk to us about anything except what they want," said Arthur Batson, president of Local 5.

He said the union has not heard from federal mediators in about four weeks, ever since the last attempt at face-to-face negotiations broke down.

McIntyre To Return As 'At-Large' Candidate?

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Former Mayor-Senator James McIntyre reportedly is warming up to a return to the municipal political arena next year.

He's talking to friends about being an "at-large" candidate and that, of course, leaves a lot of room to roam in.

Not too long ago, when the cemetery department probe was hot and heavy, he was quite seriously thinking of running for mayor again. Close friends say that he thought some of the newspaper reporting on the matter was a lot more innuendo than fact and it appeared that someone was going out of his [their] way to pin some of the fault onto his administration.

It got his dander up, they say. And he was getting quite serious about getting back into City Hall to "straighten it all out."

However, it would seem doubtful that McIntyre would be a mayoralty candidate. Not for awhile, anyway, even though he could hold both the senate counsel and mayoral jobs simultaneously.

The best bet is that he would return as a City Council at-large candidate. Former Mayor Thomas Burgin, for one, went back to the council after leaving the city's chief executive office.

But before McIntyre voluntarily vacated the mayor's office, he was flirting with the idea of someday running for the School Committee. He has always wanted to be a teacher and has a keen interest in education.

But, if those close to him were to bet on it, they would say he would be a council at-large candidate if he decides to return.

But regardless of what he decided to run for, he would be a strong contender. His popularity hasn't slipped in the three years or so that he departed from the active municipal political scene.

His return would certainly liveen things up.

WARD 6 Councillor Dennis Harrington hasn't given a public hint yet but insiders report he's really leaning toward a bid for state representative in the new Third Norfolk District.

We mentioned here a few weeks ago that he was thinking about it. But now, they say, he's about to sail his lat into the ring.

That, of course, would put him up against incumbent Joseph E. Brett who is seeking his 9th term.

But incumbents don't seem to bother Harrington. Three years ago he took on Ward 6 Councillor Vincent Smyth and made a respectable showing. Last year he ran against him again and won.

Insiders say he is thinking of the same move now-run this year against Brett and if he doesn't make it this time, run again in 1976. It would give him a "foot in the door".

AND, Herb Reppucci, the Wollaston hair stylist and West Quincy resident, reportedly is eyeing a bid for the Fourth Norfolk District seat occupied by William Delahunt.

JOYCE BAKER, president of the Quincy Women's Republican Club has nomination papers in circulation for that Fourth Norfolk District seat, confirming a forecast here last week.

It's beginning to look like this could be the year that the incumbents are going to be challenged.

PROUD MOMENT DEPT: City Council President-Senator Arthur Tobin is looking forward to a special privilege at the Quincy High School June graduation ceremonies. School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon has invited him to present a diploma to his son, Arthur, 17, who is among the graduates. Young Tobin has been accepted at both Harvard and Notre Dame. A tough choice but guess which one he will go to: Notre Dame.

DID you know that Charlie Bunker, North Quincy High baseball coach, lost a 10-inning 1-0 decision to the Red Sox's Luis Tiant in 1963 while Bunker was pitching for the Red Sox Winston-Salem team and Tiant for Burlington in the Carolina League.

"Luis pitched a no-hitter and I gave up three hits," Bunker recalls. "He still had that herky-jerky motion in those days." Midway in the following season Tiant went up to Cleveland to begin a sparkling major league career. Bunker's pro career was halted by a bad arm.

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter: "Every year it takes less time to fly around the world and more time to get to work."

● Youth Speaks Out

● If Mr. Nixon is so anxious to get Watergate behind him, why not voluntarily submit to a lie detector test and make the results public.

● There was a 50's dress up day at Quincy High recently. Some of the teachers didn't have to dress up.

● With the problem the airlines are having, BOAC might stand for Better on a Camel.

● All the girls who have been denied admission into Little League - Cheer up, the way things are going you could probably join The Red Sox.

● With all those expletives - Nixon's Tapes would be rated X.

● Quote from a Stanford Law School Professor after reading the transcripts. -- "If there were an affidavit signed by 1,500 angels, it would still be difficult to believe the President is innocent."

Just date single guys

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I met Howard at a party and it was love at first sight. I just knew this was the man for me. The problem is that he's married. I know by the way he looked at me that he was interested. Should I try to date Howard? I just can't get him off my mind.

Vicky

Dear Vicky:

Perhaps this will help some other girl. It is too late for me. You see, I'm pregnant and not married. I was foolish enough to let Ed move into my apartment. He said we would get married just as soon as he had a few bills paid. When the bills were almost paid, Ed bought a new car. Then the excuse was, "Wait til I pay off the car."

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

Perhaps this will help some other girl. It is too late for me. You see, I'm pregnant and not married. I was foolish enough to let Ed move into my apartment. He said we would get married just as soon as he had a few bills paid. When the bills were almost paid, Ed bought a new car. Then the excuse was, "Wait til I pay off the car."

The unhappy ending is that when Ed discovered I was pregnant, he moved out and hasn't called since. I can't believe he would leave me with no money and pregnant, but he did.

Deserted

Dear Deserted:

If you can't afford a lawyer, contact Legal Aid. They can advise you regarding Ed's responsibility. You can't undo the past, but you can learn a valuable lesson.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I feel like I'm in jail since I started going steady about two months ago. Jack insists on seeing me every minute of the day. I'm losing all my girl friends and never have time to shop or do anything for myself. I'm the type of person who needs some time alone. I'm beginning to feel suffocated. How can I get out of this situation?

Linda, Age 16

Dear Linda:

Simply tell Jack you've changed your mind. It's a woman's privilege you know. The longer you postpone making a decision the harder it is.

Your letter is another strong indication that going steady is not always the wisest way to go. Being glued to another, like a stamp to a letter, is just not as glamorous as it is depicted. At your age, you should circulate so that you will really know Mr. Right when he comes along.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I believe that home is where you let your hair down and relax, but my mother complains about a lot of small things — leaving the ice cubes in the sink, books on the table, or a glass left on the TV.

How can I convince her that home is the place to relax?

Jay

Dear Jay:

You better check on your home IQ. Sure, home is a place to relax but aren't you overdoing it a bit? What about the work you are creating for others?

Keep in mind that someone has to clean the house, pick up glasses, and fill the ice cube trays. I'm sure you can realize that it is important to keep your habits in check so that you are not infringing on the rights of others.

If you have a question, write: Pat and Marilyn Davis, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

Today's Women

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

Mother's tired of gab on TV

By ANN RUDY

I'm not one of those mothers who says don't get me anything for Mother's Day. I want plenty. And I want it all year around from people who aren't even my kids.

First of all, I'd like those responsible for laundry detergent commercials to stop writing copy which makes mothers sound like getting the ring off the collar is as important as keeping it on her finger.

I'd like them to stop showing that poor unfortunate compulsive cleaner shaking her head in dismay because her kid is the bold one and comes home with signs of it on his T-shirt.

I say, more power to the kid, not the detergent. If that mother really exists, she and Lady Macbeth would have a wonderful time together getting out, out, that damned spot, but she sure couldn't be much fun around the house.

Then there's the other extreme where the mother eats so much of the right cereal she looks just like her teenage daughter and the boyfriend grabs her in the swimming pool and says, "Oh! I'm sorry, Mrs. Jones, I thought you were Dale." Like fun he did. He's angling for an invitation to dinner.

It's OK, kid, I'll invite you, but I never want you to forget for a minute that I'm her mother — with all a mother's propensity for imagining where her daughter is at 2 a.m. when she said she'd be home at 12.

And when you bring her home I'll be waiting up at the kitchen table in my chenille robe, spooning in that cereal — let's see you mistake me for her then.

And please, no more mothers who talk as if their total worth depended on the kind of coffee they brew. I ask you: what do you remember about Ma Barker? Certainly not her coffee.

So for Mother's Day don't go to any trouble, just give it to me straight. Because it hurts when I have to switch channels on myself.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS

Long downstrokes tell of tension

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON

Dear Dorothy:

I'm 29 and in good health, so why am I such a bundle of nerves? I always seem disgusted with everybody and everything. I don't really know what I want. I have a tension headache day in and day out.

J.A.

Dear J.A.:

Too much steam pressure can cause the lid to pop. The too relaxed jellyfish doesn't last a minute out of its protective waters.

Somewhere, there is a happy medium, but few people ever find it. You take life very seriously and you accept each task as a mental and physical challenge. You expect a great deal of yourself, seen in the strong, high T crossings. Whatever you do is done without hesitation or fanfare, seen in the lack of upstrokes on h and t, and other strokes not shown.

You are a very diligent person and you work hard and long to accomplish, seen in the strong, long downstrokes. Your sights are high, but being so serious, narrows your scope. Because you are fencing yourself in, a tension headache is a natural result.

You need some freedom. You need the sun, the moon, and the stars — all a part of the great outdoors.

A certain amount of tension is necessary to live a productive life, but too much will cause the strings to snap. So read broadly, think deeply, pray continuously, give much — and occasionally belch.

Market Report

Fresh Local Produce Available At Reasonable Prices This Week

The appearance of fresh, local produce at farm stands and market produce counters marks the beginning of the Bay State growing season, reports the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture (MDA).

The supply of native asparagus is heavier this week, as it arrives daily from the Pioneer Valley farms. You'll find it mainly at nearby roadside farm stands, of excellent quality, and reasonably priced.

Native rhubarb, pink, juicy and tender, is improving in quality as the crop comes in, with prices easing.

Scallions and spinach, too, are now being harvested locally, offering a wider choice of fresh-picked vegetables than we've had for many months.

Bay State farm stands are offering a wide variety of vegetable plants and seedlings for the home garden, and planting time for many of them is already here.

During the first two weeks in May, says the MDA, you can set out lettuce, cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli and onions. Many bedding plants are also safe to plant now, too: pansies, petunias, alyssum, snapdragons, verbena, carnations. They're all available at most farm stands and nurseries.

The supply of plants and cut flowers for Mother's Day - Sunday, May 12 - is plentiful, though it's best to buy as early as possible for the widest choice. You'll find azaleas, hydrangeas, chrysanthemums, daffodils, cineraria and others among the plants, and cut roses, carnations, mums and daisies in profusion.

Some of the more tender vegetables should not be planted outdoors until Memorial Day, when all danger of frost has passed. (What's "normal" about New England weather?) Tomatoes, peppers, eggplants and the squashes should be held indoors until about May 25, the MDA recommends.

Keep those plants in their flats in a cool place, out of wind and sun, as in garage or basement...but they should have some light. Keep them damp, not soaked. This simple process is known as "hardening off" - conditioning for the rigors of outdoor growing - after their early upbringing under glass, in regulated temperatures. You'll have harder plants that way, says the MDA.

Swimming pools an ancient luxury

At about the time man started to write his own history, some 5,000 years ago, he also discovered swimming pools.

As the Egyptians were busy building the pyramids, the first known pool, in the form of a public bath, was being constructed in India. — CNS

Reduce Floor Fall Danger

Every house has a floor. And that floor, covered or bare, has been the scene and cause of all too many accidental fatal injuries - especially to older people. You can do something about this innocent-looking menace.

One of the prime offenders is the magic flying carpet known as the scatter rug. Make sure all scatter rugs are securely fastened down. Tacks will work, and there are a number of paints, sprays, powders and padding on the market designed to provide a non-skid backing to scatter rugs. In tests, Consumer's Research found that your best bet, for both gripping and long wear, is a reinforced foam rubber sheet placed beneath the rug. When waxing, apply an even, thin coating of wax and then shine like crazy. A high shined, well buffed, waxed floor is surprisingly because the wax is hard and dry. It is the underpolished, or slightly wet, smeary floor that is slippery and unsafe.

Message:

'We Build'

JOHN S. KENT
President

Fifty years ago a few dedicated men organized the Kiwanis Club of Quincy. The idea being to make the city in which they live and work a better community.

For fifty years the presidents before me as well as myself have carried forward the Kiwanis theme "We Build".

What better way to build than to help build the character of young people. All through the history of our club, since its conception, we have raised funds to help young people to help themselves by providing scholarships, day camps, camperships and other benefits.

I know that our past members as well as present and future members will carry on with our theme for the next fifty years.

At Aftercare Center Volunteers Help Former Mental Patients Return To Community Living

A group of 16 volunteers are assisting the professional staff of the Wollaston Community Aftercare Center to help former mental patients at Medfield State Hospital to return to community living.

The center, Wollaston Congregational Church, 48 Winthrop Ave., is a joint venture of the South Shore Mental Health Center, Wollaston Congregational Church and the South Shore Unit of Medfield State Hospital.

It offers counselling and activity groups for former patients, their families and friends in the South Shore area. It also serves people with no history of hospitalization who feel they need added support. Activity and skill-developing groups are involved in cooking, sewing and handiwork, home decoration on low cost budgets, movement and dance, drama, and silk-screening.

The center's first large social function was a recent highly successful dance followed by a spaghetti dinner.

Volunteers serving at the center include:

Kathy Kichline, Kathy Oliver, Becky Weisman and Carol Williams, all of Eastern Nazarene College; Irene Cavanaugh, Rudolph Lofgren, Fran Martin and Peggy Shine, all of Wollaston; Priscilla Johnson of Quincy.

Janice Worswick of Braintree, Peg Sandal of Weymouth, Barbara Hopps of Medfield, Steve Schumann of Boston, Joan Shahan of Brookline, Charlene Englehard of Cambridge, and Anne Pope of Acton.

Meeting May 13 To Plan July 4th Celebration

The Wollaston Woman's Club Juniors and the newly organized Wollaston Community Association are joining together to plan an "old fashioned" 4th of July celebration for residents of the Wollaston area.

Mrs. Kathy Roberts of 37 Estabrook Rd and Mrs. Pam Spring of 107 Waterston Ave., are asking for support from parents, area groups and businesses. They urge all interested parties to attend an organizational meeting Monday evening, May 13 at 8 p.m. at the Wollaston Legion Post on Weston Avenue.

Festivities will be held at Pageant Field from 9 a.m. to noon the morning of the fourth and will tentatively include costume, bicycle and carriage parades, as well as contests and races for both children and adults.

It is hoped that enough support will be given to enable prizes, refreshments and balloons to be distributed free of charge.

Anyone who cannot attend the meeting but would like to help, is asked to contact Mrs. Roberts or Mrs. Spring.

MONEY TALKS American History Tells Us To Cool It In A Crisis

By Philip J. Lawrence
President

COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Hallowbrook
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

Let today's political and economic tribulations weigh too heavily upon us, it is well to recall that our American ancestors thought themselves to be living in the worst of times.

The industrial revolution, with its uprush of factories and cities, also produced the phenomenon of periodic industrial collapse. The first smash of the machine-production age occurred in 1819; another came in 1829, and the third and most severe up to that time in 1837. It prompted the Detroit Free Press to pronounce with the voice of doom: "All is darkness and despair. As a nation we are at the bottom of the hill."

The indecision of Franklin Pierce, who became our youngest president when he took office in 1853, earned him an evaluation as one of the most incompetent men ever in the presidency. The national picture in 1857 caused the Philadelphia Gazette to exclaim: "Nothing in this country is safe, solvent, or reliable."

Military victories were no preparation for Ulysses S. Grant as president of the United States. The panic of 1873 as he opened his second term, the political corruption of the high officials of his administration, and other ails provoked the New York World to the gloomy prediction: "Collapse is a grim reality. The days of the Republic are numbered."

A decade of waste that used up most of the nation's free capital, the delivery to market by the new railroads of so much wheat and cotton that they could not command a workable price, the flood of cheap silver and declining confidence in the maintenance of the gold standard brought on panic of 1893, prompting the New Orleans Picayune to note: "On every hand there is depression, wreck, and ruin. We can't go much further."

"The old ship of state is sinking," decided the Wall Street Journal in 1907, after investigations of large corporations disclosed many abuses and created public distrust, leading to a declining stock market, runs on banks, and other signs of chaos.

[Some 67 years later, the Wall Street Journal takes a more optimistic view of our present situation. Last November 30, the Journal observed: "We owe the benefits and comforts of the present era to free enterprise and the scarcity of whales," from which came the whale and sperm oil that supplied artificial light until the Civil War. "The Petroleum Age will pass as did the Stone Age [and the Whale Oil Era]," commented the Journal, expressing confidence in technology to see us through.]

The lesson of American history seems to be to keep cool, don't despair, rely on the basic common sense of the American people and our political system to set things aright.

Libertine Declines Job As Cemetery Prosecutor

special sitting of the Grand Jury when the special prosecutor, whoever he is, has the case ready."

The Norfolk County Commissioners have appropriated $10,000 for the special prosecutor to handle the case.

Libertine's name was the only one considered at a meeting of the 20-member bar association council in Walpole last week.

Meanwhile, former cemetery superintendent Anthony M. Famigletti filed a $200,000 suit in Norfolk Superior Court Monday charging City Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia with "false and malicious slander."

The suit charged that LaRaia "on or about Feb. 4, 16, 19 and 25 and on various other occasions" communicated the slander to third parties

"knowing the slander to be false."

It was subsequently published, the suit said, in the Patriot Ledger and the Boston Globe. Neither newspapers are involved in the suit, said Maurice Goldings of Boston, Famigletti's attorney.

The result of the slander, the suit said, was to cause Famigletti "great annoyance and cause him to be held up to ridicule and the contempt of the community."

Famigletti resigned as cemetery superintendent last November after it was discovered that he buried two relatives in graves at Mt. Wollaston Cemetery that he did not own.

The City Council continued the investigation at LaRaia's insistence and turned up other alleged irregularities in the cemetery administration.

Raiders Seek 1st Win Over Quincy In 4 Years

North Quincy's track team, under new coach Lou Tozzi, is enjoying one of its finest seasons in years and today (Thursday) the Raiders hope to defeat Quincy for the first time in four years when the rivals meet at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Going into last Tuesday's meet against Malden, the Raiders had a great 9-1 record (5-1 in the Greater Boston League). Tom Hall's Quincy team took a 4-2 record into Tuesday's meet against Medford.

Until Quincy was defeated by powerhouse Haverhill in its first meet this spring, it hadn't lost a GBL meet since North Quincy performed the feat four years ago. Going into that meet both teams were unbeaten.

North last week continued to roll as it defeated Everett, 74-52.

The Raiders, for the second meet in a row, had three double winners, Paul O'Donnell taking the 100 and javelin, Neal McPartlin the high hurdles and triple jump and John Mackey the 880 and high jump.

Other Raider winners were Phil Robinson, 220; Dick Coughlin, 440; and Dave Lorman, discus.

Quincy followed up a win over Revere with a 73-58 decision over Chelsea as John MacFarlane continued undefeated in the triple jump and Lane Watkins was a double winner in the 100 and long jump.

Other Quincy winners were Steve Oriola, 220; Dave DiBona, 440; Arnie Vorrusso, mile; Paul Riggs, discus; and Charlie Gaziano, javelin.

Earlier in the week North annihilated Somerville, 98-33, with O'Donnell, McPartlin and Brian Doherty double winners.

O'Donnell again won the 100 and javelin, McPartlin the high hurdles and triple jump and sophomore Doherty the 220 and long jump. Other North winners were Geoff Hennessey, 440;

Chris Morton, low hurdles; Mackey, high jump; Paul Doherty, shot put and Robinson, discus. North also won the relay.

North had defeated Revere, 78-49, in its previous meet as sophomore Bart Petracca broke the school mile record but was nipped by Revere's Tom Doherty. Petracca's time was 4:35.8.

Earlier North wins were over Brookline, a future Suburban League rival, 102-33, in a non-league meet; Medford, 73-57, in the GBL and Thayer Academy, 76-45, outside the league.

Quincy, which has had personnel problems, bounced back from an opening day loss to Haverhill to run over Everett, 126-25; lost to Malden, 69-62; breezed over Somerville, 90-41, as Art DiLoreto remained unbeaten in the high jump, then defeated Revere and Chelsea.

No Problem Seen Bar Assn. To Try Again To Select Cemetery Prosecutor

The executive council of the Norfolk County Bar Association was slated to meet Wednesday night to nominate a special prosecutor to determine if the Quincy cemetery investigation should go before a grand jury.

Association President Charles George of Holbrook said he anticipates "no problems" in choosing a lawyer for the job, which was turned down a week ago by the first nominee, Quincy-Braintree Atty. Edward Libertine.

Even if the second nominee accepts the post immediately it will be a difficult task to put together a case in time for the May sitting of the Grand Jury which opens May 28.

If he doesn't make it, Dist. Atty. George G. Burke would have to ask for a special sitting of the grand jury to hear the case.

Burke said it will be up to the special prosecutor "to determine whether to go before the Grand Jury to seek indictments or to go into Quincy District Court or not to prosecute."

"The case will be completely in his hands," Burke said.

Ward 4 Democrat Delegates Challenged

Another protest has been lodged against the selection of Democratic ward delegates from Quincy to the 11th Congressional District Conference.

Jeff Isaacson, president of the South-West Community Council, filed a challenge against the six-member Ward 4 delegation which was chosen in caucus May 4.

"I did so for the simple fact that when I arrived at the caucus I was told I was not listed on their voting lists," said Isaacson.

"However, on Monday, May 6, I had it verified at the Election Department at City Hall that I am a registered Democrat in Ward 4."

The delegates chosen in Ward 1 also are being challenged by Timothy P. Cardwell, chairman of the Quincy Taxpayer's Revolt.

A spokesman for the State Democratic Committee said both challenges have been received but no action has been taken on them.

Delegates chosen from Ward 4 were: Paul C. Kelly, Louise M. Brabazon, Richard W. Barry, Gerard Coletta, Joseph P. Shea and Frank E. Glenn.

The Congressional District Conference will be held in the Sheraton Tara in Braintree June

1 at which time four delegates will be picked to attend the Conference on Democratic Organization and Policy in Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 6-8.

Talks In Washington Hopes High For End To Shipyard Strike

By TOM HENSHAW

Negotiators for the two sides in the 61-day-old strike at General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard were scheduled to meet in Washington Wednesday amid high hopes that fruitful talks were at last getting off the ground.

The sessions between the company and striking Local 5 of the Shipbuilding workers union were arranged by Federal Mediator John Zancanaro following a flurry of meetings with members of the Massachusetts Congressional delegation.

The most recent attempts at negotiations were broken off in mid-April.

"I hope the company is going to be realistic this time," said Arthur Batson, president of Local 5 Tuesday before enplaning for Washington. "I hope they're through with the cat and mouse game they've been playing for two months."

Spokesmen for General Dynamics were not available for comment on the renewed talks.

The union is asking a $1.50 hourly wage hike plus a 25-cent an hour cost of living adjustment while the company has held out for talk about "production improvements" before getting down to money.

But Robert Smith, director of industrial relations for General Dynamics, said last week the company is prepared to make a solid wage offer as part of a "total package concept," which would include the productivity changes.

"I have the offer in my pocket," said Smith. "I think it will be put on the table, hopefully in the next round."

Batson said he had not heard of the money offer - "only what I read in the papers."

"I hope he's got a big pocket," he added. "And I hope he doesn't get robbed in Washington. I hear it's a pretty dangerous place."

600 City Employees' Union Vote May 30

Some 600 of Quincy's 2,000 city employees will vote May 30 to determine which union will represent them in contract negotiations with the city.

The decision is to be made between the Quincy City Employees Union and Boston Local 285 of the Service Employees International Union.

The Quincy union, which is Local 576, has been fighting attempts by the International to merge it with Boston Local 285.

John Keefe, president of Local 576, has maintained that the International wants to split the Quincy union into three parts and divide them up among three Boston unions.

Local 576 includes hospital, library and clerical workers.

The contract with the city expired Dec. 31, 1973, but negotiations with Quincy's Labor Negotiator Joseph McFarland have been held up pending the bargaining election.

New Hours For Disposal

New hours have been announced for the Quincy disposal area in West Quincy, effective Monday, May 20.

It will be open from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., Monday through Friday; and 7:30 a.m. to 12 noon on Saturday.

The old hours were 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Monday through Friday; and 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday.

Operation Cleanup In Germantown Saturday

Operation Cleanup is planned for the cellars of fire-plagued housing projects in Germantown Saturday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The cleanup is sponsored by the Harborview Residents Committee in conjunction with the city of Quincy, the Quincy Housing Authority and the 187th Brigade of the National Guard.

The projects have been hit with 11 fires this year, three of them in one night last month, many of them involving rubbish in the cellars.

Residents are asked to leave all their cellar rubbish on the street in containers Friday night to be picked up in the morning. Members of the cleanup brigade will go into cellars by invitation to remove large items.

SURVIVAL, INC., celebrated its fourth anniversary with a dinner at the United First Parish Church Monday. Left to right, Rev. John R. Graham, Police Chief Francis X. Finn, Norfolk District Court Judge Robert Prince, the guest speaker, and former House Speaker John McCormack. It was announced that a $144,224 grant has been made to Survival by the National Institute of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to carry out its work.

'Having A Ball'

'Her Honor' Wants Speeding Cut, Tax Abatement Age Reduction

By TOM HENSHAW

"Oh, this is so exciting," cried the Mayor. "All the gifts and everything!"

A couple of politicians in the crowd looked around uneasily.

"You're not going to keep them, are you?" someone asked, "after what happened to all those folks down in Washington."

"Oh, my goodness," cried the Mayor. "This is all honest, isn't it?"

As a matter of fact it was.

The Mayor was Mrs. Mary Sullivan of 22 Pelican Rd., Adams Shore, who was occupying the front office at City Hall in place of Mayor Walter J. Hannon Friday during Senior Citizens Government Day.

Outside in the Council Chamber the acting City Council was working on a resolution that would give senior citizens a discount at supermarkets on certain days. It passed unanimously.

"Resolved," read Council President Arthur H. Tobin, who was helping his senior counterpart, Mrs. Margaret Campbell of 42A West St., to learn the ropes, "that residents of Quincy 65 or over be exempt from marriage license fees."

That sailed through without debate, too.

Mayor Sullivan, a bubbly little brunette (about 4-foot-10), told a news conference that the first thing she was going to do as mayor was crack down on speeders on Sea St.

"I was crossing Sea St. to go to church a little while ago," she disclosed, "and a car went speeding through a light and nearly killed me."

Another thing she'd like to do, she said, was cut the tax abatement age from 70 to 65. She was starting to sound like a politician already.

A photographer came in to take a picture of her at the Mayor's desk. He wanted

"How about a raise," whispered Tobin as the photographer was setting up the picture.

"My goodness," said the Mayor frowning, "that's what everybody's been asking me."

The cares of public office were starting to weigh on her.

During the course of her news conference, City Hall reporters learned this about the new mayor:

She used to be a dancer when she was a girl.

"A belly dancer?" asked one reporter hopefully.

"Goodness, no," she laughed. "I taught children how to tap dance and things like that."

She stopped laughing for a moment to wipe her eyes.

"I'm having a ball," she said to no one in particular.

Mayor Sullivan has two children, Fr. Frank Sullivan of Montrose, Conn.; and Mrs. Ann Johnson of Hingham; three grandchildren, and two great grandchildren.

For 13 years she was the matron at Broad Meadows Junior High School and the bouquet of flowers on the desk was from the Broad Meadows faculty.

She also received a citation of congratulations from the State House of Representatives. It was presented by Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy).

Other city officials-for-a-day were:

Councillors-at-large: Mrs. Ruth Duffy, 540 Hancock St.; Mrs. Anna Bell, 214 Newbury Ave.; Mrs. Betty Sterling, 540 Hancock St.

McDonald Getting His Sheriff's Campaign Rolling

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Whenever politician watchers get together to shoot the breeze and George McDonald's name comes up, someone always asks: "Is he or isn't he?"

Is he or isn't he running for sheriff, is what they mean.

McDonald had set up a campaign headquarters at Hancock St. and Hancock Ct., Quincy Center, some weeks ago but there hasn't been anything doing there.

And there's been considerable speculation that he was in line for a high-salaried appointment.

All of this has resulted in the above, "is he or isn't he?" question. Well, the answer now seems to be definite: he is!

The proof-positive is a reception-luncheon planned for him today [Thursday] at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

And on Sunday at 4 p.m. there'll be some activity at the campaign headquarters. He will formally open it at that time.

So, what's he been doing since announcing his candidacy months ago?

"I have done a tremendous amount of groundwork throughout the entire county in an effort to seek this office," the Quincy Democrat says. "I am now totally engaged in conducting an extensive county-wide campaign."

McDonald was the top vote getter in the Quincy City Council at-large race in 1970 and polled 150,000 votes when he was re-elected county commissioner in 1972.

He's been around the course, as they say, and would have to be considered a formidable candidate for sheriff.

MEANWHILE, Councillor-Rep. Clifford Marshall, another Quincy Democrat and strong contender for the sheriff's badge-will be guest of honor at a $10 per head reception Sunday, June 23 at the State Street South inside-outside courtyard.

Tickets for the affair, to be held from 3 to 7 p.m., are available at his Temple St., headquarters. The date, incidentally, is his wife, Louise's birthday.

YOU MAY SOON be reading a sizzling book ala Payton Place with a Quincy-like setting. It'll be fiction [or semi-fiction] with the characters in the book based on real-life persons. It's being written now by a teacher who hopes to have it published in six months.

POLICE CHIEF Francis Finn and at least one detective were in Florida recently to interview one of the witnesses who has supplied some of the information in the Quincy Cemetery Dept. probe. The witness is a former employee of the cemetery department.

WELL, pretty Patricia Kelley, reigning Miss Quincy Bay Race Week, is no woman libber. For one thing, she cannot stand the designation "Ms."

"It sounds masculine to me," says Patty, who is anything but. "Miss has a pretty sound to it but Ms. just sounds masculine to me."

She also can't see the current campaigns to allow women to retain their maiden names when they wed. "Why even get married," she asks.

Patty says she hates the thought of giving up her title as Miss Quincy Bay Race Week "because I have had so much fun this past year."

She'll be on hand to crown her successor at this year's pageant, Friday night, July 19.

Patty can still be seen on the Banacek TV series. That's her walking arm in arm with George Peppard in the introduction scene. She thinks Peppard is better looking in real life than he is on the screen. "But he's just like Banacek in real life."

Incidentally, he asked her for a date-and she turned him down. "Well, I didn't say no, I just told him I had something else to do that night," she smiles.

She didn't say why. But maybe because Peppard acts like Banacek off screen, too.

ERNEST MONTILIO, the noted Quincy baker, could probably have been a sculptor if he had decided to go into the arts. But he's an artist anyway when it comes to sculpturing cakes.

His most recent production, the 3,000-pound birthday cake for the 100th anniversary of the Kentucky Derby was really something - a 6-foot high replica of the Churchill Downs Steeple. Ingredients included: 2,500 eggs, 1,200 pounds of flour and 600 pounds of butter, topped off with 1,000 pounds of "mint julep" frosting. [Try that in your kitchen someday!]

Montilio several years ago whipped up an upright piano cake for Jimmy Durante's 75th birthday and has done the battleship Massachusetts and a few other little tidbits.

New CP Clinic To Be Dedicated

The dedication and opening of the new South Shore Cerebral Palsy Clinic will be held Sunday under the direction of President Arthur J. Marchionne, Vice President William J. Trifone, and Executive Director Arthur Ciampa.

The ceremonies will take place outside the front entrance of the remodeled building at 105 Adams St.

The Taleb Grotto has donated the services of its band for the dedication. Members will also serve as hosts and guides during the open house tour.

Congressman James A. Burke, an honorary member of the Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore Area Inc., will be the keynote speaker.

Guests who have given much of their time and effort to make the "South Shore Cerebral Palsy Clinic" a reality, will be introduced.

The new facility, it is hoped, will enable more clients to be accommodated, from throughout the 45 communities within the jurisdiction of the South Shore Cerebral Palsy Clinic.

The new center will consist of seven workrooms, an occupational therapy room, a speech therapy room, a viewing room, a physical therapy room, a multi-purpose room, an examination room, a medical and social workers room, plus an office area, and an executive directors office.

The South Shore Cerebral Palsy Clinic was incorporated June 20, 1952.

At the new facility, everything is concentrated under one roof. One of the most important advantages is the entrance on the street level, with no stairs to climb.

The Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore Area, Inc. is a financially participating member of the United Way of Massachusetts Bay, the Plainville, Norwell and Old Colony United Fund. Other income is obtained from fees for services rendered, plus the income obtained from campaigns in non-federated areas.

At the close of the dedication ceremonies there will be a ribbon cutting ceremony at the entrance to the new facility by Rhonda LaCroix. The building will then be open to the public for inspection. A collation will be served in the Physical Therapy Room.

All activities will end and the building closed at 4 p.m.

LWV To Elect Officers Tonight

The annual dinner meeting of the League of Women Voters of Quincy will be held tonight [Thursday] at 6:30 p.m. at Walsh's Restaurant, North Quincey.

New officers will be elected. Nominated are: President, Mrs. Janet Poole, 125 Winthrop Ave., Wollaston.

First Vice-President - Mrs. Jane Croke, 17 Milton Rd., North Quincey.

Second Vice-President, Ina Cutler, 101 Willow Ave., Wollaston.

Corresponding Secretary, Grace Rutan, 268 Harvard St., North Quincey.

Recording Secretary, Janice

O'Brien, 260 Elmwood Ave., Wollaston.

Treasurer, Kathye Foster, 16 Bromfield St., Wollaston.

Directors - Luleen Anderson, 39 Knollwood Drive, Squantum; Marie Caristi, 160 Davis St., Wollaston; Sheila de Bettencourt, 85 Baxter Ave., Quincy; Chris Morrison, 18 Perkins St., West Quincy.

The annual meeting is the equivalent locally to a state or national league convention. Members decide on one or more issues for local study, they adopt a proposed budget and new officers are elected.

After studying health care in Quincy, this past year the League board recommends that members continue their study on health care and to update their transportation study in Quincy. The League has just completed a two-year study of the Quincy School system.

As in past years members are expected to approve a proposed budget which includes funds for Voter Services and action in the community. Members' dues cover the costs of support of the League at the state and national level. Money for the local budget is raised by a finance drive within the business and professional community of Quincy.

Strike Talks Shift To Washington

Batson said his prediction that the company wants a three-month strike as an excuse for falling behind in contracts "looks pretty good right now." "There's still a lot of negotiating to do," he said. "And when you figure the time it will take to get a vote of the membership, you can bet that the day we go back to work is still quite a ways off."

Batson credited the Congressional delegation, particularly Congressman James

A. Burke with "moving it off the ground."

He said Congressman Wilbur Mills [D-Ark.], chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee, sat in on one of the meetings, because Burke is a high-ranking member of his committee.

Meanwhile, contract talks between General Dynamics and Shipbuilders Local 90, which represents clerical employees, were postponed pending the outcome of the latest meetings with Local 5.

"Local 5's negotiations are more pressing than ours since our contract doesn't expire until June 16," said Local 90 President Arthur Fitzgerald. "And a lot of our depends on how Local 5 makes out."

The last Local 90 negotiations were held Monday at which time, Fitzgerald said, the talks centered around non-economic issues.

"We left on a friendly note," he added.

Youth Speaks Out

Most people thought that President Nixon's favorite words were "Let me make this perfectly clear," but the transcripts reveal he had many others, like -----[expletive deleted].

It Pay$ To Be A Senior
$30 - Prom Tickets
$10 - Yearbook
$3.50 - Cap and Gown
$10 - Class Dues

The President says he will edit the tapes for us. Since when does the accused tell the Court what evidence it can have.

President Nixon disapproves of the legalization of Marijuana, presumably because he dislikes the Joint sessions with Congress.

After being involved in a scandal, West Germany's head of State - Willy Brandt resigned. Some countries have all the luck.

Helen Reddy sings of sad, happy days

By ROBIN WELLES

Perth is about as far from Broadway as you can get, not only in distance but in the mood of the times — Broadway all flash and color, and Perth buttoning up Australia's claim to a great land by flying the flag on the west coast. It was in Perth in 1946, a year after the big war ended, that Helen Reddy, at 4, began a campaign that was to climax 27 years later not only with the conquest of Broadway but with the rest of the country.

Helen sang in Perth's Tivoli Theater with her parents, Max and Stella Reddy, a popular song-and-dance team in Australia.

Tragically, they died the same year that Helen Reddy was voted the best female pop vocalist in this country, in 1973.

And that is part of the very personal background of "Love Story for Jeffrey," Miss Reddy's new album for Capitol. In memory of her parents Miss Reddy sings a hauntingly beautiful "Stella by Starlight" which she imagines her father may once have sung to her mother.

This is Helen Reddy at the top of her art, the exquisite, finely honed voice stretching smoothly for the high ones and sliding into huskiness in the lower ranges.

To hear the album is to learn about her life and the sorrows and the happiness. There is the song, "You and Me Against the World," that recalls the lonely and fearful time when she arrived in New York City in 1966 with her daughter, Traci, then 3.

There is the title song, "Love Song for Jeffrey," which is dedicated to her husband, Jeffrey Wald, a young William Morris agent when she met and married him. It was Wald who recognized her great talent and played a major role in her rise to stardom.

"Ah My Sister" is dedicated to Helen's sister, Toni, and "I Got a Name" is a memorial to the recently deceased aunt after whom Helen was named. This is Reddy, superstar, at work.

STITCHING WITCHERY

Knit scraps used for lap robes

By BETTY W. KINSER

Are you getting bored hearing about how to use knit scraps? Hope not, because here's another idea:

Dear Mrs. Kinser:

A friend of mine told me about making lap robes from knit scraps. Baste the scraps to a backing of warm flannel or other lining, overlapping the edges of any shape or size patches. Zigzag or stitch the pieces to the backing. Good for the energy crisis. — Clara King Dennis, Hattiesburg, Miss.

Good Idea, Clara. Be sure to clip this, girls, because this is all I have on the subject.

QUICK STITCH: How do you practice a buttonhole? With all the layers! No point in practicing on a single layer of fabric, is there? Use two layers of fabric, plus anything else that is in your garment — such as interfacing, interlining, underlining, etc. Practice makes perfect or just about, anyway.

Questions may be addressed to Mrs. Betty W. Kinser, Stitching Witchery, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

Morning tough for 'night person'

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

If you are wondering if you are a "night person" or a "morning person," come on over to my house sometime and watch me make breakfast.

I'm pure night person. Those of us in this fix cannot begin to tell the rest of you what it's like, but on behalf of the night people I would like to make a request of the morning people.

Please, for heaven's sake, all you sure of foot and clear of eye at 6 a.m., do not flaunt it. I have a husband who can get up at dawn and eat pork sausage and fried eggs while telling me, as I sway in the chair next to him, what a gorgeous sunrise he saw while I was trying to find my way down the hall and into the refrigerator.

"You have to glimpse it at just the right moment," he will say, shoveling in the eggs, "or you might as well just stay in bed."

I try not to think about that word bed and ask if he would like more toast. To my horror, he says yes.

It is not an easy task to make toast when your arms are asleep and three-quarters of your brain is still involved with the fascinating dream you had the night before. You may ask why I bother to get up at all. It's training.

My mother was a morning person and, every morning while I was growing up, appeared at the foot of my bed, fully dressed, and announced, "Hot breakfast! I've been up for hours."

Then she would give me a rundown of news from the morning paper and the weather report. I may not have had television as a kid, but I had mama. And today, when my alarm rings, her example of good, hot breakfast is not easy to ignore.

So I get up and walk into my closet for my robe, only it isn't a walk-in closet.

"Time to get up," the kids will call, "Mom just hit the door."

But I do get up. And what does it matter if I fix breakfast with my eyes closed?

By tonight I can say to my husband, who will be nodding in his chair, "Johnny Carson's on. He's gorgeous, but you have to glimpse him at just the right moment or you might as well go to bed."

What about zipper?

By RIV TOBIN

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

Whenever I see a woman who forgot (or was unable) to hook the collar at the back zipper I never know whether to offer to do it for her or not. Should I?

Mary J.

Dear Mary:

You certainly wouldn't call attention to it in public. Unless the zipper was slipping embarrassingly low or the unhooked collar spoiled the total effect, I wouldn't mention it in private, either.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

Perhaps I take "party bridge" too seriously, but women who wear jangling charm bracelets or fiddle with chain necklaces drive me wild when I'm trying to concentrate. Please put something in your column about this.

S.D. Reader

Dear Reader:

It's in. Bridge players take note.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

How do you eat the tough ends of fresh asparagus?

Bernie

Dear Bernie:

You don't. Cut off the tender part and leave the tough portion on the plate.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS Writing visions outweigh actions

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON

Copley News Service

Dear Dorothy:

I need help. I have a character deficiency much the same as those who have a vitamin deficiency. No matter how many schedules I set up to allow time for my life's ambition of being a fiction writer, I fall by the wayside. What's my problem?

above.

You spend so much time building your life around the details of a schedule, seen in your carefully balanced f. A schedule is fine and necessary, but has little purpose if you don't do something with it. Your visions of being a fiction writer far outweigh that good old down-to-earth action — the only way to turn dreams into reality.

That downstroke is your shortstop. It's your action stroke! If it doesn't move, neither do you.

K.K.

You give up easily whenever stumbling blocks get in your way. You have to push through all the obstacles to be a winner.

Planning, dreaming, and scheduling are all important in anyone's way of life — but no one has ever gone anywhere without bending his back to the grindstone.

Dear K.K.:

Your action line is faulty.

You have plenty of desire and you know what you want to do, seen in your firm t crossings, but you're caught up in a world of intentions, hopes and desires, seen in the placement of the crossing above the stem. You want to be someone important, seen in the large beginning loop on capital I, and you want to be noticed, seen in the circle i dot.

Your desire to write is for real, and you have the ability to do it, seen in the rhythm of your writing, the greek e's and other strokes not shown

MEN OR WOMEN SAFER ?

No doubt, everyone has his or her own opinion as to who are the safer drivers - men or women. Most people queried on the subject normally vote for their own sex. But that's pure guesswork with a little ego-factor thrown in. According to statistics compiled by the National Safety Council, there is a definite relationship between accident rates, age and sex. Happy or not here they are.

The safest drivers on the road are women between the ages of 16 and 25. However women over 45 are either very good drivers or very bad ones.

The real killer on wheels is most likely to be a male under the age of 25. And according to the records, he does most of his killing on weekends during the hours of darkness. There were more than 55,000 persons killed on U.S. highways last year and one-third of the fatal accidents involved drivers under the age of 25. This is why insurance rates are usually higher for young male drivers.

Blue Hill Girl Scout Council To Celebrate 10th Anniversary

The 10th anniversary celebration of Blue Hill Girl Scout Council will highlight the council annual meeting and election of officers tonight (Thursday) at the Holiday Inn, in Randolph.

Blue Hill Council was first chartered in June, 1964, to administer Girl Scouting in an 18-town area which had previously been served by eight small councils. The town of Wellesley joined the council in 1967, and in 1970 it began serving the Dorchester and Neponset Valley districts of the disbanded Boston Council.

Blue Hill Council now serves over 9,000 girls and more than 1600 adults. During the council's 10-year history, it has had more than 40,500 different girl members and thousands of adult members and volunteers. Many of those adult Scouts will be at the annual meeting to reminisce, review the progress of the council, consider its future, and be recognized for their contributions to Girl Scouting.

The dinner meeting will include entertainment by the "Grasshoppers", a Girl Scout singing group from Norwood. A business meeting will be held to receive the committee reports, elect officers, board and nominating committee members, and to consider proposed by-law revisions. Voting delegates at the meeting represent each of the 19 communities served by the council.

The program will also include recognition and awards for adult volunteers who have given outstanding service, and all graduating Seniors will be invited to participate in a welcoming ceremony into adult Girl Scouting.

A review of the council's history will be conducted by Senior Scout Heidi Larson of Braintree, followed by the installation of officers by another Senior, Carol Liddell of Needham, who is president of the council Senior Planning Board.

Over 250 adult volunteers, neighborhood delegates, guests, and girls from all towns in Blue Hill Council are expected to attend the meeting.

Taleb Grotto To Sponsor CP 'Day At Circus'

For the ninth consecutive year, cerebral palsied children and adults and their attendants will enjoy a "Day at the Circus" at Boston Garden Friday, May 17, as guests of Taleb Grotto of Quincy.

Buses chartered by Taleb Grotto will leave Masonic Temple at 2:30 p.m. and will return to Quincy at 6:45 p.m. However, all the cerebral palsied must provide their own transportation to and from the Temple.

George Moody, Monarch of Taleb Grotto said more than 150 cerebral palsied children and adults will be treated to a complete show and refreshments of ice cream, popcorn, peanuts, candy and goodies.

In addition to the annual "Day at the Circus", Taleb Grotto sponsors a Christmas Party for the cerebral palsied, campships and a station bus used in transportation.

You can have a strong voice in our efforts to reduce your electric bills.

Ask your Congressman to help.

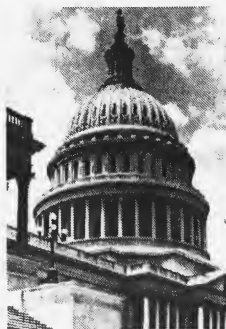

Keep a couple of things in mind when you ask for the new legislation we're going to need to help lower electric costs here in New England.

First, remember the real problem. Residual fuel oil, now used to generate over 70% of your electricity, has jumped from $3.44 to over $10 a barrel.

These prohibitive prices have brought an astronomical increase in your fuel adjustment charge... and, incidentally, not one penny's worth of profit to your electric company! All of this money goes directly to our suppliers.

We are hopeful that fuel oil prices eventually will go down. And, if so, any and all decreases will be reflected automatically in your fuel adjustment charge.

But this is small consolation to our customers and we can't simply wait for lower oil prices - particularly since there are more immediate answers.

Coal is one and a good one... once we're able to burn it! Lower cost, higher sulphur fuel oil is another... again, given the go-ahead to use it.

And that's where you can help. By urging your congressman to support reasonable modifications in the Clean Air Act so that we can purchase and burn lower cost fuels.

We believe that through the reasonable use of these fuels, we can lower your electric bills and still meet primary air quality standards.

This is one of several areas of vital interest requiring legislative action in which we are inviting our customers to help us gain congressional support in our efforts to provide lower cost electricity.

We urge you to clip the attached coupon and mail it to your congressman now. Your voice will be heard!

Sir: The excessive fuel costs our electric company has been forced to pay in order to provide reliable service have resulted in higher electric bills for both residential and commercial customers. Fresh Spinach, Rhubarb Plentiful

Menu Enhancer

Fresh spinach - that versatile succulent despised by kids and pushed by mothers for uncounted generations - is plentiful in the Bay State this week, reports the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture (MDA).

Fresh picked from the field, it's an excellent value by the pound.

So it's a good value and a good, healthy, flavorful food. The kids of the Commonwealth couldn't care less. Nor could at an entire generation of parents, who were raised in the era just before the advent of vitamin supplements, and thus were the victims of spinach-pushing mothers who knew in their hearts that if they didn't force the stuff down. Spinach was full of iron, they were told, and they passed this folk wisdom on...only to make this useful vegetable perhaps the least popular growing thing in the country.

There came a time, however, when the wisdom changed, and spinach was officially OUT. So some kids even began to like it. Now, with the debunking past, it's known to be an excellent source of Vitamin A, B, C and B-2...but more important to the homemaker, spinach is one of the most easily combined and flexibly used vegetables available. Salads, souffles, pies, omelets, croquettes, dumplings, soups, stuffings...the recipes available in almost any respectable cookbook are plentiful and imaginative.

You can be a spinach-pusher today...and be loved for it.

Scholarships, Social Activities

Object Of T 'The Bluemacs'

Mr. MacLaughlin, a teacher in the Science Dept. of QHS, has organized a new club this year which will be of benefit to this school.

The club, named the Bluemacs, was formed late this year to organize and run social activities and also give some scholarships to deserving seniors to help them out in college.

The club is run by a committee on a general vote. There is no real leader of the club. Each member has a certain job that he is responsible for. The club will run one activity a month next year and two more before this year ends.

This year, in April, there was another "Fifties Dance" and a "Fifties Day" preceding it where students and teachers alike dressed accordingly. In May, there will be the Superstars for Scholarship Competition.

As for next year, this tentative schedule is set up:

- Sept. - Sophomore Dance.
- Oct. - Dance.
- Nov. - Semi-formal Dance
- Dec. - Xmas Party and a Celtics game.
- Jan. - Boston Pops, play or a Rock Concert.
- Feb. - Dance.

Quincy Symphony Orchestra:

60 Amateur Musicians With A Professional Sound

By STEVE FERRARA

Amateur musicians of all ages and from all walks of life blend their talents to make the professional sounds of the Quincy Symphony Orchestra.

The orchestra is made up of teachers, students, housewives, and various professional and non-professional people ranging in age from a junior high schooler to a couple of septuagenarians.

Violinist George Engelmann of 274 Palmer St., Germantown, an eighth-grader at Broad Meadows Junior High and 70-year-old principal viola Margaret Lert-Schwartz of Brookline, who comes from a family of famous musicians in Vienna, get together once a week with principal cellist Bruce Randall, 80 South Central Ave., Wollaston, junior civil engineer with the City of Quincy, and first bassoonist Dr. Stephen Wright of the Faulkner Hospital, Jamaica Plain and others to practice classical, semi-classical and popular music. They put on five performances a year.

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra, made up of over 60 people from Quincy, and the South Shore and Boston areas, is "one big happy family" according to Conductor Robert Brown of Wollaston.

Says Brown, who is also Chairman of Eastern Nazarene College's Music Department, "The social aspect of the orchestra is like a family getting together."

The orchestra will perform its annual Pops Concert Wednesday, May 22, at 8 p.m. at the Quincy Armory, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

This year's program includes Tchaikovsky's "Romeo and Juliet" Fantasy as well as selections from musicals "Mame" and "South Pacific", and a special arrangement of Scott Joplin rag tunes including academy award nominee "The Entertainer", from the movie "The Sting".

Featured solo group will be The Janus Woodwind Quartet, artists-in-residence at Eastern Nazarene College.

Other soloists who have appeared with the Quincy Symphony Orchestra over the years include violinist Charles Castleman of Braintree who debuted with the orchestra 10 years ago. Since then he has played with the Boston Pops, on the Lawrence Welk and Ed Sullivan shows, and has just completed a smash tour of Europe.

Lisa Goldman of Quincy made her piano debut with the Quincy Symphony when she was 10 years old. She was so little at that time that an orchestra member had to tape wooden blocks to the foot pedals so she could reach them. She later appeared with Arthur Fiedler.

The first Quincy Symphony Orchestra was formed before World War Two. The present orchestra was formed around 1957 and was conducted by Nicholas Van Slyck, now head of the Longy School of Music, Cambridge.

Brown came to the orchestra in 1967. Besides his duties with the Quincy Symphony and Eastern Nazarene, Brown is organist and choir master at the First Baptist Church in Wollaston. He is a graduate of the University of Illinois Graduate School of Music and has studied piano under masters including Maurice Dumesnil, a pupil of Claude Debussy.

The orchestra has grown since Brown came to Quincy.

"When I came the orchestra was very small, only 30 or 35 people. Now it has grown to around 65," notes Brown.

"We are a civic orchestra of amateur musicians who are being educated—and at the same time are performing their talents. People love to play in front of people and use the skills they learned when they were young."

Besides the Pops concert, the orchestra plays a concert each season of the year. The fall concert contains music for school age children and is played at North Quincy High School. The mid-winter concert contains more classical music and features a soloist.

The April "Youth Performs Concert" features solos by young people and performances by the North Quincy and Quincy High School Chorus. The Quincy Recreation Department sponsors a Flag Day Concert, an outdoor Pops concert in Faxon Park each June.

Ticket and table reservations may be made through Mrs. Frank W. Vallier at 479-2408.

Quincy Synphony orchestra members from Quincy include violinists [concert mistress] Eleanor B. Nelson, Alice Kauffman, Barbara Brandt Litterio, Irene Williamson, QUINCY SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA Conductor Robert Brown leads the 70-piece orchestra in a recent concert at the North Quincy High School Auditorium. The orchestra will perform its annual Pops concert at Quincy Armory, Hancock St., on May 22.

Andrew T. Walsh, Christopher Nourse, Daniel West, Ann Marie Beaudry, Stephen P. Brown, Stephen H. Brown, Julia Creswell, George Engelmann, Robert Levitsky and Penny Stoddard.

Violas Catherine Bishop, Evangeline Dill and Peter Edson. Cellos [principal] Bruce D. Randall, Paul Sullivan, Helen Kresinski and Brenda Chambers. String Bass Karen C. Rydwansky and Earl C. Healey. Flutist Dorothea Malouf.

Joyce Baker Candidate For State Representative

Joyce I. Baker, vice chairman of the Ward 5 Republican City Committee, has announced her candidacy for state representative from the new Fourth Norfolk District, which also includes parts of Wards 3 and 4.

Mrs. Baker, an accountant and mother of three who lives at 162 Warren Ave., Wollaston, said she decided to run out of "frustration with manipulated elections and the weakening of our traditional two-party system."

"I feel that the voter is being disenfranchised from his vote and, because of lack of information or involvement, allows a few to dictate the future of our city and state government," she said.

"I will work to attract the voters who have become as weary and disillusioned as I with today's political events.

"Today's problems of high taxes, welfare, crime and political intrigue cannot be solved with patronage and the promising of favors.

"A fresh approach, a new face and lots of hard work are what is needed, and this is what I intend to supply."

Mrs. Baker also is president of the Wollaston School PTA and a member of the Downtown Steering Committee, Quincy Women's Club, Quincy Historical Society, Norfolk County Sheriff's Association and President of the Quincy Women's Republican Club.

Her husband is Lawrence W. Baker of Baker & Sons Real Estate.

The new Fourth Norfolk District, which Mrs. Baker seeks to represent, is made up of Precincts 3-4-5-6 in Ward 3; Precincts 1-2-3-4 in Ward 4; and Precincts 1-2-3 in Ward 5.
